PREFACE

For no sooner had anchors gotten beyond the
THE great success of the plan of the previous Latin books of this series has been an encouragement to the authors to present this volume of the works of Cicero and other reading matter for the third year in college preparatory work.
The orations selected are those usually required for reading, supplemented by selections from Cicero's Letters and De Senectute and from Sallust, as recommended by the American Philological Association and by the Regents of the State of New York.

The general arrangement of the book is that which was followed in the Caesar text which preceded it,—that is, sufficient grammar has been furnished for the full explanation of the text, with careful references to all the standard grammars for fuller explanation. This is followed also by exercises in prose composition giving as much as usually can be done during the year by an ordinary class. A very careful effort has been made to present the essential grammatical points of the author and the essential characteristics of his style. This, together with the full vocabulary and notes, it is hoped will equip the pupils fully for the reading of the third year.

We wish to acknowledge the valuable criticism of the manuscript, made by Dr. Sidney G. Stacey and by Dr.
William F. Tibbetts.

SCENES FROM THE LIFE OF A FAMOUS ROMAN¹

INTRODUCTION

MARCUS TULLIUS CICERO

1. Early Life. — Marcus Tullius Cicero, the foremost Roman orator and writer, was born Jan. 3, 106 b.c. His birthplace was Arpinum, a small country town about seventy miles southeast of Rome, famous also as the birthplace of Marius. His father, a member of the equestrian order, was descended from a family of old standing. Quintus, a younger brother of Marcus, became a praetor at Rome, and afterwards won distinction as one of Caesar's lieutenants in Gaul. The two brothers were early taken to Rome and placed under the care of the best instructors. One of these was Archias, the Greek poet, whose citizenship the orator defended in later years before Quintus, when the latter was presiding judge.

After a general training in grammar, rhetoric, and the Greek language, Marcus began the study of law under Mucius Scaevola, the greatest lawyer of his time. This study he supplemented by attending the courts and the Forum, listening to such advocates as Crassus and Antonius. Then at the age of eighteen a short military campaign under Pompeius Strabo, uncle of Pompey the ¹ The group at the left represents the great man's triumph. Note the horses, and Victory with the palm. The central group shows him sacrificing; and the third represents his marriage. Notice that the principal figure is made carefully the same in all three groups; that in the two first, however, he is represented in the tunic, and in the third, as wearing the toga.

"CICERO'S TOWER" AT ARPINUM

Great, gave Cicero all the experience he desired as a soldier. Gladly he resumed his studies,—rhetoric, logic, philosophy, and oratory,—pursuing them for two years, at Athens, in Asia Minor, and at Rhodes. At Athens he met Pomponius Atticus, who became his intimate friend and correspondent. At Rhodes, he was instructed by the celebrated rhetorician, Apollonius Molo, who also taught Caesar. It was this instructor who said, after listening to the young orator, "You have my praise and admiration, Cicero, and Greece my pity and commiseration, since those arts and that eloquence, which are the only glories that remain to her, will now be transferred to Rome."

2. Cicero as an Advocate.—Cicero's first appearance as an advocate was in 81 b.c., in a civil suit in defense of Publius Quinctius, with the brilliant Hortensius as the opposing counsel. The following year he appeared in a criminal suit defending Sextus Roscius against a plaintiff who was a favorite of Sulla. His success in winning the case was therefore a special triumph. In 77, after his return from foreign study, he resumed the practice of law, in which he was destined soon to take the leadership.

3. Cicero's Early Political Career. —It is significant of Cicero's qualifications that being a novus homo, i.e., one whose ancestors had never held office, he himself was elected to the four offices of the cursus honorum at the earliest legal age: quaestor at thirty, curule aedile at thirty-six, praetor at thirty-nine, and consul at forty-two. The quaestorship in 75 B.C. was spent in the province of Sicily, where his justice and impartiality endeared him to the people, while he greatly increased his popularity at home by sending grain from the province at a time of great scarcity. The holding of this office entitled Cicero to a seat in the Senate for life. Five years later the Sicilians appealed to Cicero to prosecute their Roman governor Verres, for tyranny and extortion. He conducted the impeachment with such skill that Hortensius, the defendant's counsel, gave up the case and Verres voluntarily went into exile.

In 69, as curule aedile, Cicero pleased the people by the public games which he furnished in good taste, though not with the lavish expenditure of his wealthier predecessors. His praetorship in 67 was made memorable by the passing of the Manilian Law, conferring upon Pompey supreme command in the war with Mithridates. Cicero's speech in behalf of the bill was the first he delivered to the people from the Rostra, an oration noted for its perfect form (see p. 243). By means of it he won the favor of Pompey, who was seen to become an important political factor, and, while incurring the opposition of the senatorial party, he secured the support of the populace. It paved the way to the consulship.

4. Cicero's Consulship. —Declining the governorship of a province at the close of his term as praetor, Cicero devoted his attention to securing the highest prize, the consulship. His name was presented in 64 B.C., with five other candidates, including Antonius and Catiline. Cicero owed his election to his clean record, which secured for him the solid support of the equites, his own order, and of many patricians of the better sort. He was the first novus homo to be elected since Marius, his fellow Arpinate. Antonius, second in the contest, became his colleague.

During his term he opposed the agrarian law of Servilius Rullus, defended Rabirius, an aged senator falsely accused of murder, and also the consul-elect, Murena, charged with bribery. But the main event of his consulship, and indeed of his life, was the suppression of the conspiracy of Catiline (see p. 181). This task was the more difficult because his colleague was in sympathy with the conspirators, and Caesar and Crassus had supported Catiline in his candidacy. Furthermore, there was no strong garrison in Rome at the time, for the legions were with Pompey in the East, and the nearest troops were in Cisalpine Gaul. It was the consul's prompt action that made him pater patriae, and honored him with a supplicatio, the first given to a civilian.

5. Cicero in Exile.—Having passed the goal of his political ambition, Cicero spent the next four years as an active member of the Senate. In 62 b.c. he delivered his oration for the poet

ANTIUM

SO-CALLED RUINS OF CICERO'S VILLA AT TUSCULUM

Archias, his former teacher (see p. 269). He also defended P. Cornelius Sulla, who was charged with complicity in the conspiracy of Catiline. In private life there was much that added to the enjoyment of the honors he had earned. His house was on the Palatine Hill, the best residential section of Rome. He had villas or country seats at Antium, Cumae, Formiae, Pompeii, and Tusculum, with their libraries and works of art.

But a cloud hung over his pleasures. On the last day of his consulship, as he ascended the Rostra to give an account of his administration, Metellus, the tribune, had tried to prevent him by declaring that a magistrate who had put Roman citizens to death without trial, should not himself speak. The gathering storm of opposition burst in the tribuneship of Clodius, 58 b.c. This profligate patrician had become the personal enemy of the orator because the latter had testified against his character. As the agent of the triumvirs whom Cicero had offended, he proposed a bill that whoever had put to death a Roman citizen without trial should be outlawed. It was evident against whom it was aimed. Failing to receive assistance from Pompey and the consuls, Cicero went into voluntary exile. Immediately another bill of Clodius was passed, declaring Cicero a public enemy, confiscating his property, and prohibiting him from fire and water within four hundred miles of the city. Cicero fled to Southern Italy, thence to Greece and Thessalonica. This was about the time of Caesar's battle with the Helvetians. The rest of the year he remained crushed in spirit and hopeless, notwithstanding the consolation and kindness extended to him by the provincials.

But in Rome opposition was turning to favor. Clodius had lost his hold. Pompey and the new consuls and tribunes of 57 urged the return of the exile. A month after the bill recalling him was passed in the assembly of the people, he reached Rome. His homeward journey was marked with demonstrations of affection. His entry into the city was like a triumphal procession. Later his house on the Palatine and his villas were rebuilt at the public expense.

6. Cicero as Ex-consul. — Cicero resumed his place in the Senate and in the courts, but his life was one of weakened influence. His friendship was sought by Caesar, and finally won, so that he wrote to Atticus, "The delightful friendship with Caesar is the one plank saved from my shipwreck which gives me real pleasure." It was after his return from exile that Cicero began to write upon rhetorical and philosophical subjects (see sec. 10). In 53 b.c., he was honored with an appointment to the college of augurs. In 52, while attempting to speak in behalf of Milo, who was clearly guilty of the murder of Clodius, he was humiliated by failure, breaking down "in the presence of the drawn swords of the soldiers, and of the intense excitement of the bystanders." The oration, which was delivered only in part, was afterwards written out, and is one of his best. The following year Cicero was made governor of Cilicia, a province that had been grossly misruled by his predecessor. The new governor won the hearty gratitude of his subjects by his reforms in many ways, and by subduing their enemies with his legions. He was proclaimed imperator, and on his return to Rome would probably have been awarded a triumph, had the citizens not been distracted by Caesar's crossing of the Rubicon.

7. Cicero and the Civil War.—Cicero's position between Caesar and Pompey was indeed difficult. Both leaders had claims upon his friendship. Failing as a peacemaker, he finally took the side of Pompey, following him to Greece. After Caesar's victory at Pharsalus, he returned to Brundisium, awaiting for months the will of the conqueror, until the message came with a generous offer of pardon. This was in 47 b.c. With but little interest in politics, Cicero sought comfort in writing. Three busy years followed, in which he produced four works on rhetoric and oratory, three on ethics, two on philosophy, besides essays on other subjects. Domestic sorrows came. His wife Terentia was estranged, and finally divorced. This was followed by the death of his only daughter Tullia, to whom he was devotedly attached.

Then came the assassination of Caesar in 44 b.c., which in the course of events, Cicero was more than ready to approve. Once again, at the age of 63, he threw his energy into the struggle for the freedom of the republic. He became the life and soul of the senatorial party, aiding the young Octavianus in his claims against Antony. His last oratorical efforts were called forth in the fourteen "Philippics," hurled against Antony, in which he declared the tyrant to be a public enemy, and called upon the Romans to maintain their liberty. But the voice of her greatest orator could not save the state.

8. Cicero's Assassination.—The formation of the second triumvirate blasted all hopes of the patriots. Once more the proscription lists were made, and to satisfy Antony, the young Octavianus consented to sacrifice Cicero. His brother Quintus was also proscribed. Marcus might have made his escape, but was overtaken by the assassins near his villa at Formiae, December 7, 43 b.c. His faithful slaves would have fought to the end, but he permitted no resistance. It is recorded that his head and hands were taken to Rome and in mockery nailed to the Rostra by order of Antony.

9. Cicero as an Orator. — “ It happened many years after,” writes Plutarch, “ that Augustus once found one of his grandsons with a work of Cicero’s in his hands. The boy was frightened and hid the book under his gown; but the emperor took it from him, and standing there motionless, read through a great part of the book; then he gave it back to the boy and said: ‘ This was a great orator, my child; a great orator, and a man who loved his country well.’ ”

Rome was a nation of orators. Not only did Cicero hold the first place among them, but his influence has been recognized by all men of eloquence since his day. To natural ability, a commanding voice and a pleasing personality, were added long and careful discipline and experience. It is true that he argued chiefly as an advocate, often exaggerating or evading facts in order to emphasize. He was criticised for being verbose, but this defect he partly corrected. With his incisive wit, his keen sense of humor, his wonderful mastery of words, he swayed the people and the Senate at his will. Of one hundred and seven orations attributed to Cicero, over fifty have been preserved entire, with fragments of twenty others. Most of these were revised for publication after being delivered.

10. Cicero as a Writer. — The name of Cicero is the greatest in Roman literature. Mackail says, “ Cicero’s imperishable glory is that he created a language which remained for sixteen centuries that of the civilized world, and used that language to create a style which nineteen centuries have not replaced, and in some respects have scarcely altered. He stands in prose, like Virgil in poetry, as the bridge between the ancient and the modern world.” One can hardly understand how a busy man could find time to write so much upon so many subjects. His writings, as they have come down to us, fill ten volumes, about five thousand pages. Besides his orations and letters we have his works on rhetoric and philosophy. With his broad experience no one could write with more authority than he upon rhetoric and oratory. In his De Oratore, Brutus, and Orator, he treats of the ideal orator, his education and training, and the history of oratory down to his own time.

The treatises in philosophy were written in the last years of his life. In 46-44 B.C. he produced fifteen works, including De Republica, De Legibus, De Officiis, De Amicitia, De Senectute, De Finibus De Natura Deorum, and the Tusculan Disputations. He had studied Greek philosophy from his youth. But very little had been written in Latin on this subject. To reproduce the thoughts of the Greeks without aiming to be original, to teach the lessons of philosophy to his countrymen in their own tongue, this was his task. Of the Tusculan Disputations it was Erasmus who said: "I cannot doubt that the mind from which such teachings flowed was in some sense inspired by divinity. I always feel a better man for reading Cicero."

11. Cicero's Letters. — To the modern world most interesting are the letters of Cicero. Of these we have over eight hundred, written to his family and friends (Ad Familiares), to his intimate friend and publisher, T. Pomponius Atticus (Ad Atticum), to his brother Quintus (Ad Q. Fratrem), and to Marcus Brutus (Ad M. Brutum). They cover a period of twenty-five years, 68 to 43 B.C., and are a priceless source of information of the times of Cicero, the last days of the republic. And yet as we read these charming and natural expressions of the great Roman, we are impressed with their modern tone and our common civilization.

12. The Character of Cicero. — Historians vary greatly in their estimate of Cicero. Perhaps it is nearest the truth to say that he had many weaknesses but much strength. He was emotional, vain, sensitive. As a statesman he made many mistakes. He failed to grasp the supreme problems of his time. He lacked force, will, and aim. He was vacillating in the civil war, but his choice of affiliation had to be made between two evils. That he was a patriot there can be no doubt. His greatest desire was to save and free the republic. That he was honest and incorruptible is shown in his provincial administration. He was a man of peace and honor, pure in life and purpose, and sympathetic with the oppressed. A biographer well says: "His fidelity to his prudent friend Atticus, his affection to his loyal freedman Tiro, his unfailing courtesy toward his wife Terentia, the love he lavguage and delivery rather than to thought; the latter was direct, simple, natural. Hortensius represented the Asiatic; Cicero, the Attic, though being a pupil of the Rhodian School, he was inclined to strike a mean between the two extremes.

14. Orations were judicial, deliberative, or demonstrative. (1) Judicial orations, of which the Pro Archia is an example, were delivered in a court of justice. (2) Deliberative orations were delivered to the Senate or the popular assembly in the discussion of some public question. The oration for the Manilian Law and those against Catiline were of this kind. (3) Demonstrative orations were designed to praise or censure some one. These are illustrated by the oration Pro Marcello, by the portions of the Manilian Law eulogizing Pompey, and portions of the Catiline orations denouncing the conspirator.

15. The formal outline of an oration included six parts: (1) the exordium, or introduction; (2) the narratio, or statement of the ished upon his daughter Tullia, his unworthy son Marcus, and his sturdy brother Quintus, stand forth in striking contrast to the coldness of the typical Roman of his day."

ROMAN ORATORY

13. In the time of Cicero there were two styles of oratory, the Asiatic and the Attic. The former style called for ornamentation, and attention to lancase, including the propositio, or statement of the main theme; (3) the partitio, or division of the argument. (4) the confirmatio, or affirmative argument from the speaker's side; (5) the refutatio, or rebuttal of the opponent's argument; (6) the peroratio, or conclusion.

ROMAN CITIZENS

16. The old distinction between patricians and plebeians was wiped out as early as 300 b.c., when both classes alike were entitled to hold any office, civil or religious. But another distinction arose, dividing the people into three classes, the senatorial order, the knights, and the commons.

17. The Senatorial Order, or Optimates. — This order included all who were descended from a curule magistrate (31) or who had themselves held office. They therefore constituted an hereditary nobility. They practically held a monopoly of the offices, for while any freeborn citizen might be a candidate, the power of the senatorial party was against all except the nobles. Senators were excluded by law from trade and banking. Their distinctive dress was the tunic with a broad purple stripe.

18. The Equites, or Knights. — This term, originally applied to the cavalry of the state, came to be used of the men who had the property qualification of 400,000 sesterces, about 20,000 dollars (ordo equestris). They formed, therefore, an aristocracy of wealth, controlling capital and farming the public revenues. They had no constitutional privileges until the time of Gaius Gracchus, when they were given the exclusive right to sit on juries. The equites then lost their military connection and became influential in politics, often as rivals of the senators. The insignia of the order was a gold ring and two purple stripes on the tunic.

19. The Commons. — In Cicero's time the older families had all become senators or knights. The great body of the people constituted the populus, plebs, or populares. By amassing sufficient wealth one of the inferior class could rise to the equites; by holding the offices, he became a senator. Such a man ennobled his family, and being the first to hold office, was a novus homo (a man without ancestry). "The condition of the commons was pitiable. The combinations of capital shut them out of commerce and manufacture, while the competition of slave labor almost closed agriculture and trade against them. Some found employment in the colonies and provinces, some eked out a scanty living on their farms, some made war their trade; but the idle and degraded flocked into the capital to live on the cheap corn provided by the treasury, and to sell their votes to the highest bidder.” (Johnston.)

20. Freed slaves (liberti) and their descendants (libertini) were citizens and had the right to vote, but not to hold office until the taint of slavery was removed by two or more generations.

21. Municipia, or municipal towns, were conquered communities subject to taxation and military service, but without suffrage. Civitates foederatae were communities whose privileges depended on special treaty with Rome. Colonies sent from the city (coloniae), as a rule, enjoyed full citizenship. A praefectura was a town in which justice was administered by a prefect sent from Rome. Individual foreigners were often honored with citizenship by special gift, sometimes conferred by a commander.

THE POPULAR ASSEMBLIES

There were three assemblies based on three different divisions of the citizens.

22. The Comitia Curiata. — This was the old assembly of thirty curiae or wards. Originally its function was to confer imperium on the king and to decide on peace and war. In the time of the republic its only duty was the conferring of authority on the consuls and praetors as a matter of form, each curia being represented by a single delegate.

23. Comitia Centuriata. — This assembly began as a military organization in the days of Servius Tullius, when the people were divided into centuries (centuriae). The century or division to which a man belonged was determined by the amount of his wealth. About 250 B.C. the assembly was reorganized into three hundred and seventy-three centuries. This comitia elected the consuls, praetors, and censors, and for a long time decided questions of peace and war. This latter function, however, was transferred to the Senate. Its power of legislation was transferred largely to the comitia tributa, and its judicial power to the standing courts. It could be summoned by a consul, praetor, or dictator. Being military in theory, its meetings were usually held in the Campus Martius.

24. Comitia Tributa. — This was an assembly of the tribes, thirty-five in number, growing out of the older concilium plebis. The assembly convened under either name according to whether the patricians were included (comitia tributa), or excluded (concilium plebis). Their functions were elective, legislative, and judicial. The comitia tributa elected curule aediles, quaestors, and certain lesser magistrates, and was presided over by a consul or praetor. Its enactments were known as leges. The concilium plebis, whose presiding officer was a tribune, elected the plebeian tribunes and aediles and came to be the chief legislative body of the government. Its laws, known as plebiscita, had the same validity as the leges of the comitia tributa, and did not require the sanction of the Senate. Like the comitia centuriata, these tribal assemblies relegated their judicial authority to the standing courts, though as late as 63 b.c., Rabinus was tried before the tributa with Cicero as his defender. The sessions of these assemblies were held in the Campus for elections, and in the Forum for law-making.

25. Methods of Voting. Adjournment. — The assemblies mentioned above were called for taking action not for deliberation. The voting was done by secret ballot. At legislative meetings each voter received an affirmative and a negative ballot. At meetings to elect magistrates he received a blank tabella, on which he wrote the name of the candidate of his choice. In each century or tribe the individual votes determined the vote of the century or tribe which was then cast as a unit, a majority of these divisions deciding the vote of the assembly. So, for example, the favoring vote of eighteen of the thirty-five tribes would pass a bill, though the individuals represented might be less than those who opposed it. If the voting was not completed by sunset, all was void. The session might then be adjourned by the presiding officer, by his colleague, or a superior officer, or by the occurrence of lightning or storm. Finally the voting would have to be repeated if the officer failed or refused to announce the result.

26. Contiones. — An assembly of citizens to listen to an address or to a discussion was a contio. The people came together as individuals. Though called together by magistrates only, the assembly could be addressed by private citizens. It had no powers, and adopted no resolutions. If action was to follow, a comitia had to be properly called. The second and third orations against Catiline and the oration for the Manilian Law were delivered before contiones.

27. Political Parties. — As in all nations, two factions sprang up, the aristocratic and the democratic (optimates and populares). Cicero defined the former thus: "All those are optimates who, no matter to what class of citizens they belong, bravely defend the institutions of our ancestors." They formed the conservative class, including the nobility as the chief element. "Those who wish the things which they do and say to be pleasing to the multitude," said Cicero, "are the populares." The intense party strife between these factions which began with the Gracchi lasted till the time of Caesar, who became the successful popular champion.

THE SENATE

28. Membership. — In the earlier days of the republic any citizen of proper age was eligible to the Senate, though the preference was given to ex-magistrates. After Sulla, the Senate became exclusively a body of ex-magistrates, serving ex-officio for life. Before admission to membership, a candidate must be declared worthy by the censor, must be thirty-one years old, and must abstain from certain occupations. While there was no property requirement, only men of means would be able to serve, as they did, without pay. The senators in a body were addressed as patres conscripti, i.e. patres et conscripti, a phrase first used in 509 b.c. to include the original senators (patres) and the newly enrolled (conscripti) plebeians. The number of senators was fixed by Sulla at 600, by Caesar at 900, and afterwards reduced to 600.

29. The Session. — The regular meeting place of the Senate was the Curia Hostilia on the north side of the Comitium, but any temple might be used instead. The first oration against Catiline was delivered in the Temple of Jupiter Stator, the fourth in the Temple of Concord. A session was called generally by a consul, praetor, or tribune, who became the presiding officer. None but members were admitted, but others might listen to the proceedings from the entrance.

30. Procedure. — After the senators had been summoned by the herald (praeco) or by proclamation, the presiding officer took the auspices. He then proposed the question to be considered (rem ad senatum referre), and called upon the members to express their opinions (rogare sententias). The privilege of speech was given first to magistrates-elect, then to ex-magistrates ranking as consuls, praetors, aediles, tribunes, quaestors. The presiding officer was entitled to speak at any stage of the debate. The members either spoke at length or simply expressed agreement, or nonagreement with the motion. After the discussion the voting was by division. All voted except magistrates in office. A decision of the Senate which was not vetoed was called a senatus consultum; but if vetoed by any magistrate having the right of veto, it was only a senatus auctoritas. To be valid, the decision must be reached before sunset. Filibustering was practised, for the opponent of a measure could prevent action on it by talking until sunset.

31. Functions. — The Senate was primarily an advisory body, giving advice only when asked, but by reason of the dignity of its members, it gained in power until it controlled all legislation and elections. Among its special powers were the following :

1. In religious matters the Senate ordered the consultation of the soothsayers or the Sibylline books, decreed a thanksgiving (supplicatio), games, or holidays, and coöperated with the religious officers in times of peril.
2. In financial matters the Senate controlled taxation, revenues, appropriations, and coinage.

3. The Senate declared war and concluded peace, assigning troops and military commands, awarding the title of imperator and granting a triumph or a supplicatio.

4. The Senate could enter into an alliance by treaty with a foreign nation, assume the protectorate of a territory, or confer the title of king or friend of the Roman people on a foreign potentate. Embassies from foreign nations were sent to it, and demands addressed to a foreign nation were sent by the Senate.

5. The government of the provinces was under the jurisdiction of the senate, which assigned the proconsuls and the propraetors.

6. The Senate discussed bills which were to be presented to the legislative assemblies.

7. The Senate had the sole right of naming a dictator, or might suspend the ordinary laws by passing a senatus consultum ultimum, directing the consuls videant ne quid res publica detrimenti capiat.

THE MAGISTRATES

32. There were six ordinary magistrates in the republican period: consul, censor, praetor, tribune of the plebs, aedile, quaestor. The dictator and magister equitum were extraordinary, appointed only in critical times. The consul and praetor (dictator and magister equitum) were magistrates with imperium, i.e. with supreme executive authority, military, civil, and judicial, which had formerly belonged to the kings. The other officials were magistrates with potestas. The consul, censor, praetor, curule aedile (dictator and magister equitum) were curule magistrates, i.e. were entitled to use the sella curulis, an ivory chair of peculiar shape, as a symbol of authority. Non-curule magistrates used a subsellium, a low wooden bench. By a law in 180 B.C., a cursus honorum was established, making it necessary for one to have been quaestor before becoming praetor, and to have been praetor before becoming consul. Furthermore, it was considered desirable to be aedile before being praetor, though not essential. Besides this sequence, a minimum age limit was fixed for the incumbent of each office; for quaestor, thirty-one; aedile, thirty-seven; praetor, forty; consul, forty-three. The date of the elections was usually set by the Senate for July, but postponements might occur. Quaestors were inaugurated the following December 5; tribunes, December 10; others, January 1. The term of office was one year, except for the censor, who served eighteen months. An interval of two years was necessary between the different offices, and one of ten years before reëlection to the same office. Every magistrate possessed the power of veto over his colleague or an inferior magistrate. There was no salary for public officials, but an ex-magistrate found a source of gain in the province to which he was assigned.

33. Consuls. — The two consuls were theoretically of equal power, exercising their authority on alternate months. They were the chief magistrates, checking by veto any other except a tribune. Each consul was limited by the veto power of the other and of the tribune, and was restrained by the fact that he would have to give an account of his administration to the people. In the transaction of foreign affairs, they presided over the Senate, and executed its orders. They conducted the election of the curule magistrates in the popular assemblies. They had the power to levy troops, and were nominally the commanders, but in Cicero's time it was unusual for them to take the field. In times of peril, the consuls were invested by the Senate with the power of a dictator. A consul whose authority was prolonged beyond his term of office became a proconsul and acted as governor of a province. The consular insignia were the toga praetexta, sella consulis, and twelve lictors, who bore the fasces.

34. Praetors. — In case of the absence of both consuls from the city, the praetors acted in their place. But their chief duty was to act as judges. As the government developed, their number was increased from one to eight, as it was in Cicero's time. Of these, one was the praetor urbanus, in charge of cases between citizens; another was the praetor inter peregrinos, in charge of cases between foreigners, or between a foreigner and a citizen; the remaining six presided over the standing courts for special offences. The praetor urbanus was the chief judge of Rome. At the close of his year, a praetor became propraetor, in the capacity of provincial governor.

35. Aediles. — There were four aediles, two “curule” and two “plebeian.” The former were chosen by the comitia tributa, the latter by the concilium plebis (24). Their duties were practically the same, the city being divided into four districts, one for each aedile. These duties were the care of the streets and public buildings, the water supply and the grain market, the superintending of the police, and the providing against fire. An important function was to provide for the public games and festivals. For this purpose there was a state appropriation of funds, but the desire to win the favor of the people often led the aedile to excessive expenditure which he expected to pay by means of later income in the provinces.

36. Quaestors. — The quaestors were the public treasurers. Before the third century B.C. they also prepared evidence in public prosecutions (hence the name, from quaero). They collected money due the state and paid it out by order of the Senate. They were also custodians of the public documents such as census lists, contracts, and copies of laws. Their number, at first two, was increased by Sulla to twenty. Two of these (quaestores urbani), served in the city as general financial officers, while the others were with the army or in the provinces as paymasters. Their year of office began December 5, when they drew lots for assignments as referred to in Cat. IV. 7.

37. Tribunes. — The ten tribunes of the plebs were of necessity plebeian, either by birth or adoption (24). The office was first created to protect the people against the arbitrary action of a magistrate. Though they had no positive duties except to preside at certain elections (24) they came to be the most powerful officers in the state, for by their power of veto (ius intercendi) they could prevent the act of any curule magistrate, the passage of laws by the assemblies, or the decree of the Senate. The only check upon them was the veto of a colleague. They could also convoke and preside over the Senate (28) and the comitia tributa, and initiate legislation. Their activity was confined to the city, from which they were permitted to be absent only a day at a time. As protectors of the people, the houses of the tribunes stood open day and night. Their persons were declared sacred, i.e. death might be inflicted on any man who harmed the tribune in the exercise of his authority.

38. Censors. — Two censors were elected every five years. They served for eighteen months and then abdicated, their duties for the remaining time being assigned to the other magistrates. These duties were (1) to take the census, assess property, and arrange for the register of tribes, classes, and centuries; (2) to revise the lists of senators and knights, excluding the unworthy (28), and in general to supervise public morals; (3) to sell the privileges of collecting taxes, and to let contracts for public buildings. A man could be degraded from his rank, remaining so for the current register. On the other hand, a master could free a slave by having him inscribed on the censor's list of citizens. In the last century of the republic the office lost much of its prestige, and from 86 to 70 b.c. no censors were elected (Archias, ch. 5).

39. Dictator. — In times of special peril the consuls appointed a dictator by order of the Senate. His authority lasted for six months, or less if regular order was restored. There was no appeal from his decisions. He appointed a military assistant to command the cavalry (magister equitum), while he commanded the infantry. There was no regular dictator after 202 b.c., for Sulla and Caesar, who were so called, usurped the office.

40. Religious Officers. — The religion of the Romans was a state institution. The priests were men of great influence and had much to do with public life. The most important of the priestly colleges were the pontiffs (pontifices) and the augurs (augures). The former, 15 in number, supervised all religious observances, chose and guarded the Vestals, regulated the Calendar, fixing the days for legal business and for festivals. They held office for life. The president of the college, the pontifex maximus, was not prevented from engaging in secular pursuits. Thus Caesar was elected to this office at the age of thirty-six, and continued his public career. The augurs observed and interpreted the auspices or reputed natural signs. These signs were derived from the heavens, including thunder and lightning, from the flight of birds, from the behavior of sacred chickens, and in other ways according to traditional rules. Unless the auspices were first taken, no assembly, no meeting of the Senate, no election could be held, neither could war be declared, nor could public business of any kind be transacted. Cicero was made one of the fifteen augurs in 53 b.c.

Haruspices from Etruria foretold the future in detail, rather than simple answers "yes" or "no." They were an unofficial guild, consulted in special cases.

THE COURTS

41. The Roman courts were in charge of the praetors (34). In cases of minor importance, the praetor either gave the decision himself or referred it to a judge (iudex) or jury. For cases of greater importance, standing courts were established by Sulla, the quaestiones perpetuae, presided over by the praetors. These courts considered cases concerning misgovernment (extortion), murder, forgery, embezzlement, treason, assault, etc. Juries varied in number of men, and were selected by the presiding judge. After 70 b.c. a law provided that they should be taken equally from the senators, the knights, and the tribuni aerarii. Their service was honorary. Trials were first held in the open air at the tribunal of the praetor in the Forum, but after 184 b.c., often in the basilicas around the Forum. From the decisions of the standing courts there was no appeal. By the Valerian law (509 b.c.) citizens condemned to death or excessive fine by any magistrate had the right of appeal to the comitia centuriata and tributa respectively. But capital punishment and the flogging of citizens were abolished by the Porcian law (198 b.c.). Imprisonment as a penalty was not known in Rome, though one awaiting trial might be kept in the carcer. The ordinary penalties were a fine (multa), loss of citizenship (infamia), or exile. Exile was either voluntary, or practically imposed by the denial of the use of fire and water (aquae et ignis interdictio).

PROVINCES

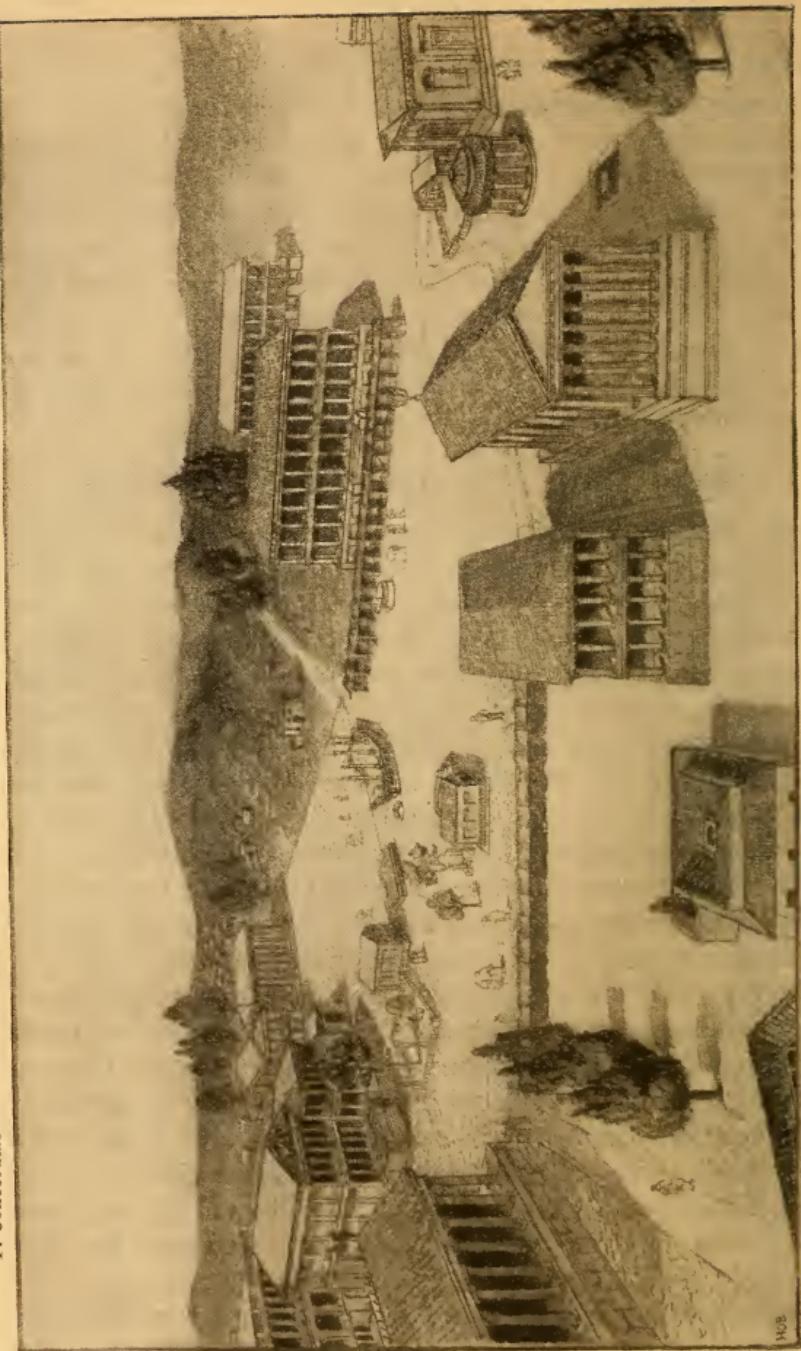

42. A Roman province was organized under a charter prepared by the conquering general with the sanction of the Senate. Its government was intrusted to a proconsul when an army was necessary, to a propraetor when the province was quiet. As far as practicable, the freedom of the provincials in local matters was not interfered with. "The tax exacted of a province was a tithe (decuma), or a fixed amount in money (stipendium). Besides the tithe, the Senate might impose the burden of supplying further produce at a fixed price." (Gow.) During the later years of the republic, especially, the provinces were plundered by the governors as well as by the tax farmers. Although charges could be brought in the special court at Rome against the offender, yet in fact such action brought little permanent relief.

THE FORUM AND THE PUBLIC BUILDINGS

43. The Forum was the low open space between the Capitoline and Palatine Hills, originally a market place. "It was about two hundred and twenty yards long, sixty yards wide near the Capitoline, narrowing to thirty-five near the Palatine." (Gow.) Adjacent to it on the northwest corner was a small square, the Comitium, used in earlier days as the center of public life. Between the Forum and the Comitium stood the Rostra, the speaker's platform, from which audiences could be addressed on either side. It was from this platform that Cicero's orations to the people were delivered. The Capitoline Hill on the west was famed for its temple of Jupiter. The Palatine Hill on the southeast was the site of many shrines, and of the residences of wealthy citizens. On the north side of the Comitium was the Senate House, the Curia Hostilia, whose site is now marked by the Church of St. Adriano. At the western end of the Forum was the Temple of Concord, built to commemorate the final harmony between the patricians and the plebeians. The Temple of Jupiter Stator, in which Cicero delivered his first oration against Catiline probably stood on the slope of the Palatine, a short distance to the east of the Forum. Among the other buildings of interest about the Forum were the Temple of Vesta, with its sacred fire; the Regia, formerly the palace of the king, later the residence of the pontifex maximus; the basilicae, used for the law courts; and the tabernae, rows of shops. The Forum was therefore the center

M. TULLI CICERONIS
ORATIŌ IN CATILINAM PRIMA
IN SENĀTŪ HABITA

The orator arraigns Catiline for his boldness.

1. Quōd ūsque tandem abūtēre, Catilīna, patientiā nōstrā? Quām dīū etiām furor iste tuus nōs ēlūdet? Quem ad finem sēsē effrēnāta iactābit audācia? 3. Etenim quid est, Catilīna, quod iam amplius ex-spectēs, sī neque nox tenebrīs obscūrāre coeptūs nefāriōs nec prīvāta domus parietibus continēre vōcēs coniūrā-

Mūtā iam istam mentem; mihi crēde, oblīvīscere caedis atque incendiōrum. Tenēris undique; lūce sunt clāriōra nobīs tua cōnsilia omnia, quae iam mēcum licet recog-nōscās. Meministīne mē ante diem XII Kalendās Novem-75 brēs dīcere in senātū fore in armīs certō diē, quī diēs fu-tūrus esset ante diem VI Kalendās Novembrēs, C. Mān-lium, audāciae satellitem atque administrum tuae? Num mē gefellit, Catilīna, nōn modo rēs tanta, tam atrōx tamque incrēdibilis, vērum, id quod multō magis 80 est admīrandum, diēs?

Dīxī ego īdem in senātū caedem tē optimātium con-tulisse in ante diem V Kalendās Novembrēs, tum cum multī prīncipēs cīvitātis Rōmā nōn tam suī cōservandī quam tuōrum cōnsiliōrum reprimendōrum causā profū-85 gērunt. Num īfītiārī potes tē illō ipsō diē meīs prae-sidiīs, meā diligentiā circumclūsum commovēre tē contrā rem pūblicam nōn potuisse, cum tū discessū cēterōrum, nostrā tamen, quī remānsissēmus, caede tē contentum esse dīcebās? Quid? Cum tē Praeneste Kalendīs ipsīs
90 Novembribus occupātūrum nocturnō impetū esse cōn-fiderēs, sēnsistīne illam colōniām meō iussū meīs prae-sidiīs, custōdiīs, vigiliīs esse mūnitam? Nihil agis, nihil mōlīris, nihil cōgītās, quod nōn ego nōn modo audiam, sed etiam videam plānēque sentiam.

95 4. Recognōsce tandem mēcum noctem illam superiōrem; iam intellegēs multō mē vigilāre ācrius ad salūtem quam tē ad perniciem reī pūblicae. Dīcō tē priōre nocte vēnisse inter falcāriōs (nōn agam obscūrē) in M. Laecae domum; convēnisce eōdem complūrēs ēiusdem āmentiae sceleris-100 que sociōs. Num negāre audēs? Quid tacēs? Convin-cēam, sī negās. Videō enim esse hīc in senātū quōsdam quī tēcum ūnā fuērunt.

O dī immortālēs ! Ubinam gentium sumus ? In quā urbe vīvimus ? Quam rem pūblicam habēmus ? Hīc, hīc sunt in nostrō numerō, patrēs cōnscrīpti, in hōc orbis 105 terrae sāncetissimō gravissimōque cōnsiliō, quī dē nostrō omnium interitū, quī dē hūiū urbis atque adeō dē orbis terrārum exitiō cōgitent. Hōs ego videō cōnsul et dē rē pūblicā sententiam rogō, et quōs ferrō trucidārī oportēbat, eōs nōndum vōce vulnerō !

Fuistī igitur apud Laecam illā nocte, Catilīna ; distribuistī partēs Ītaliae ; statuistī quō quemque proficīscī placēret ; dēlēgisti quōs Rōmae relinquerēs, quōs tēcum ēdūcerēs ; dīscripsisti urbis partēs ad incendia ; cōfirmāsti tē ipsum iam esse exitūrum ; dīxisti paulum tibi esse etiam nunc morae, quod ego vīverem. Repertī sunt duo equitēs Rōmānī qui tē istā cūrā liberārent, et sēsē illā ipsā nocte paulō ante lūcem mē in meō lectulō interfectūrōs pollicērentur. Haec ego omnia, vixdum etiam 130 coetū vestrō dīmissō, comperī ; domum meam māiōribus praesidiīs mūnīvī atque fīrmāvī ; exclūsī eōs quōs tū ad mē salūtātum māne mīserās, cum illī ipsī vēnissent quōs ego iam multīs ac summīs virīs ad mē id temporis ventūrōs esse praeđixeram.

THE END OF A ROMAN BRONZE BED

Catiline is urged to leave the city and join his waiting forces.

5. Quae cum ita sint, Catilina, perge quō coepistī. Egredere aliquandō ex urbe; patent portae; proficisci. Nimium diū tē imperatōrem tua illa Mānliāna castra dēsiderant. Edūc tēcum etiam omnēs tuōs; sī minus, 140 quam plūrimōs; pūrgā urbem. Māgnō mē metū liberābis, dum modo inter mē atque tē mūrus intersit. Nōbis-cum versārī iam diūtius nōn potes; nōn feram, nōn patiar, nōn sinam.

Māgna dīs immortālibus habenda est atque huic ipsī 145 Iovī Statōrī, antīquissimō custōdī hūius urbis, grātia, quod hanc tam̄ taetram, tam horribilem tamque infēstam reī pūblicae pestem totiēns iam effūgimus. Nōn est saepius in ūnō homine summa salūs perīclitanda reī pūblicae. Quamdiū mihi cōsulī dēsignātō, Catilina, īsidiātus es, 150 nōn pūblicō mē praesidiō, sed prīvātā dīligențiā dēfendī. Cum proximīs comitiīs cōsulāribus mē cōsulem in campō et competitōrēs tuōs interficere voluistī, compressī cōnā-tūs tuōs nefāriōs amīcōrum praesidiō et cōpiīs, nūllō tu-multū pūblicē concitātō; dēnique, quotiēnscumque mē 155 petīstī, per mē tibi obstitī, quamquam vidēbam perniciem meam cum māgnā calamitātē reī pūblicae esse coniūnc-tam. Nunc iam apertē rem pūblicam ūniversam petis; templa deōrum immortālium, tēcta urbis, vītam omnium cīvium, Italiam tōtam ad exitium et vāstitatēm vocās.

160 Quā rē, quoniam id quod est prīnum, et quod hūius imperī disciplīnaeque māiōrum proprium est, facere nōn-dum audeō, faciam id quod est ad sevēritātem lēnius et ad commūnem salūtem ūtilius. Nam sī tē interfici iusserō, residēbit in rē pūblicā reliqua coniūrātōrum manus; sīn 165 tū, quod tē iam dūdum hortor, exieris, exhaustētur ex urbe tuōrum comitū magna et perniciōsa sentīna reī pūblicae. Quid est, Catilina? Num dubitās id, mē im-perante, facere quod iam tuā sponte faciēbās? Exīre ex urbe iubet cōnsul hostem. Interrogās mē, num in exsilium? Nōn iubeō; sed, sī mē cōnsul is, suādeō.

All men fear Catiline because of his crimes.

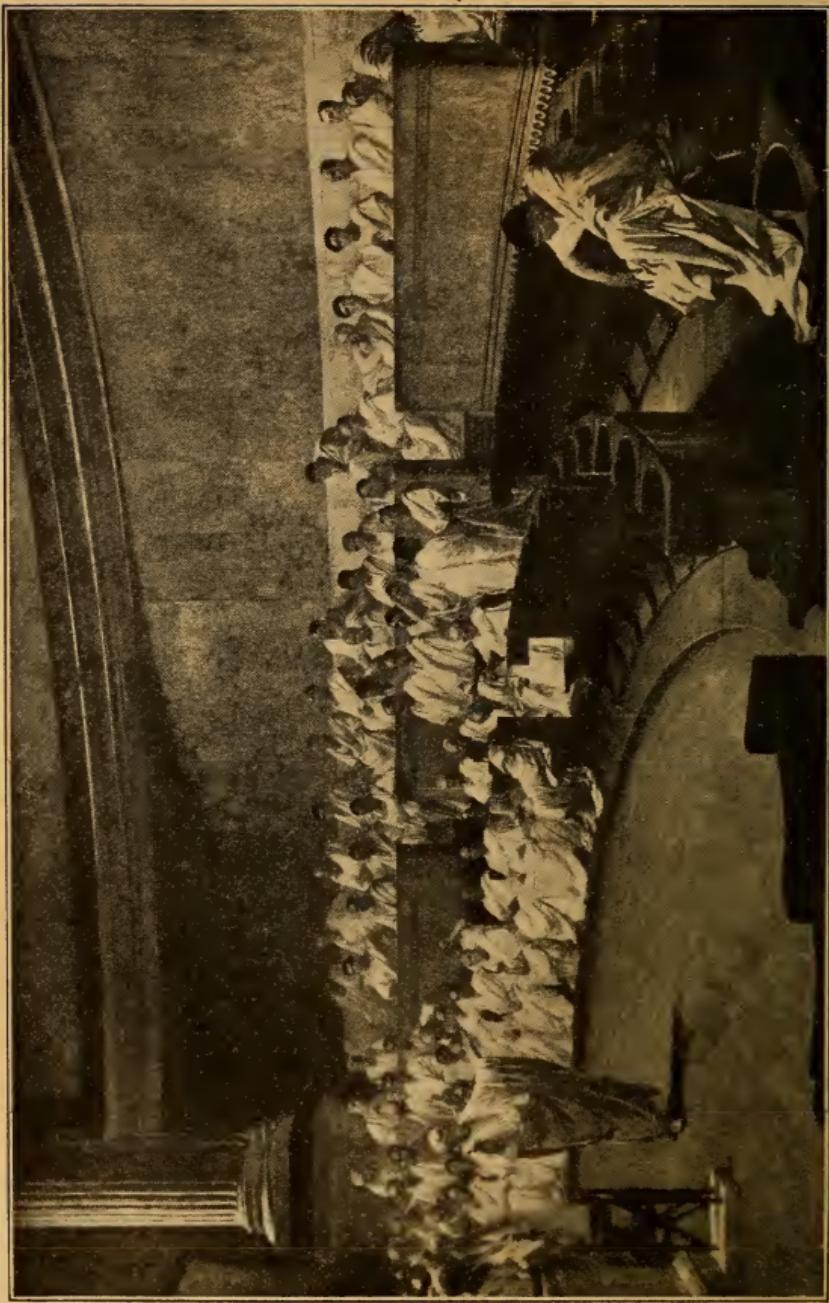

6. Quid est enim, Catilīna, quod tē iam in hāc urbe dēlectāre possit, in quā nēmō est extrā istam coniūrātiōnem perditōrum hominum quī tē nōn metuat, nēmō quī nōn ūderit? Quae nota domesticae turpitūdinis non inūsta vītae tuae est? Quod prīvātārum rērum dēdecus 175 nōn haeret in fāmā? Quae libīdō ab oculīs, quod facinus ā manibus umquam tuīs, quod flāgitium ā tōtō corpore ūfuit? Cui tū adulēscentulō, quem corruptēlārum inlecebrīs inrētīssēs, nōn aut ad audāciam ferrum aut ad libīdinem facem praetulistī?

Quid vērō? Nūper cum morte superiōris uxōris novīs nūptiīs domum vacuēfēcissēs, nōnne etiam aliō incrēdibilī scelere hōc scelus cumulāstī? Quod ego praetermittō et facile patior silērī, nē in hāc cīvitāte tantī facinoris immānitās aut exstisste aut nōn vindicāta esse videātur. 185 Praetermittō ruīnās fortūnārum tuārum, quās omnēs impendēre tibi proximīs Idibus sentiēs. Ad illa veniō quae nōn ad prīvātam ignōminiam vitiōrum tuōrum, nōn ad domesticam tuam difficultātem ac turpitūdinem, sed ad summam rem pūblicam atque ad omnium nostrum vītam 190 salūtemque pertinent.

Potestne tibi haec lūx, Catilīna, aut hūius caelī spīritus esse iūcundus, cum sciās esse hōrum nēminem quī nesciat tē prīdiē Kalendās Iānuāriās Lepidō et Tullō cōsulibus stetisse in comitiō cum tēlō, manum cōsulūm et prīncipūm cīvitātis interficiendōrum causā parāvisse, scelerī ac furōrī tuō nōn mentem aliquam aut timōrem tuum, sed fortūnam populī Rōmānī obstitisse? Ac iam illa omittō (neque enim sunt aut obscūra aut nōn multa commissa

Quot ego tuās petītiōnēs, ita coniectās ut vītārī posse nōn vidērentur, parvā quādam dēclīnātiōne et, ut āiunt, corpore effūgī! Nihil adsequeris, neque tamen cōnārī ac velle dēsistis. Quae quidem quibus abs tē initiāta sacrīs ac dēvōta sit nesciō, quod eam necesse putās esse in cōnsulis corpore dēfigere.

The senators show their hostility. Their country cries out against him.

7. Nunc vērō quae tua est ista vīta? Sīc enim iam tēcum loquar, nōn ut odiō permōtus esse videar, quō 210 dēbeō, sed ut misericordiā, quae tibi nūlla dēbētur. Vēnistī paulō ante in senātum. Quis tē ex hāc tantā frequentiā totque tuīs amīcīs ac necessāriīs salūtāvit? Sī hōc post hominum memoriam contigit nēminī, vōcis exspectās contumēliam, cum sīs gravissimō iūdiciō taciturnitātis oppres- 215 sus? Quid, quod adventū tuō ista subsellia vacuēfacta sunt, quod omnēs cōsulārēs, quī tibi persaepe ad caedem cōnstitūtī fuērunt, simul atque adsēdistī, partem istam subselliōrum nūdam atque inānem relīquērunt, quō tandem animō tibi ferendum putās? 220

Servī, mehercule, meī sī mē istō pactō metuerent, ut tē metuunt omnēs cīvēs tuī, domum meam relinquendam putārem; tū tibi urbem nōn arbitrāris? Et, sī mē meīs cīvibus iniūriā suspectum tam graviter atque offēnsum vidērem, carēre mē aspectū cīvium quam īfēstīs omnium 225 oculīs cōnspicī māllem. Tū cum cōnscientiā scelerum tuōrum agnōscās odium omnium iūustum et iam diū tibi dēbitum, dubitās, quōrum mentēs sēnsūsque vulnerās, eōrum aspectum praeſentiamque vītāre? Sī tē parentēs timērent atque ōdissent tuī neque eōs ūllā ratiōne plācāre 230 possēs, ut opinor, ab eōrum oculis aliquō concēderēs. Nunc tē patria, quae commūnis est parēns omnium nostrum, ōdit ac metuit, et iam diū nihil tē iūdicat nisi dē parricīdiō suō cōgitāre; hūius tū neque auctōritātem 235 verēbere nec iūdiciū sequēre nec vim pertimēscēs?

Quae tēcum, Catilīna, sīc agit et quōdam modō tacita loquitur: ‘Nūllum iam aliquot annī facinus exstitit nisi per tē, nūllum flāgitium sine tē; tibi ūnī multōrum cīvium necēs, tibi vexātiō dīreptiōque sociōrum impūnīta fuit ac 240 libera; tū nōn sōlum ad neglegendās lēgēs et quaestōnēs, vērum etiam ad ēvertendās perfringendāsque valuistī. Superiōra illa, quamquam ferenda nōn fuērunt, tamen, ut potuī, tulī; nunc vērō mē tōtam esse in metū propter ūnum tē, quicquid incēpuerit, Catilīnam timērī, nūllum 245 vidērī contrā mē cōnsilium inīrī posse quod ā tuō scelere abhorreat, nōn est ferendum. Quam ob rem discēde atque hunc mihi timōrem ēripe; sī est vērus, nē opprimar; sīn falsus, ut tandem aliquandō timēre dēsinam.’

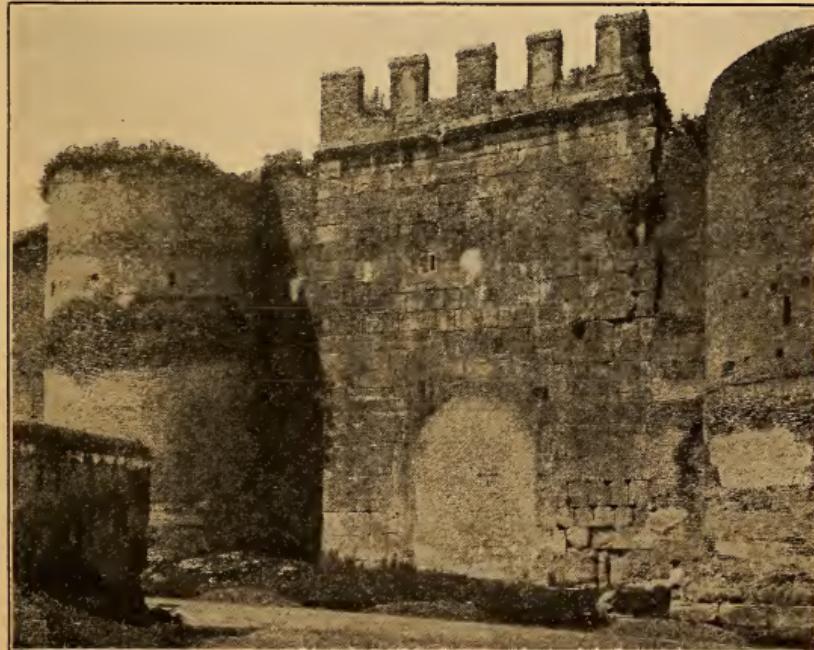

Catiline has judged himself deserving of custody.

8. Haec sī tēcum, ita ut dīxī, patria loquātur, nōnne 250 impetrāre dēbeat, etiamsī vim adhibēre nōn possit?

Quid, quod tū tē ipse in custōdiam dedistī, quod vītandae suspicīōnis causā ad M'. Lepidum tē habitāre velle dīxistī? Ā quō nōn receptus etiam ad mē venīre ausus es, atque ut domī meae tē adservārem rogāstī. Cum ā mē quoque id 255 respōnsum tulissēs, mē nūllō modō posse īsdem parietibus tūtō esse tēcum, quī māgnō in perīculō essem, quod īsdem moenibus continērēmur, ad Q. Metellum praetōrem vēnistī. Ā quō repudiātus ad sodālem tuum, virum optimū, M. Metellum, dēmigrāstī; quem tū vidēlicet et ad 260 custōdiendum dīligentissimum et ad suspicandum sagācissimum et ad vindicandum fortissimum fore putāstī. Sed quam longē vidētur ā carcere atque ā vinculīs abesse dēbēre, quī sē ipse iam dīgnūm custōdiā iūdicārit? Quae cum ita sint, Catilīna, dubitās, sī ēmorī aequō animō nōn potes, abīre in aliquās terrās et vītam istam multīs sup-²⁶⁵ pliciīs iūstīs dēbitīsque ēreptam fugae sōlitūdinīque mandāre?

'Refer,' inquis, 'ad senātūm'; id enim postulās, et, sī hīc ūrdō placēre dēcrēverit tē īre in exsilium, obtemperātūrum tē esse dīcis. Nōn referam, id quod abhorret²⁷⁰ ā meīs mōribus, et tamen faciam ut intellegās quid hī dē tē sentiant. Ēgredere ex urbe, Catilīna; liberā rem pūblicam metū; in exsilium, sī hanc vōcem exspectās, proficiscere. Quid est, Catilīna? Ecquid attendis, ecquid animadvertis hōrum silentium? Patiuntur, tacent. Quid²⁷⁵ exspectās auctōritātem loquentium, quōrum voluntātem tacitōrum perspicis? At sī hōc idem huic adulēscēntī optimō, P. Sēstiō, sī fortissimō virō, M. Mārcellō, dīxis-

In the face of unpopularity Cicero again calls upon the enemy to go into exile.

9. Quamquam quid loquor? Tē ut ūlla rēs frangat?
 Tū ut umquam tē corrigās? Tū ut ūllam fugam medi-tēre? Tū ut ūllum exsilium cōgitēs? Utinam tibi istam mentem dī immortālēs duint! Tametsī videō, sī meā vōce pestās invidiae nōbīs, sī minus in praesēns tempus recentī memoriā scelerum tuōrum, at in posteritātem impendeat.

 Sed est tantī, dum modo ista sit prīvāta calamitās et ā reī pūblicae perīculīs sēiungātur. Sed tū ut vitiīs tuīs com-300 moveāre, ut lēgum poenās pertimēscās, ut temporibus reī pūblicae cēdās, nōn est postulandum. Neque enim is es, Catilīna, ut tē aut pudor umquam ā turpitūdine aut metus ā perīculō aut ratiō ā furōre revocārit.

Quam ob rem, ut saepe iam dīxī, proficiēcere, ac, sī

The character of Catiline.

10. Ibis tandem aliquandō quō tē iam prīdem ista tua cupiditās effrēnāta ac furiōsa rapiēbat; neque enim tibi haec rēs adfert dolōrem, sed quandam incrēdibilem voluptātem. Ad hanc tē āmentiam nātūra peperit, voluntās exercuit, fortūna servāvit. Numquam tū nōn modo ūtium, sed nē bellum quidem nisi nefārium concupīstī. Nactus es, ex perditīs atque ab omnī nōn modo fortūnā vērum etiam spē dērelictīs cōflātam, improbōrum manum.

Hic tū quā laetitiā perfruēre, quibus gaudiis exultābis, quantā in voluptāte bacchābere, cum in tantō numerō tuōrum neque audiēs virum bonum quemquam neque vidēbis! Ad hūius vītae studium meditātī illī sunt quī feruntur labōrēs tuī: iacēre humī nōn sōlum ad obsidendum stuprum, vērum etiam ad facinus obeundum, vigilāre nōn sōlum īsidiantem somnō marītōrum, vērum etiam bonī ūtiōsōrum. Habēs ubi ostentēs tuam illam praeclāram patientiam famis, frīgoris, inopiae rērum omnium, quibus tē brevī tempore cōfectum esse sentiēs. Tantum prōfēcī tum, cum tē ā cōsulātū reppulī, ut exsul potius temptāre quam cōsul vexāre rem pūblicam possēs, atque ut id, quod esset ā tē scelerātē susceptum, latrōcinium potius quam bellum nōminārētur.

The whole country demands that the consul punish the traitor.

11. Nunc, ut ā mē, patrēs cōscriptī, quandam prope iūstam patriae querimōniā dētester ac dēprecer, percipite, quaesō, dīligenter quae dīcam, et ea penitus animīs vestrīs mentibusque mandāte. Etenim sī mēcum patria, quae mihi vītā meā multō est cārior, sī cūcta Ītalia, sī omnis rēs pūblica loquātur:

‘M. Tulli, quid agis? Tūne eum quem esse hostem comperistī, quem ducem bellī futūrum vidēs, quem exspectārī imperātōrem in castrīs hostium sentīs, auctōrem sceleris, prīcipem coniūratiōnis, ēvocātōrem servōrum et cīvium perditōrum, exīre patiēre, ut abs tē nōn ēmissus 355 ex urbe, sed immissus in urbem esse videātur? Nōnne hunc in vincula dūcī, nōn ad mortem rapī, nōn summō suppliciō mactārī imperābis? Quid tandem tē impedit? Mōsne māiōrum? At persaepe etiam prīvātī in hāc rē pūblicā perniciōsōs cīvēs morte multārunt. An lēgēs, 360 quae dē cīvium Rōmānōrum suppliciō rogātae sunt? At numquam in hāc urbe quī ā rē pūblicā dēfēcērunt cīvium iūra tenuērunt. An invidiam posteritātis timēs? Prae-clāram vērō populō Rōmānō refers grātiam, quī tē, hominem per tē cognitum, nūllā commendātiōne māiōrum, tam 365 mātūrē ad summum imperium per omnēs honōrum gradūs extulit, sī propter invidiae aut alicūius perīculī metum salūtem cīvium tuōrum neglegis. Sed sī quis est invidiae metus, nōn est vehementius sevēritātis ac fortitūdinis invidia quam inertiae ac nēquitiae pertimēscenda. An 370 cum bellō vāstābitur Ītalia, vexābuntur urbēs, tēcta ārdēbunt, tum tē nōn existimās invidiae incendiō cōnflagrā-tūrum?’

Cicero's reason for recommending exile rather than death.

12. Hīs ego sāctissimīs reī pūblicae vōcibus et eōrum hominum quī hōc idem sentiunt mentibus pauca respon- 375 dēbō. Ego sī hōc optimum factū iūdicārem, patrēs cōscriptī, Catilinam morte multārī, ūnius ūsūram hōrae gladiātōrī istī ad vivendum nōn dedissem. Etenim sī summi virī et clārissimī cīvēs Sāturninī et Gracchōrum et Flaccī et superiōrum complūrium sanguine nōn modo sē 380 nōn contāminārunt, sed etiam honestārunt, certē verendum mihi nōn erat nē quid hōc parricidā cīvium interfectō invidiae mihi in posteritātem redundāret. Quodsī ea mihi māximē impendēret, tamen hōc animō fuī semper, 385 ut invidiam virtūte partam glōriam, nōn invidiam putārem.

Quamquam nōn nūllī sunt in hōc ōrdine, quī aut ea quae imminent, nōn videant aut ea quae vident dissimulent; quī spem Catilīnae mollibus sententiis aluērunt coniūrātiōnemque nāscētē nōn crēdēndō corrōborā-390 vērunt; quōrum auctōritāte multī nōn sōlum improbī, vērum etiam imperītī, sī in hunc animadvertissem, crūdē-liter et rēgiē factum esse dicerent. Nunc intellegō, sī iste, quō intendit, in Mānliāna castra pervēnerit, nēminem tam stultum fore quī nōn videat coniūrātiōnem esse factam, 395 nēminem tam improbum quī nōn fateātur. Hōc autem ūnō interfēctō intellegō hanc reī pūblicae pestem paulisper reprimī, nōn in perpetuum comprimī posse. Quodsī sē ēiēcerit sēcumque suōs ēdūxerit et eōdem cēterōs undique collēctōs naufragōs adgregārit, exstinguētur atque dēlē-400 bitur nōn modo haec tam adulta reī pūblicae pestis, vērum etiam stirps ac sēmen malōrum omnium.

All patriots will unite under the guidance of Heaven to save the state

13. Etenim iam diū, patrēs cōscriptī, in hīs perīculīs coniūrātiōnis īnsidiīsque versāmūr, sed nesciō quō pactō omnium seelerum ac veteris furōris et audāciae mātūritās 405 in nostrī cōsulātūs tempus ērūpit. Quodsī ex tantō latrōciniō iste ūnus tollētur, vidēbimur fortasse ad breve quoddam tempus cūrā et metū esse relevātī; perīculum autem residēbit et erit inclūsum penitus in vēnīs atque in vīscerībus reī pūblicae. Ut saepe hominēs aegrī morbō 410 gravī, cum aestū febrīque iactantur, sī aquam gelidam bibērunt, prīmō relevārī videntur, deinde multō gravius vehementiusque adflīctantur, sīc hīc morbus quī est in reī pūblicā, relevātus istīus poenā vehementius reliquīs vīvīs ingravēscet.

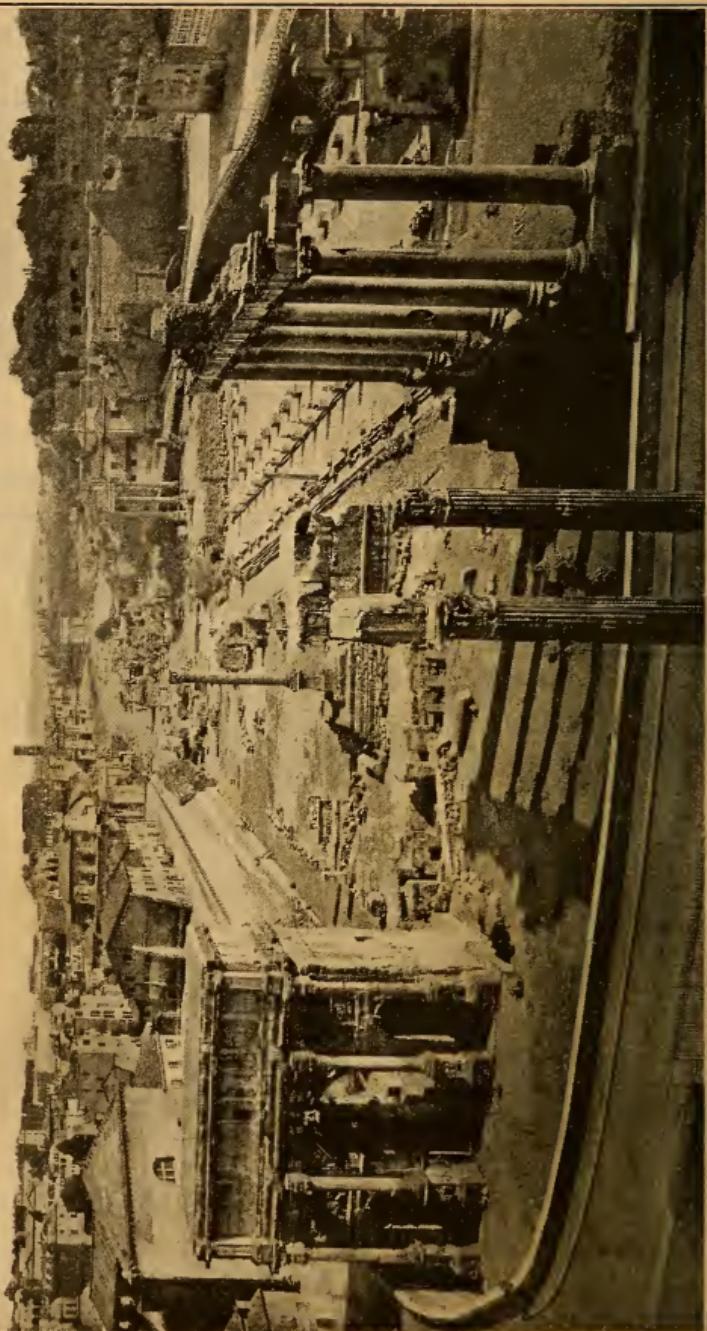

RUINS OF THE TEMPLE OF JUPITER STATOR

Quārē sēcēdant improbī, sēcernant sē ā bonīs, ūnum in 415 locum congregentur, mūrō dēnique, quod saepe iam dīxī, sēcernantur ā nōbīs; dēsinant īnsidiārī domī suae cōnsuli, circumstāre tribūnal praetōris urbānī, obsidēre cum gladiīs cūriam, malleolōs et facēs ad īflammandam urbem comparāre; sit dēnique īscriptum in fronte ūnius cūiusque 420 quid dē rē pūblicā sentiat. Polliceor hōc vōbīs, patrēs cōscripti, tantam in nōbīs cōsulibus fore diligentiam, tantam in vōbīs auctōritātem, tantam in equitibus Rōmānīs virtūtem, tantam in omnibus bonīs cōsēnsiōnem, ut Catilinae profectiōne omnia patefacta, inlūstrāta, oppressa, 425 vindicāta esse videātis.

Hisce ūminibus, Catilīna, cum summā reī pūblicae salūte, cum tuā peste ac perniciē, cumque eōrum exitiō quī sē tēcum omnī scelere parricīdiōque iūnxērunt, profīscere ad impium bellum ac nefārium. Tū, Iuppiter, 430 quī īsdem quibus haec urbs auspiciīs ā Rōmulō es cōstitūtus, quem Statōrem hūius urbīs atque imperī vērē nōmināmus, hunc et hūius sociōs ā tuīs cēterisque templīs, ā tēctīs urbīs ac moenibus, ā vītā fortūnisque cīvium arcēbis et hominēs bonōrum inimicōs, hostēs patriae, latrōnēs 435 Italiae, scelerum foedere inter sē ac nefāriā societāte coniūnctōs, aeternīs suppliciīs vīvōs mortuōsque mactābis.

THE ROMAN FORUM AS IT IS To-DAY

M. TULLI CICERONIS
ORATIÖ IN CATILINAM SECUNDA
AD POPULUM

Cicero announces the departure of Catiline.

1. Tandem aliquandō, Quirītēs, L. Catilinam, furentem audāciā, scelus anhēlantem, pestem patriae nefāriē mōlientem, vōbīs atque huic urbī ferrō flammāque minitantem, ex urbe vel ēiēcimus vel ēmīsimus vel ipsum ēgredientem verbīs prōsecūtī sumus. Abiit, excessit, ēvāsit, ērūpit.⁵ Nūlla iam perniciēs ā mōnstrō illō atque prōdigō moenibus ipsīs intrā moenia comparābitur. Atque hunc quidem ūnum hūius bellī domesticī ducem sine contrōversiā vīcīmus. Nōn enim iam inter latera nostra sīca illa versābitur; nōn in campō, nōn in forō, nōn in cūriā, nōn¹⁰ dēnique intrā domesticōs parietēs pertimēscēmus. Locō ille mōtus est, cum est ex urbe dēpulsus. Palam iam cum hoste nūllō impediente bellum iūstum gerēmus. Sine dubiō perdidimus hominem māgnificēque vīcīmus, cum illum ex occultīs īnsidiīs in apertum latrōcinium coniēci-¹⁵ mus. Quod vērō nōn cruentum mucrōnem, ut voluit, extulit, quod vīvīs nōbīs ēgressus est, quod eī ferrum ē manibus extorsimus, quod incolumēs cīvēs, quod stantem urbem relīquit, quantō tandem illum maerōre esse adflīctum et prōfligātum putātis? Iacet ille nunc prōstrātus,²⁰ Quirītēs, et sē percussum atque abiectum esse sentit et retorquet oculōs profectō saepe ad hanc urbem, quam ē suīs faucibus ēreptam esse lūget; quae quidem mihi laetārī vidētur, quod tantam pestem ēvomuerit forāsque prōiēcerit.

Why he was allowed to go without arrest.

2. Ac sī quis est tālis, quālēs esse omnēs oportēbat, quī in hōc ipsō, in quō exsultat et triumphat ḍrātiō mea, mē vehementer accūset, quod tam capitālem hostem nōn comprehenderim potius quam ēmiserim, nōn est ista mea culpa, Quirītēs, sed temporum. Interfectum esse L. 30 Catilīnam et gravissimō suppliciō adfectum iam pīdem oportēbat, idque ā mē et mōs māiōrum et hūius imperī sevēritās et rēs pūblica postulābat. Sed quam multōs fuisse putātis quī quae ego dēferrem nōn crēderent, quam multōs quī etiam dēfenderent? Ac sī illō sublātō dēpellī 35 ā vōbīs omne perīculum iūdicārem, iam pīdem ego L. Catilīnam nōn modo invidiae meae, vērum etiam vītae perīculō sustulisse. Sed cum vidērem, nē vōbīs quidem omnibus rē etiam tum probātā, sī illum, ut erat meritus, morte multāssem, fore ut ēiūs sociōs invidiā oppressus 40 persequī nōn possem, rem hūc dēdūxī ut tum palam pūgnārē possētis, cum hostem apertē vidērētis.

Quem quidem ego hostem, Quirītēs, quam vehementer forīs esse timendum putem, licet hinc intellegātis, quod etiam illud molestē ferō, quod ex urbe parum comitātus 45 exierit. Utinam ille omnēs sēcum suās cōpiās ēdūxisset! Tongilium mihi ēdūxit, quem amāre in praetextā cooperat, Pūblicium et Minucium, quōrum aes aliēnum contrāctum in popīnā nūllum reī pūblicaē mōtum adferre poterat; reliquit quōs virōs, quantō aere aliēnō, quam valentēs, 50 quam nōbilēs!

Cicero's contempt for the conspirators left in the city.

3. Itaque ego illum exercitum prae Gallicānīs legiōni-bus et hōc dīlēctu, quem in agrō Pīcēnō et Gallicō Q.

Metellus habuit, et hīs cōpiis quae ā nōbīs cotidiē com-55 parantur, māgnō opere contemnō, collēctum ex senibus dēspērātīs, ex agrestī lūxuriā, ex rūsticīs dēcoctōribus, ex eīs qui vadimōnia dēserere quam illum exercitum mā-luērunt; quibus ego nōn modo sī aciem exercitūs nostrī, vērum etiam sī ēdictum prætōris ostenderō, concident.
 60 Hōs quōs videō volitāre in forō, quōs stāre ad cūriam, quōs etiam in senātum venīre, qui nitent unguentīs, qui fulgent purpurā, māllem sēcum suōs militēs ēdūxiſſet; qui sī hīc permanent, mementōte nōn tam exercitum illum esse nōbīs quam hōs qui exercitum dēseruērunt perti-65 mēscendōs. Atque hōc etiam sunt timendī magis, quod, quid cōgitent, mē scīre sentiunt, neque tamen permoven-tur.

Videō cui sit Āpūlia attribūta, quis habeat Etrūriam, quis agrum Pīcēnum, quis Gallicum, quis sibi hās urbānās 70 īnsidiās caedis atque incendiōrum dēpopōſcerit. Omnia superiōris noctis cōnsilia ad mē perlāta esse sentiunt; patefēcī in senātū hesternō diē. Catilīna ipse pertimuit, profūgit; hī quid exspectant? Nē illī vehementer errant, sī illam meam prīstinam lēnitātem perpetuam spērant 75 futūram.

These men should follow Catiline.

4. Quod exspectāvī, iam sum adsecūtus, ut vōs omnēs factam esse apertē coniūratiōnem contrā rem pūblicam vidērētis; nisi vērō sī quis est, qui Catilīnae similēs cum Catilīnā sentīre nōn putet. Nōn est iam lēnitāti locus; 80 sevēritātem rē ipsa flāgitat. Īnum etiam nunc concēdam: exeant, proficiscantur, nē patiantur dēſideriō sui Catilīnam miserum tābēscere. Dēmōnstrābō iter: Aurēliā viā profectus est; sī accelerāre volent, ad vesperam cōn-sequentur.

85 O fortūnātam rem pūblicam, sī quidem hanc sentīnam urbis ēiēcerit! Īnō, meherculē, Catilīnā exhaustō, levāta mihi et recreāta rēs pūblica vidētur. Quid enim malī aut sceleris fingī aut cōgitārī potest quod nōn ille concēperit? Quis tōtā Ītaliā venēficus, quis gladiātor, quis latrō, quis sīcārius, quis parricīda, quis testāmentōrum subiector,⁹⁰ quis circumscrīptor, quis gāneō, quis nepōs, quis adulter, quae mulier īfāmis, quis corruptor iuventūtis, quis corruptus, quis perditus invenīrī potest, quī sē cum Catilīnā nōn familiārissimē vīxisse fateātur? Quae caedēs per hōsce annōs sine illō facta est, quod nefārium stuprum⁹⁵ nōn per illum?

Iam vērō quae tanta umquam in ūllō homine iuventūtis inlecebra fuit quanta in illō? Quī aliōs ipse amābat turpissemē, aliōrum amōrī flāgitiōsissimē serviēbat; aliīs frūctum libīdinum, aliīs mortem parentum nōn modo im-¹⁰⁰ pellendō, vērum etiam adiuvandō pollicēbātur. Nunc vērō quam subitō nōn sōlum ex urbe, vērum etiam ex agrīs ingentem numerum perditōrum hominum collēgerat! Nēmō nōn modo Rōmae, sed nē ūllō quidem in angulō tōtius Ītaliae oppressus aere alienō fuit quem nōn ad hōc incrēdibile sceles foedus ascīverit.

Fate overhangs these degenerate traitors.

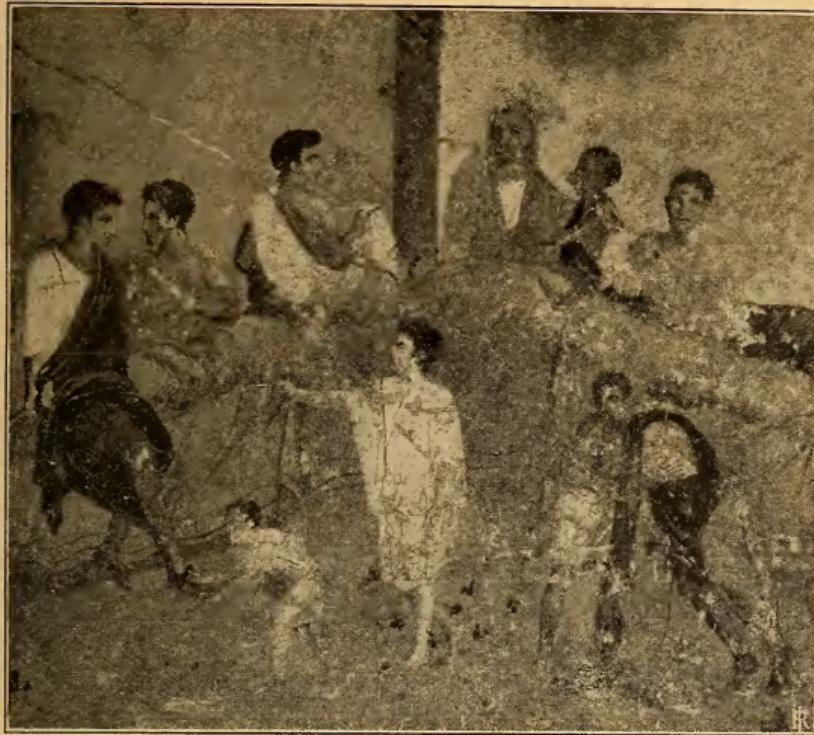

A GLADIATOR'S HELMET

5. Atque ut ēius diversa studia in dissimili ratiōne per-¹¹⁶ spicere possītis, nēmō est in lūdō gladiātōriō paulō ad facinus audācior quī sē nōn intimum Catilīnae esse fateātur, nēmō in scaenā levior et nēquior quī sē nōn ēiusdem prope 120 sodālem fuisse commemoret. Atque idem tamen, stuprōrum et scelerum exercitātiōne adsuēfactus frīgore et famē et sitī et vigiliis perferendī fortis ab istīs praedicābātur, cum industriae subsidia atque īstrūmenta virtūtis in libīdine audāciāque cōnsūmeret.

125 Hunc vērō sī secūtī erunt suī comitēs, sī ex urbe exierint dēspērātōrum hominum flāgitiōsī gregēs, O nōs beātōs ! O rem pūblicam fortūnātam ! O praeclāram laudem cōnsulātūs meī ! Nōn enim iam sunt mediocrēs hominum libīdinēs, nōn hūmānae ac tolerandae audāciae; nihil 130 cōgitant nisi caedem, nisi incendia, nisi rapīnās. Patri-mōnia sua profūdērunt, fortūnās suās obligāvērunt; rēs eōs iam prīdem dēseruit, fidēs nūper dēfīcere coepit; eadem tamen illa quae erat in abundantiā, libīdō permanet. Quodsi in vīnō et ālēā cōmissātiōnēs sōlum et scorta 135 quaererent, essent illī quidem dēspērandī, sed tamen essent ferendī ; hōc vērō quis ferre possit, inertēs hominēs for-tissimīs virīs īnsidiārī, stultissimōs prūdentissimīs, ēbriōsōs sōbrūs, dormientēs vigilantibus ? Qui mihi accubantēs in convīviīs, complexī mulierēs impudīcās, vīnō languidī, 140 cōnfertī cibō, sertīs redimītī, unguentīs oblitī, dēbilitātī stuprīs ērūctant sermōnibus suīs caedem bonōrum atque urbis incendia.

Quibus ego cōfīdō impendēre fātum aliquod, et poenam iam diū improbitātī, nēquitiae, scelerī, libīdinī dēbitam 145 aut īstāre iam plānē aut certē adpropinquāre. Quōs sī meus cōnsulātus, quoniam sānāre nōn potest, sustulerit, nōn breve nesciō quod tempus, sed multa saecula prōpā-gārit reī pūblicae. Nūlla est enim nātiō quam perti-mēscāmus, nūllus rēx quī bellum populō Rōmānō facere 150 possit. Omnia sunt externa ūnīus virtūte terrā marīque pācāta ; domesticum bellum manet ; intus īnsidiae sunt, intus inclūsum perīculum est; intus est hostis. Cum lūxuriā nōbīs, cum āmentiā, cum scelere certandum est. Huic ego mē bellō ducem profiteor, Quirītēs; suscipiō inimīciās hominum perditōrum! Quae sānārī poterunt, 155 quācumque ratiōne sānābō; quae resecanda erunt, nōn patiar ad perniciem cīvitātis manēre. Proinde aut exēant aut quiēscant aut, sī et in urbe et in eādem mente permanent, ea quae merentur exspectent.

THE END OF A ROMAN BANQUET¹

Cicero narrates the arraignment of Catiline.

160 6. At etiam sunt quī dīcant, Quirītēs, ā mē ēiectum in exsiliū esse Catilīnam. Quod ego sī verbō adsequī possem, istōs ipsōs ēicerem quī haec loquuntur. Homō enim vidēlicet timidus aut etiam permōdestus vōcem cōnsulis ferre nōn potuit; simul atque īre in exsiliū iussus 165 est, pāruit, īvit.

Hesternō diē, Quirītēs, cum domī meae paene interfектus essem, senātum in aedem Iovis Statōris convocāvī, rem omnem ad patrēs cōscriptōs dētuli. Quō cum Catilīna vēnisset, quis eum senātor appellāvit, quis salū-170 tāvit, quis dēnique ita aspexit ut perditum cīvem ac nōn potius ut importūnissimum hostem? Quīn etiam prīncipēs ēius ōrdinis partem illam subselliōrum ad quam ille accesserat nūdam atque inānem relīquērunt. Hīc ego vehemēns ille cōnsul quī verbō cīvēs in exsiliū ēiciō 175 quaesīvī ā Catilīnā in nocturnō conventū apud M. Laecam fuisset necne. Cum ille homō audācissimus cōscientiā convictus prīmō reticuissest, patefēcī cētera; quid eā nocte ēgisset, quid in proximam cōstituissest, quem ad modum esset ei ratiō tōtius bellī dēscrīpta, ēdocuī. Cum haesi-180 tāret, cum tenērētur, quaesīvī quid dubitāret proficīscī eō quō iam prīdem parāret, cum arma, cum secūrēs, cum fascēs, cum tubās, cum signa militāria, cum aquilam illam argenteam, cui ille etiam sacrārium domī suaē fēcerat, scīrem esse praemissam. In exsiliū ēiciēbam quem iam 185 ingressum esse in bellum vidēbam? Etenim, crēdō, Mān-lius iste centuriō, quī in agrō Faesulānō castra posuit, bellum populō Rōmānō suō nōmīne indīxit, et illa castra nunc nōn Catilīnam ducem exspectant, et ille ēiectus in exsiliū sē Massiliā, ut āiunt, nōn in haec castra cōferet.

RUINS OF THE ROMAN THEATRE AT FIESOLE (Faesulae)

Cicero is willing to endure unpopularity.

190 7. Ō condiciōnem miseram nōn modo administranda, vērum etiam cōservandae reī pūblicae! Nunc sī L. Catilīna cōnsiliis, labōribus, periculis meīs circumclūsus ac dēbilitātus subitō pertimuerit, sententiam mūtāverit, dēseruerit suōs, cōsilium bellī faciendī abiēcerit, et ex 195 hōc cursū sceleris ac bellī iter ad fugam atque in exsilium converterit, nōn ille ā mē spoliātus armīs audāciae, nōn obstupefactus ac perterritus meā dīlignantīā, nōn dē spē cōnātūque dēpulsus, sed indemnātus, innocēns in exsilium ēiectus ā cōsule vī et minīs esse dīcētur; et erunt quī 200 illum, sī hōc fēcerit, nōn improbum sed miserum, mē nōn dīlignantissimum cōsulem sed crūdēlissimum tyrannum ex̄istimārī velint!

Est mihi tantī, Quirītēs, hūius invidiae falsae atque inīquae tempestātem subīre, dum modo ā vōbīs hūius horribilis bellī ac nefāriī periculum dēpellātur. Dīcātur sānē 205 ēiectus esse ā mē, dum modo eat in exsilium. Sed, mihi crēdite, nōn est itūrus. Numquam ego āb dīs immortāli-bus optābō, Quirītēs, invidiae meae levandae causā, ut L.

 Catilinam dūcere exercitum hostium atque in armīs volitāre audiātis, sed trīduō tamen audiētis; multōque magis 210 illud timeō, nē mihi sit invidiōsum aliquandō, quod illum ēmiserim potius quam quod ēiēcerim. Sed cum sint hominēs quī illum, cum profectus sit, ēiectum esse dīcant, idem, sī interfectus esset, quid dīcerent? Quamquam istī qui Catilinam Massiliam īre dictitant, nōn tam hōc 215 queruntur quam verentur. Nēmō est istōrum tam misericors quī illum nōn ad Mānlium quam ad Massiliēnsēs īre mālit. Ille autem sī, meherculē, hōc quod agit numquam anteā cōgitāsset, tamen latrōcinantem sē interfici māllit quam exsulem vivere. Nunc vērō, cum ei nihil adhūc 220 praeter ipsīus voluntātem cōgitātiōnemque acciderit, nisi quod vīvīs nōbīs Rōmā profectus est, optēmus potius ut eat in exsilium quam querāmur.

Six classes of men in Catiline's forces.

8. Sed cūr tam diū dē ūnō hoste loquimur, et dē eō hoste quī iam fatētur sē esse hostem, et quem, quia, quod 225 semper volū, mūrus interest, nōn timeō; dē hīs, quī dis-simulant, quī Rōmae remanent, quī nōbīscum sunt, nihil dīcimus? Quōs quidem ego, sī ūllō modō fierī possit, nōn tam ulcīscī studeō quam sānāre sibi ipsōs, plācāre reī pūblicae; neque id quārē fierī nōn possit, sī mē audīre 230 volent, intellegō. Expōnam enim vōbīs, Quirītēs, ex quibus generibus hominum istae cōpiae comparentur; deinde singulīs medicīnam cōnsilī atque ḍrātiōnis meae, sī quam poterō, adferam.

First: Men of wealth, unwilling to pay their debts.

235 Unus genus est eorum qui magnō in aere alienō māiorēs etiam possessiōnēs habent, quārum amōre adductī dissolvī nullō modō possunt. Hōrum hominum speciēs est honestissima, sunt enim locuplētēs; voluntās vērō et causa impudentissima. Tū agrīs, tū aedificiīs, tū argentō, 240 tū familiā, tū rēbus omnibus ornātus et cōpiōsus sīs, et dubitēs dē possessiōne dētrahere, adquirere ad fidem? Quid enim exspectās? Bellum? Quid ergō? In vāstatiōne omnium tuās possessiōnēs sacrōsāntas futūrās putās? An tabulās novās? Errant qui istās ā Catilīnā ex- 245 spectant; meō beneficiō tabulae novae prōferentur, vērum auctiōnāriae; neque enim istī qui possessiōnēs habent aliā ratiōne ullā salvī esse possunt. Quod sī mātūrius facere voluissent neque, id quod stultissimum est, certāre cum ūsūris frūctibus praediōrum, et locuplētiōribus hīs et 250 meliōribus cīvibus ūterēmur. Sed hōsce hominēs minimē putō pertimēscendōs, quod aut dēdūcī dē sententiā possunt aut, sī permanēbunt, magis mihi videntur vōta factūrī contrā rem pūblicam quam arma lātūrī.

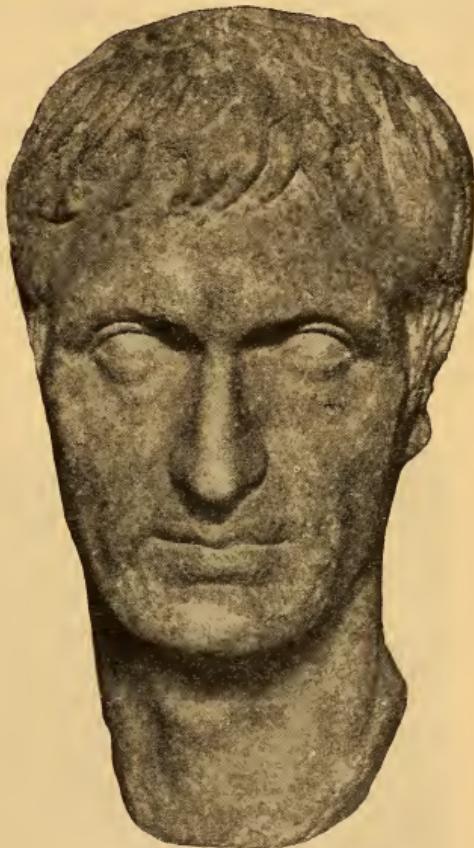

Second: Debtors ambitious for political power.

9. Alterum genus est eorum qui, quamquam premun- 255 tur aere alienō, dominatiōnē tamen exspectant, rērum potīrī volunt; honōrēs, quōs quiētā rē pūblicā dēspērant, perturbatā sē cōsequī posse arbitrantur. Quibus hōc praeципiendum vidētur, unum scilicet et idem quod reliquī omnibus, ut dēspērent sē id quod cōnantur cōsequī 260 posse; pīnum omnium mē ipsum vigilāre, adesse, prōvidēre reī pūblicae; deinde māgnōs animōs esse in bonīs virīs, māgnam concordiam, māgnās praetereā cōpiās mīlitum; deōs dēnique immortālēs huic invictō populō, clārisimō imperiō, pulcherrimae urbī, contrā tantam vim sceleris 265 praesentēs auxilium esse lātūrōs. Quodsī iam sint id quod summō furōre cupiunt adeptī, num illī in cinere urbis et in sanguine cīvium, quae mente cōnscelerātā ac nefāriā concupīvērunt, cōnsulēs sē aut dictātōrēs aut etiam rēgēs spērant futūrōs? Nōn vident id sē cupere quod, sī adeptī sint, fugitīvō alicui aut gladiātōrī concēdī sit necesse? 270

Third: Sulla's veterans, who hope for the spoils of another war.

Tertium genus est aetāte iam adfectum, sed tamen exercitātiōne rōbustum; quō ex genere iste est Mānlius cui nunc Catilīna succēdit. Hī sunt hominēs ex eīs colōniīs quās Sulla cōstituit; quās ego ūniversās cīvium esse optimōrum et fortissimōrum virōrum sentiō, sed tamen eī sunt colōniī qui sē in īspērātīs ac repentinīs pecūniīs sūmptuōsius īsolentiusque iactārunt. Hī dum aedificant tamquam beātī, dum prae-diūs lēctīs, familiīs māgnīs, convīviīs apparātīs dēlectantur, in tantum aes aliēnum incidērunt, ut, sī salvī esse velint, Sulla sit eīs ab īferīs excitandus; qui etiam nōnnūllōs agrestēs, hominēs tenuēs atque egentēs, in ean- 295 dem illam spem rapīnārum veterum impulērunt. Quōs ego utrōsque in eōdem genere praedātōrum dīreptōrumque pōnō. Sed eōs hōc moneō, dēsinant furere ac prōscriptiōnēs et dictātūrās cōgitāre. Tantus enim illōrum 300 temporum dolor inūstus est cīvitātī ut iam ista nōn modo hominēs, sed nē pecudēs quidem mihi passūrae esse vide-antur.

Fourth: Hopeless bankrupts.

10. Quārtum genus est sānē varium et mīxtum et turbulentum; qui iam prīdem premuntur, qui numquam 305 ēmergunt, qui partim inertiā, partim male gerendō negōtiō, partim etiam sūmptibus in vetere aere aliēnō vacillant; qui vadimōniis, iūdiciis, prōscriptiōne bonōrum dēfatigātī, permultī et ex urbe et ex agrīs sē in illa castra cōferre dīcuntur. Hōsce ego nōn tam mīlitēs ācrēs quam īfītiā-310 tōrēs lentōs esse arbitror. Qui hominēs quam prīnum, sī stāre nōn possunt, corruant, sed ita ut nōn modo cīvitās, sed nē vīcīnī quidem proximī sentiant. Nam illud nōn intellegō, quam ob rem, sī vīvere honestē nōn possunt, perīre turpiter velint, aut cūr minōre dolōre peritūrōs sē 315 cum multīs, quam sī sōlī pereant, arbitrentur.

THE INTERIOR OF THE CARCER TO-DAY

See note on l. 319, p. 33.

Fifth: Criminals.

Quīntum genus est parricidārum, sīcāriōrum, dēnique omnium facinorōsōrum. Quōs ego ā Catilinā nōn revocō; nam neque ab eō dīvellī possunt, et pereant sānē in latrōci-niō, quoniam sunt ita multī ut eōs carcer capere nōn possit.

Sixth: Catiline's body-guard of effeminate debauchees.

Postrēmum autem genus est nōn sōlum numerō, vērum 320 etiam genere ipsō atque vītā, quod proprium Catilinæ est, dē ēius dīlēctū, immō vērō dē complexū ēius ac sinū; quōs pexō capillō, nitidōs, aut imberbēs aut bene barbā-tōs vidētis, manicātīs et tālāribus tunicīs, vēlīs amictōs, nōn togīs; quōrum omnis industria vītæ et vigilandī 325 labor in antelūcānīs cēnīs exprōmitur. In hīs gregibus omnēs ālēatōrēs, omnēs adulterī, omnēs impūrī impudicī-que versantur. Hī puerī tam lepidī ac dēlicātī nōn sōlum amārē et amārī, neque saltāre et cantāre, sed etiam sīcās vibrāre et spargere venēna didicērunt. Quī nisi exeunt, 330 nisi pereunt, etiamsī Catilina perierit, scītōte hōc in rē pūblicā sēminārium Catilinārum futūrum. Vērum tamen quid sibi istī miserī volunt? Num suās sēcum mulier-culās sunt in castra ductūrī? Quem ad modum autem illīs carēre poterunt, hīs praeſertim iam noctibus? Quō 335 autem pactō illī Appennīnum atque illās pruīnās ac nivēs perferent? Nisi idcircō sē facilius hiemem tolerātūrōs putant, quod nūdī in convīviīs saltāre didicērunt.

The forces of the State contrasted with those of Catiline.

11. Ō bellum māgnō opere pertimēscendum, cum hanc sit habitūrus Catilina scortōrum cohortem praetōriam! 340 Instruite nunc, Quirītēs, contrā hās tam praeclārās Ca-tilinæ cōpiās vestra praeſidia vestrōsque exercitūs. Et prīmum gladiātōrī illī cōflectō et sauciō cōnsulēs imperātōrēsque vestrōs oppōnite; deinde contrā illam naufraga-345 gōrum ēiectam ac dēbilitātam manum flōrem tōtius Ītaliae ac rōbur ēdūcite. Iam vērō urbēs colōniārum ac mūni-

AN ORATOR IN THE TOGA

Order will be restored by the aid of the gods.

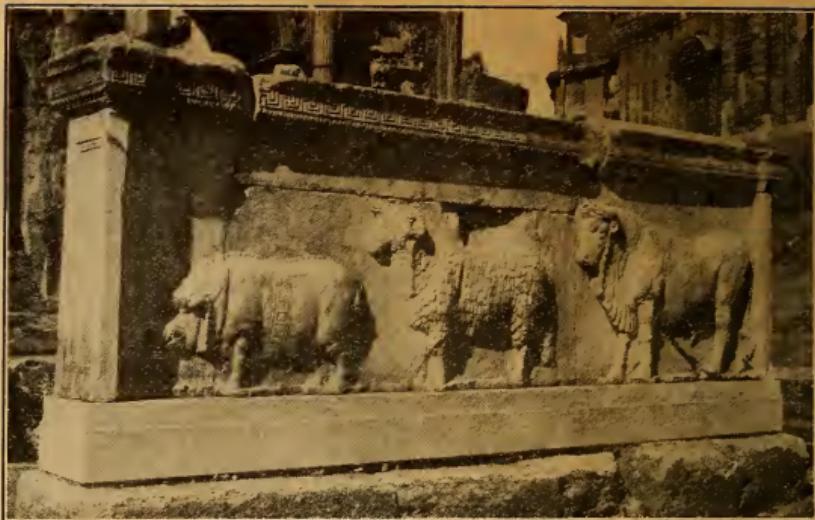

13. Atque haec omnia sīc agentur, Quirītēs, ut māximae rēs minimō mōtū, perīcula summa nūllō tumultū, bellum intestīnum ac domesticum post hominum memoriam crūdēlissimum et māximum mē ūnō togātō duce et imperātōre sēdētur. Quod ego sīc administrābō, Quirītēs, ut, sī ūllō modō fierī poterit, nē improbus quidem quisquam in hāc urbe poenam suī sceleris sufferat. Sed sī vīs manifēstae audāciae, sī impendēns patriae perīculum mē necessāriō dē hāc animī lēnitāte dēdūxerit, illud profectō perficiam, quod in tantō et tam īsidiōsō bellō

M. TULLI CICERO^{NIS}
ORATI^O IN CATILINAM TERTIA
AD POPULUM

Cicero congratulates the Roman people on their safety.

1. Rem pūblicam, Quirītēs, vītamque omnium vestrum, bona, fortūnās, coniugēs līberōsque vestrōs, atque hōc domicilium clārissimī imperī, fortūnatissimam pulcherimamque urbem, hodiernō diē deōrum immortālium summō ergā vōs amōre, labōribus, cōsiliīs, periculis meis ē flammā atque ferrō ac paene ex faucibus fātī ēreptam et vōbīs cōservātam ac restitūtam vidētis. Et sī nōn minus nōbīs iūcundī atque inlūstrēs sunt eī diēs quibus cōservāmūr quam illī quibus nāscimur, quod salūtis certa laetitia est, nāscendī incerta condiciō, et quod sine sēnsū nāscimur, cum voluptāte servāmūr, profectō, quoniā illum quī hanc urbem condidit, ad deōs immortālēs benevolentiā fāmāque sustulimus, esse apud vōs posterōsque vestrōs in honōre dēbēbit is quī eandem hanc urbem conditam amplificātamque servāvit. Nam tōtī urbī, templīs, 15 dēlūbris, tēctīs ac moenibus subiectōs prope iam ignēs circumdatōsque restinximus; idemque gladiōs in rem pūblicam dēstrictōs rettudimus mūcrōnēsque eōrum ā iugulīs vestrīs dēiēcimus. Quae quoniam in senātū inlū-strāta, patefacta, comperta sunt per mē, vōbīs iam expōnam 20 breviter, Quirītēs, ut et quantā et quam manifēsta et quā ratiōne invēstigāta et comprehēnsa sint, vōs, quī et ignō-rātis et exspectātis, scīre possitis.

Prīncipiō, ut Catilīna paucīs ante diēbus ērūpit ex urbe, cum sceleris suī sociōs, hūiusce nefāriī bellī ācerrimōs 25 ducēs, Rōmae reliquisset, semper vigilāvī et prōvidī, Quirītēs, quem ad modum in tantīs et tam absconditīs in-sidiīs salvī esse possēmus.

How written evidence was secured against the conspirators.

2. Nam tum, cum ex urbe Catilīnam ēiciēbam (nōn enim iam vereor hūius verbī invidiam, cum illa magis sit 30 timenda, quod vivus exierit), sed tum, cum illum exter-minārī volēbam, aut reliquam coniūrātōrum manum simul exitūram aut eōs quī restitissent, infirmōs sine illō ac dēbilēs fore putābam. Atque ego ut vīdī quōs māximō furōre et scelere esse inflammātōs sciēbam, eōs nōbiscum 35 esse et Rōmae remānsisse, in eō omnēs diēs noctēsque cōn-sūmpsī, ut, quid agerent, quid mōlīrentur, sentīrem ac vidērem, ut, quoniam auribus vestrīs propter incrēdibilem māgnitūdinem sceleris minōrem fidem faceret orātiō mea, rem ita comprehendērem, ut tum dēmum animīs salūti 40 vestrae prōvidērētis, cum oculīs maleficium ipsum vidērētis.
 Itaque, ut comperi lēgātōs Allobrogum bellī Trānsalpīnī esse ad Catilinam datās litterās, facultātem mihi oblātam putāvī, ut, quod erat difficillimum, quodque ego semper optābam ab dīs immortālibus, ut tōta rēs nōn sōlum ā mē, sed etiam ā senātū et ā vōbīs manifēstō dēprehenderētur. 50

Itaque hesternō diē L. Flaccum et C. Pomptīnum prae-tōrēs, fortissimōs, atque amantissimōs reī pūblicae virōs, ad mē vocāvī, rem exposuī, quid fierī placēret ostendī. Illī autem, qui omnia dē rē pūblicā praeclāra atque ēgregia sentīrent, sine recūsatiōne ac sine ūllā morā negōtium sus- 55 cēpērunt, et cum advesperāceret, occultē ad pontem Mul-vium pervēnērunt, atque ibi in proximīs villīs ita bipertīto fuērunt ut Tiberis inter eōs et pōns interesset. Eōdem autem et ipsī sine cūiusquam suspicīōne multōs fortēs virōs ēdūxerant, et ego ex praefectūrā Reātīnā complūrēs 60 dēlēctōs adulēscētēs, quōrum operā ūtor adsiduē in reī pūblicae prae-sidiō, cum gladiīs mīseram. Interim tertīā ferē vigiliā exāctā, cum iam pontem Mulvium māgnō comitātū lēgātī Allobrogum ingredī inciperent ūnāque Vol-turcius, fit in eōs impetus; ēdūcuntur et ab illīs gladiī et ā 65 nostrīs. Rēs prae-tōribus erat nōta sōlīs, ignōrābātur ā cēterīs.

How the conspirators and the Gallic envoys were brought before the Senate.

3. Tum interventū Pomptīni atque Flacci pūgna quae erat commissa sēdātur. Litterae, quaecumque erant in eō comitātū, integrīs sīgnīs prae-tōribus trāduntur; ipsi 70 comprehēnsī ad mē, cum iam dilūcēsceret, dēdūcuntur. Atque hōrum omnium scelerum improbissimum māchinā-tōrem Cimbrum Gabīnium statim ad mē nihil dum sus-picantem vocāvī; deinde item arcessītus est L. Statilius et post eum C. Cethēgus; tardissimē autem Lentulus 75 vēnit, crēdō quod in litterīs dandīs praeter cōnsuētūdinem proximā nocte vigilārat.]

Cum summīs et clārissimīs hūius cīvitātis virīs, quī audītā rē frequentēs ad mē māne convēnerant, litterās ā 80 mē prius aperīrī quam ad senātum dēferrī placēret, nē, sī nihil esset inventum, temerē ā mē tantus tumultus inieetus cīvitātī vidērētur, negāvī mē esse factūrum, ut dē perīculō pūblicō nōn ad cōnsilium pūblicum rem integrām dēferrem. Etenim, Quirītēs, sī ea quae erant ad mē 85 dēlāta, reperta nōn essent, tamen ego nōn arbitrābar in tantīs reī pūblicae perīculīs esse mihi nimiam dīligentiam pertimēscendam. Senātum frequentem celeriter, ut vīdistis, eoēgī. Atque intereā statim admonitū Allobrogum C. Sulpiciūm praetōrem, fortē virum, mīsī, quī ex aedibus 90 Cethēgī, sī quid tēlōrum esset, efferret; ex quibus ille māximum sīcārum numerum et gladiōrum extulit.

The testimony of Volturcius and the Gauls before the Senate.

4. Intrōdūxī Volturciūm sine Gallīs; fidem pūblicam iussū senātūs dedī; hortātus sum ut ea quae scīret sine timōre indicāret. Tum ille dīxit, cum vix sē ex māgnō 95 timōre recreāasset, ā P. Lentulō sē habēre ad Catilinām mandāta et litterās, ut servōrum praeſidiō ūterētur, ut ad urbēm quam pīnum cum exercitū accēderet; id autem eō cōnsiliō, ut, cum urbēm ex omnibus partibus, quem ad modū dīserīptū distribūtūmque erat, incendissent cae- 100 demque īfīnitām cīvium fēcissent, praestō esset ille, quī et fugientēs exciperet et sē cum hīs urbānīs ducibus coniungeret.

Intrōductī autem Gallī iūs iūrandūm sibi et litterās ab Lentulō, Cethēgō, Statiliō ad suām gentēm data esse 105 dīxērunt, atque ita sibi ab hīs et ā L. Cassiō esse praeſcrip- tū, ut equitātū in Ītaliām quam pīnum mitterent; pedestrēs sibi cōpiās nōn dēfutūrās. Lentulum autem sibi cōfīrmāsse ex fātīs Sibyllinīs haruspīcumque respōnsīs sē esse tertium illum Cornēliūm, ad quem rēgnūm hūius urbīs annum esse ad interitum hūius urbis atque imperī, quī esset annus decimus post virginum absolūtiōnem, post Capitōlī autem incēnsiōnem vīcēsimus. Hanc autem Cethēgō cum cēterīs contrōversiam fuisse dixērunt, quod 115

Lentulō et aliīs Sāturnālibus caedem fierī atque urbem incendī placēret, Cethēgō nimium id longum vidērētur.

esse; ὄρāre ut item illī facerent quae sibi eōrum lēgātī recēpissent. Tum Cethēgus, quī paulō ante aliquid tamen 125 dē gladiīs ac sīcīs quae apud ipsum erant dēprehēnsa respondisset, dīxissetque sē semper bonōrum ferrāmentōrum studiōsum fuisse, recitātīs litterīs dēbilitātus atque abiectus cōnscientiā repente conticuit. Intrōductus est Statilius; cognōvit et sīgnū et manū suā. Recitātē sunt 130 tabellāe in eandem ferē sententiam; cōfessus est. Tum ostendī tabellās Lentulō et quaesīvī cognōseretne sīgnū. Adnuit. ‘Est vērō,’ inquam, ‘nōtūm quidem sīgnū, imāgō avī tuī, clārissimī virī, quī amāvit ūnicē patriam et cīvēs suōs; quae quidem tē ā tantō scelere etiam mūta 135 revocāre dēbuit.’

Leguntur eādem ratiōne ad senātūm Allobrogūm populumque litterāe. Sī quid dē hīs rēbus dīcere vellet, fēcī potestātem. Atque ille pīmō quidem negāvit; post autem aliquantō, tōtō iam indiciō expositō atque ēditō, 140 surrēxit; quaesīvit ā Gallīs quid sibi esset cum eīs, quam ob rem domum suā vēnissent, itemque ā Volturciō.
 Quī cum illī breviter cōstanterque respondissent, per quem ad eum quotiēnsque vēnissent, quaesīssetque ab eō nihilne sēcum esset dē fātīs Sibyllinīs locūtus, tum ille 145 subitō scelere dēmēns, quanta cōnscientiae vīs esset ostendit. Nam cum id posset īfītiārī, repente praeter opīniōnēm omnium cōfessus est. Ita eum nōn modo ingenium illud et dīcendī exercitātiō, quā semper valuit, sed etiam propter vim sceleris manifēstī atque dēprehēnsī impuden-150 tia, quā superābat omnēs, improbitāsque dēfēcit.

Volturcius vērō subitō litterās prōferī atque aperīrī iubet, quās sibi ā Lentulō ad Catilinām datās esse dīcēbat.
 Atque ibi vehementissimē perturbātus Lentulus tamen et sīgnū et manū suā cognōvit. Erant autem sine 155 nōmine, sed ita: ‘Quis sim, sciēs ex eō quem ad tē mīsī.
 Cūrā ut vir sīs, et cōgitā quem in locūm sīs prōgressus.

Vidē ecquid tibi iam sit necesse, et cūrā ut omnium tibi auxilia adiungās, etiam īfimōrum.' Gabīnius deinde intrōductus, cum prīmō impudenter respondēre coepisset, ad extrēmum nihil ex eīs quae Gallī īnsimulābant negāvit. 160 Ac mihi quidem, Quirītēs, cum illa certissima vīsa sunt argūmenta atque indicia sceleris, tabellae, sīgna, manūs, dēnique ūnius cūiusque cōfessiō; tum multō certiōra illa, color, oculī, vultūs, taciturnitās. Sīc enim obstupuerant, sīc terram intuēbantur, sīc fūrtim nōnumquam inter sēsē 165 aspiciēbant, ut nōn iam ab aliīs indicārī, sed indicāre sē ipsī vidērentur.

The Senate praises the consuls and praetors, decrees custody for the traitors, and a solemn thanksgiving to the gods.

6. Indiciīs expositīs atque ēditīs, Quirītēs, senātūm cōsulū dē summā rē pūblicā quid fierī placēret. Dictae sunt ā pīncipībus ācerrimae ac fortissimae sententiae, 170 quās senātūs sine ūllā varietāte est secūtus. Et quoniam nōndum est perscriptūm senātūs cōsultūm, ex memoriā vōbīs, Quirītēs, quid senātūs cēnsuerit expōnam.

Pīnum mihi grātiae verbīs amplissimīs aguntur, quod virtūtē, cōnsiliō, prōvidentiā meā rēs pūblica māximīs perīculīs 175 sit liberāta. Deinde L. Flaccus et C. Pomptīnus praetōrēs, quod eōrum operā fortī fidēlique ūsus essem, meritō ac iūre laudantur. Atque etiam virō fortī, collēgāe meō, laus impertītur, quod eōs quī hūius coniūrātiōnis participēs fuissent, ā suīs et ā reī pūblicae cōsiliīs remōvisset. Atque 180 ita cēnsuērunt, ut P. Lentulus, cum sē praetūrā abdicāsset, in custōdiam trāderētur; itemque utī C. Cethēgus, L. Stātilius, P. Gabīnius, quī omnēs praeſentēs erant, in custōdiam trāderentur; atque idem hōc dēcrētūm est in L. Cassiū, quī sibi prōcūrātiōnēm incendēdae urbis dēpo- 185 poscerat; in M. Cēpārium, cui ad sollicitandōs pāstōrēs Āpūliam attribūtam esse erat indicātūm; in P. Fūriū, qui est ex eis colōnis quos Faesulās L. Sulla dēdūxit; in Q. Annium Chilōnem, qui ūnā cum hōc Fūriō semper erat 190 in hāc Allobrogum sollicitatiōne versatus; in P. Umbrēnum, libertinum hominem, ā quō pīmum Gallōs ad Gabīnum perductōs esse cōnstābat. Atque eā lēnitāte senātus est ūsus, Quirītēs, ut ex tantā coniūrātiōne tantāque hāc multitūdine domesticōrum hostium novem homi- 195 num perditissimōrum poenā rē pūblicā cōservātā, reliquōrum mentēs sānārī posse arbitrārētur.

Atque etiam supplicatiō dīs immortālibus prō singulārī eōrum meritō meō nōmine dēcrēta est, quod mihi pīmum post hanc urbem conditam togātō contigit, et hīs dēcrēta 200 verbīs est, ‘quod urbem incendiīs, caede cīvēs, Ītaliā bellō liberāssem.’ Quae supplicatiō sī cum cēterīs supplicatiōnibus cōferātur, hōc interest, quod cēterae bene gestā, haec ūna cōservātā rē pūblicā cōstitūta est.

Atque illud quod faciendum pīmum fuit, factum atque 205 trānsāctum est. Nam P. Lentulus, quamquam patefactīs indiciīs, cōfessiōnibus suīs, iūdiciō senātūs nōn modo praetōris iūs, vērum etiam cīvis āmiserat, tamen magistrātū sē abdicāvit, ut, quae religiō C. Mariō, clārissimō virō, nōn fuerat, quō minus C. Glauciam, dē quō nihil 210 nōminātim erat dēcrētum, praetōrem occideret, eā nōs religiōne in prīvātō P. Lentulō pūniendō liberārēmur.

The victory of the state could not have been won easily with Catiline in the city.

7. Nunc quoniam, Quirītēs, cōnscelerātissimī periculōsissimīque bellī nefāriōs ducēs captōs iam et comprehēnsōs tenētis, exīstimāre dēbētis omnēs Catilīnae cōpiās, 215 omnēs spēs atque opēs hīs dēpulsīs urbīs periculīs concidisse. Quem quidem ego cum ex urbe pellēbam, hōc prōvidēbam animō, Quirītēs, remōtō Catilīnā nōn mihi esse P. Lentulī somnum nec L. Cassī adipēs nec C. Cethēgī furiōsam temeritatem pertimēscendam. Ille erat ūnus 220 timendus ex istis omnibus, sed tam diū dum urbis moeni-bus continēbatur. Omnia nōrat, omnium aditūs tenēbat; appellāre, temptāre, sollicitāre poterat, audēbat. Erat eī cōnsilium ad facinus aptum, cōnsiliō autem neque manus neque lingua deerat. Iam ad certās rēs cōnficiendās cer-225 tōs hominēs dēlēctōs ac dēscriptōs habēbat. Neque vērō, cum aliquid mandārat, cōfectum putābat; nihil erat quod nōn ipse obīret, occurreret, vigilāret, labōrāret; frīgus, sitim, famem ferre poterat.

Hunc ego hominem tam ācrem, tam audācem, tam parā-230 tum, tam callidum, tam in scelere vigilantem, tam in perditis rēbus dīligentem, nisi ex domesticis īnsidiis in castrēnse latrōcinium compulisse (dīcam id quod sentiō, Quirītēs), nōn facile hanc tantam mōlem malī ā cervīcibus vestrīs dēpulisse. Nōn ille nōbīs Sāturnālia cōnstituis-235 set, neque tantō ante exitī ac fātī diem reī pūblicae dē-nūntiāvisset, neque commīsisset ut sīgnū, ut litterae suae testēs manifēstī sceleris dēprehenderentur. Quae nunc illō absente sīc gesta sunt ut nūllum in prīvātā domō fūrtum umquam sit tam palam inventum quam 240 haec tanta in rē pūblicā coniūrātiō manifēstō inventa atque dēprehēnsa est. Quodsī Catilīna in urbe ad hanc diem remānsisset, quamquam, quoad fuit, omnibus ēius cōnsiliis occurri atque obstitī, tamen, ut levissimē dīcam, dīmicandum nōbīs cum illō fuisset, neque nōs umquam, 245 cum ille in urbe hostis esset, tantīs perīculīs rem pūblicam tantā pāce, tantō ōtiō, tantō silentiō līberāssēmus.

The will of the gods was clearly shown.

8. Quamquam haec omnia, Quirītēs, ita sunt ā mē administrāta, ut deōrum immortālium nūtū atque cōnsiliō et gesta et prōvisa esse videantur. Idque cum coniectūrā tārum rērum gubernātiō esse potuisse, tum vērō ita praesentēs hīs temporib⁹ opem et auxilium nōb⁹ tulērunt, ut eōs paene oculis vidēre possēmus. Nam ut illa omittam, vīsās nocturnō tempore ab occidente facēs ārdōremque caelī, ut fulminum iactūs, ut terrae mōtūs relinquam, 255 ut omittam cētera, quae tam multa nōb⁹ cōnsulibus facta sunt, ut haec quae nunc fīunt, canere dī immortālēs vidērentur, hōc certē, quod sum dictūrus, neque praetermittendum neque relinquendum est.

Nam profectō memoriā tenētis Cottā et Torquātō cōn- 260 sulibus complūrēs in Capitōliō rēs dē caelō esse percussās, cum et simulācra deōrum dēpulsa sunt et statuae veterum hominum dēiectae et lēgum aera liquefacta et tāctus etiam ille qui hanc urbem condidit, Rōmulus, quem in aurātum in Capitōliō, parvum atque lactantem ūberibus 265 lupīnīs inhiantem, fuisse meministis. Quō quidem tempore cum haruspicēs ex tōtā Etrūriā convēnissent, caedēs Itaque illōrum respōnsīs tum et lūdī per decem diēs factī sunt, neque rēs ūlla quae ad plācandōs deōs pertinēret praetermissa est. Idemque iussērunt simulācrum Iovis 275 facere māius et in excelsō conlocāre et contrā, atque anteā fuerat, ad orientem convertere; ac sē spērāre dixērunt, sī illud sīgnū, quod vidētis, sōlis ortum et forum cūriamque cōspiceret, fore ut ea cōnsilia quae clam essent inita contrā salūtem urbis atque imperī, inlūstrārentur, ut ā 280 senātū populōque Rōmānō perspicī possent. Atque illud sīgnū conlocandum cōsulēs illī locāvērunt; sed tanta fuit operis tarditās, ut neque superiōribus cōsulibus neque nōbīs ante hodiernum diem conlocārētur.

9. Hīc quis potest esse, Quirītēs, tam āversus ā vērō, 285 tam praeceps, tam mente captus, quī neget haec omnia quae vidēmus, praecipueque hanc urbem deōrum immortālium nūtū ac potestāte administrārī? Etenim cum esset ita respōnsum, caedēs, incendia, interitum reī pūblicae comparārī, et ea per cīvēs, quae tum propter māgnitūdinem scelerum nōnnūllīs incrēdibilia vidēbantur, ea nōn modo cōgitāta ā nefāriīs cīvibus vērum etiam suscepta esse sēnsistis. Illud vērō nōnne ita praeſēns est ut nūtū Iovis Optimī Māximī factum esse videātur, ut, cum hodiernō diē māne per forum meō iussū et coniūrātī 290 et eōrum indicēs in aedem Concordiae dūcerentur, eō ipsō tempore sīgnū statuerētur? Quō conlocātō atque ad vōs senātumque conversō, omnia quae erant contrā salūtem omnium cōgitāta, inlūstrāta et patefacta vīdistis.

Quō etiam māiōre sunt istī odiō suppliciōque dīgnī quī nōn

A ROMAN IN THE TOGA, SACRIFICING

Cicero's own reward.

11. Quibus prō tantis rēbus, Quirītēs, nūllum ego ā vōbīs praemium virtūtis, nūllum īsigne honōris, nūllum monumen-tum laudis postulō praeter quam hūius diēi memoriam semp-ternam. In animīs ego vestrīs omnēs triumphōs meōs, omnia ūrnāmenta honōris, monumenta glōriae, laudis īsignia condī et conlocārī volō. Nihil mē mūtum potest dēlectāre, 400 nihil tacitum, nihil dēnique ēius modī quod etiam minus dignī adsequī possint. Memoriā vestrā, Quirītēs, nostrae rēs alentur, sermōnibus crēscent, litterārum monumentīs inveterāscent et corrōborābuntur; eandemque diem intellegō, quam spērō aeternam fore, prōpāgātam esse et ad salūtem urbīs et ad memoriam cōnsulātūs meī, ūnōque 405 tempore in hāc rē pūblicā duōs cīvēs exstis̄se, quōrum alter finēs vestrī imperī nōn terrae sed caelī regiōnibus termināret, alter ēiusdem imperī domicilium sēdēsque servāret.

Cicero's safety depends upon his fellow-citizens. His personal ambition.

12. Sed quoniam eārum rērum quās ego gessī, nōn eadem est fortūna atque condiciō quae illōrum quī externa 410 bella gessērunt, quod mihi cum eīs vivendum est quōs vīcī ac subēgī, illī hostēs aut interfectōs aut oppressōs reliquērunt, vestrum est, Quirītēs, sī cēterī facta sua rēctē prōsunt, mihi mea nē quandō obsint prōvidēre. Mentēs enim hominum audācissimōrum scelerātae ac nefāriae nē 415 vōbīs nocēre possent, ego prōvidī; nē mihi noceant vestrum est prōvidēre. Quamquam, Quirītēs, mihi quidem ipsī nihil ab istīs iam nocēri potest. Māgnūm enim est in bonīs praesidium, quod mihi in perpetuum comparātūm est; māgna in rē pūblicā dīgnitās, quae mē semper 420 tacita dēfendet, māgna vīs cōnscientiae, quam quī neglegunt, cum mē violāre volent, sē ipsī indicābunt.

Est enim in nōbīs is animus, Quirītēs, ut nōn modo nullīus audāciae cēdāmus, sed etiam omnēs improbōs ultrō semper lacessāmus. Quodsi omnis impetus domesticōrum 425 hostium, dēpulsus ā vōbīs, sē in mē ūnum converterit, vōbīs erit vīdendum, Quirītēs, quā condiciōne posthāc eōs esse velītis, quī sē prō salūte vestrā obtulerint invidiae perīculīsque omnibus; mihi quidem ipsī quid est quod iam ad vītae frūctum possit adquīrī, cum praesertim neque 430 in honōre vestrō neque in glōriā virtūtis quicquam videam altius quō mihi libeat ascendere?

Illud perficiam profectō, Quirītēs, ut ea quae gessī in cōnsulātū p̄ivātus tuear atque ūrnem, ut, sī qua est 435 invidia in cōservandā rē pūblicā suscepta, laedat invidōs, mihi valeat ad glōriam. Dēnique ita mē in rē pūblicā trāctābō, ut meminerim semper quae gesserim, cūremque ut ea virtūte, nōn cāsū gesta esse videantur. Vōs, Quirītēs, quoniam iam est nox, venerātī Iovem illum, custō-440 dem hūius urbis ac vestrum, in vestra tēcta discēdite; et ea, quamquam iam est periculum dēpulsum, tamen aequē ac priōre nocte custōdiīs vigiliīsque dēfendite. Id nē vōbīs diūtius faciendum sit atque ut in perpetuā pāce esse possītis, prōvidēbō.

A ROMAN ALTAR

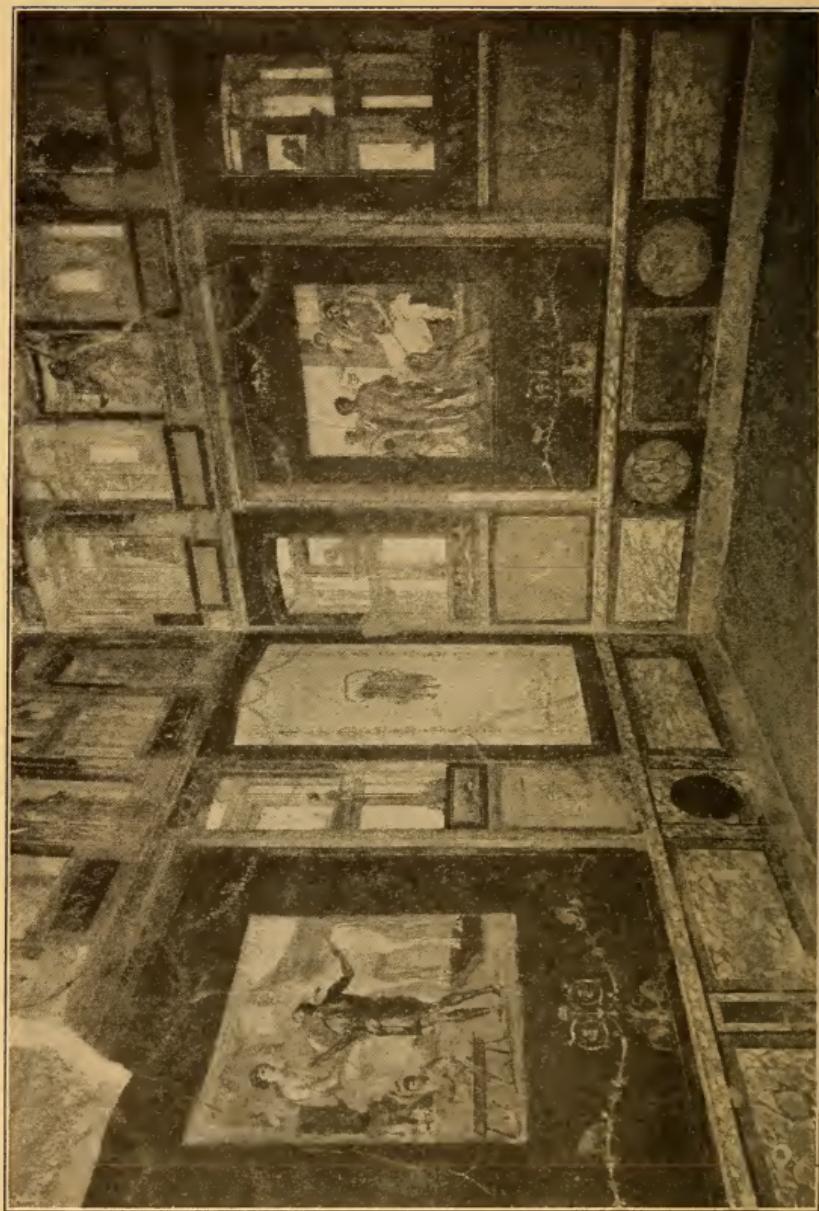

M. TULLI CICERONIS
ORATIÖ IN CATILINAM QUARTA
HABITA IN SENATU

The consul declares his will to suffer for his country.

1. Videō, patrēs cōnscriptī, in mē omnium vestrum ūra atque oculōs esse conversōs; videō vōs nōn sōlum dē vestrō ac reī pūblicae, vērum etiam, sī id dēpulsum sit, dē meō periculō esse sollicitōs. Est mihi iūcunda in malīs et grāta in dolōre vestra ergā mē voluntās, sed eam, per 5 deōs immortālēs, dēpōnite atque oblītī salūtis meae dē vōbīs ac dē vestrīs līberīs cōgitāte. Mihi sī haec condiciō cōsulatūs data est, ut omnēs acerbitatēs, omnēs dolōrēs cruciātūsque perforrem, feram nōn sōlum fortiter, vērum etiam libenter, dum modo meīs labōribus vōbīs populōque 10 Rōmānō dīgnitās salūsque pariātur.

Ego sum ille cōsul, patrēs cōnscriptī, cui nōn forum, in quō omnis aequitās continētur, nōn campus cōsulāribus auspiciīs cōnsecrātus, nōn cūria, summum auxilium omnium gentium, nōn domus, commūne perfugium, nōn 15 lectus ad quiētem datus, nōn dēnique haec sēdēs honōris umquam vacua mortis periculō atque īsidiīs fuit. Ego multa tacuī, multa pertulī, multa concessī, multa meō quōdam dolōre in vestrō timōre sānāvī. Nunc sī hunc exitum cōsulatūs meī dī immortālēs esse voluērunt, ut 20 vōs populūmque Rōmānum ex caede miserrimā, coniugēs līberōsque vestrōs virginēsque Vestālēs ex acerbissimā vexatiōne, templa atque dēlūbra, hanc pulcherrimam

The Senate must provide for this crisis, which is the gravest of all.

2. Quārē, patrēs cōscriptī, cōnsulite vōbīs, prōspicite patriae, cōservāte vōs, coniugēs, līberōs fortūnāsque movear, hōrumque omnium lacrimīs ā quibus mē circum-sessum vidētis. Neque meam mentem nōn domum saepe 55 revocat exanimāta uxor et abiecta metū filia et parvulus filius, quem mihi vidētur amplectī rēs pūblica tamquam obsidem cōsulātūs meī, neque ille quī exspectāns hūius exitum diēī stat in cōspectū meō, gener. Moveor hīs rēbus omnibus, sed in eam partem, utī salvī sint vōbīscum 60 omnēs, etiamsī mē vīs aliqua oppresserit, potius quam et illī et nōs ūnā reī pūblicae peste pereāmus.

Quārē, patrēs cōscrīptī, incumbite ad salūtem reī pūblicae, circumspicite omnēs procellās quae impendent nisi prōvidētis. Nōn Ti. Gracchus, quod iterum tribūnus 65 plēbis fierī voluit, nōn C. Gracchus, quod agrāriōs concitāre cōnātus est, nōn L. Sāturnīnus, quod C. Memmīum occīdit, in discrīmen aliquod atque in vestrae sevēritātis iūdīcīum addūcītur; tenentur eī quī ad urbis incendīum, ad vestram omnīum caedēm, ad Catilīnam accipiēndūm 70 Rōmae restitērunt; tenentur litterae, sīgna, manūs, dēni-que ūniūs cūiusque cōfessiō; sollicitantur Allobrogēs, servītia excitantur, Catilīna arcessītūr; id est initū cōsilīum, ut interfēctīs omnībus nēmō nē ad dēplōrandū quidem populī Rōmānī nōmen atque ad lāmentandā 75 tantī imperī calamitātem relinquātur.

The prisoners have been condemned, but their punishment must be decided before nightfall.

3. Haec omnia indicēs dētulērunt, reī cōfessī sunt, vōs multīs iam iūdīciīs iūdicāvīstis: pīmū quod mihi grātiās ēgīstis singulāribus verbīs, et meā virtūte atque dīlīgentiā perditōrum hominū coniūrātiōnēm patefactam 80 esse dēcrēvīstis; deinde quod P. Lentūlū sē abdicārē praetūrā coēgīstis; tum quod eum et cēterōs, dē quibus iūdicāstis, in custōdiā dandōs cēnsuīstis; māximēque quod meō nōmine supplicātiōnēm dēcrēvīstis, quī honōs togātō habitus ante mē est nēminī; postrēmō hesternō diē praemia lēgātis Allobrogum Titōque Volturciō dedistis 85 amplissima. Quae sunt omnia ēius modī, ut eī quī in custōdiam nōminātim datī sunt, sine ūllā dubitātiōne ā vōbīs damnātī esse videantur.

Sed ego īstituī referre ad vōs, patrēs cōscriptī, tamquam integrum, et dē factō quid iūdicētis et dē poenā 90 quid cēnseātis. Illa praedīcam quae sunt cōsulīs. Ego māgnūm in rē pūblicā versārī furōrem et nova quaēdam miscērī et concitārī mala iam prīdem vidēbam; sed hanc tantam, tam exitiōsam habērī coniūrātiōnem ā cīvibus numquam putāvī. Nunc quicquid est, quōcumque vestrae 95 mentēs inclīnant atque sententiae, statuendum vōbīs ante noctem est. Quantum facinus ad vōs dēlātūm sit vidētis. Huic sī paucōs putātis adfīnēs esse, vehementer errātis. Lātius opīniōne dissēminātūm est hōc malū; mānāvit nōn sōlūm per Ītaliām vērum etiam trāscendit Alpēs, et 100 obscūrē serpēns multās iam prōvinciās occupāvit. Id opprimī sustentandō aut prōlātandō nūllō pactō potest; quācumque ratiōne placet, celeriter vōbīs vindicandum est.

Silanus proposes death as a punishment; Caesar, life-imprisonment.

4. Videō duās adhūc esse sententiās: ūnam D. Sīlānī, quī cēnset eōs quī haec dēlēre cōnātī sunt, morte esse 105 multandōs; alteram C. Caesaris, quī mortis poenam removet, cēterōrum suppliciōrum omnēs acerbitatēs amplectitur. Uterque et prō suā dīgnitātē et prō rērum māgnitūdine in summā sevēritātē versātūr. Alter eōs quī nōs omnēs vītā prīvāre cōnātī sunt, quī dēlēre im- 110 perium, quī populī Rōmānī nōmen extingue, pūnctum temporis fruī vītā et hōc commūnī spīritū nōn putat oportēre; atque hōc genus poenae saepe in improbōs cīvēs in hāc rē pūblicā esse ūsūrpātūm recordātur.

Alter intellegit mortem ab dīs immortālibus nōn esse 115

supplicī causā cōnstitūtam, sed aut necessitātem nātūrae aut labōrum ac miseriārum quiētem esse. Itaque eam sapientēs numquam invītī, fortēs saepe etiam libenter oppetīvērunt. Vincula vērō, et ea sempiterna, certē ad 120 singulārem poenam nefāriī sceleris inventa sunt. Mūnicipiīs dispertīrī iubet. Habēre vidētur ista rēs inīquitatētem, sī imperāre velīs; difficultātem, sī rogāre. Dēcernātur tamen, sī placet. Ego enim suscipiam et, ut spērō, reperiam quī id quod salūtis omnium causā statueritis, 125 nōn putent esse suae dīgnitātis recūsāre. Adiungit gravem poenam mūnicipiīs, sī quis eōrum vincula rūperit; horribilēs custōdiās circumdat et dīgnās scelere hominum perditōrum; sancit nē quis eōrum poenam quōs condemnat aut per senātūm aut per populum levāre possit; 130 ēripit etiam spem, quae sōla hominēs in miseriīs cōnsōlārī solet. Bona praetereā pūblicārī iubet. Vītam sōlam relinquit nefāriīs hominibus, quam sī ēripuissest, multōs ūnā dolōrēs animī atque corporis et omnēs scelerum poenās adēmisset. Itaque ut aliqua in vītā formīdō improbīs 135 esset posita, apud īferōs ēius modī quaedam illī antīqui supplicia impiīs cōnstitūta esse voluērunt, quod vidēlicet intellegēbant hīs remōtīs nōn esse mortem ipsam pertimēscendam.

It would be safer to adopt the proposal of Caesar, the popular leader.

5. Nunc, patrēs cōscriptī, ego meā videō quid inter-140 sit. Sī eritis secūtī sententiam C. Caesaris, quoniam hanc is in rē pūblicā viam quae populāris habētur secūtus est, fortasse minus erunt, hōc auctōre et cognitōre hūiusce sententiae, mihi populārēs impetūs pertimēscendī; sīn illam alteram, nesciō an amplius mihi negōtī contrahātūr.
 145 Sed tamen meōrum perīculōrum ratiōnēs ūtilitās reī pūblicāe vincat. Habēmus enim ā Caesare, sīcūt ipsīus dīgnitās et māiōrum ēius amplitūdō postulābat, sententiam tamquam obsidem perpetuae in rem pūblicam voluntātis. Intellēctum est quid interesset inter levitātem cōtiōnātōrum et animum vērē populārem, salūtī populī cōsulen- 150 tem.

Videō dē istīs quī sē populārēs habērī volunt, abesse nōn nēminem, nē dē capite vidēlicet cīvium Rōmānōrum sententiam ferat. Is et nūdius tertius in custōdiam cīvēs Rōmānōs dedit et supplicatiōnem mihi dēcrēvit et indicēs 155 hesternō diē māximīs praemiīs adfēcit. Iam hōc nēminī dubium est, quī reō custōdiam, quaesitōrī grātulātiōnem, indicī praemium dēcrērit, quid dē tōtā rē et causā iūdicārit. At vērō C. Caesar intellegit lēgem Semprōniām esse dē cīvibus Rōmānīs cōnstitūtam; quī autem reī pūblicae sit hostis, eum cīvem esse nūllō modō posse; dēni- que ipsum lātōrem Semprōniae lēgis iniussū populī poenās reī pūblicae dēpendisse. Īdem ipsum Lentulum, largītōrem et prōdigum, nōn putat, cum dē perniciē populī Rōmānī, exitiō hūius urbis tam acerbē, tam crūdēliter 165 cōgitārit, etiam appellārī posse populārem. Itaque homō mītissimus atque lēnissimus nōn dubitat P. Lentulum aeternīs tenebrīs vinculīsque mandāre et sancit in posterum nē quis hūius suppliciō levandō sē iactāre et in perniciē populī Rōmānī posthāc populāris esse possit. Adiungit 170 etiam pūblicatiōnem bonōrum, ut omnēs animī cruciātūs et corporis etiam egestās ac mendīcitās cōsequātur.

But no punishment can be too severe for crimes so unnatural.

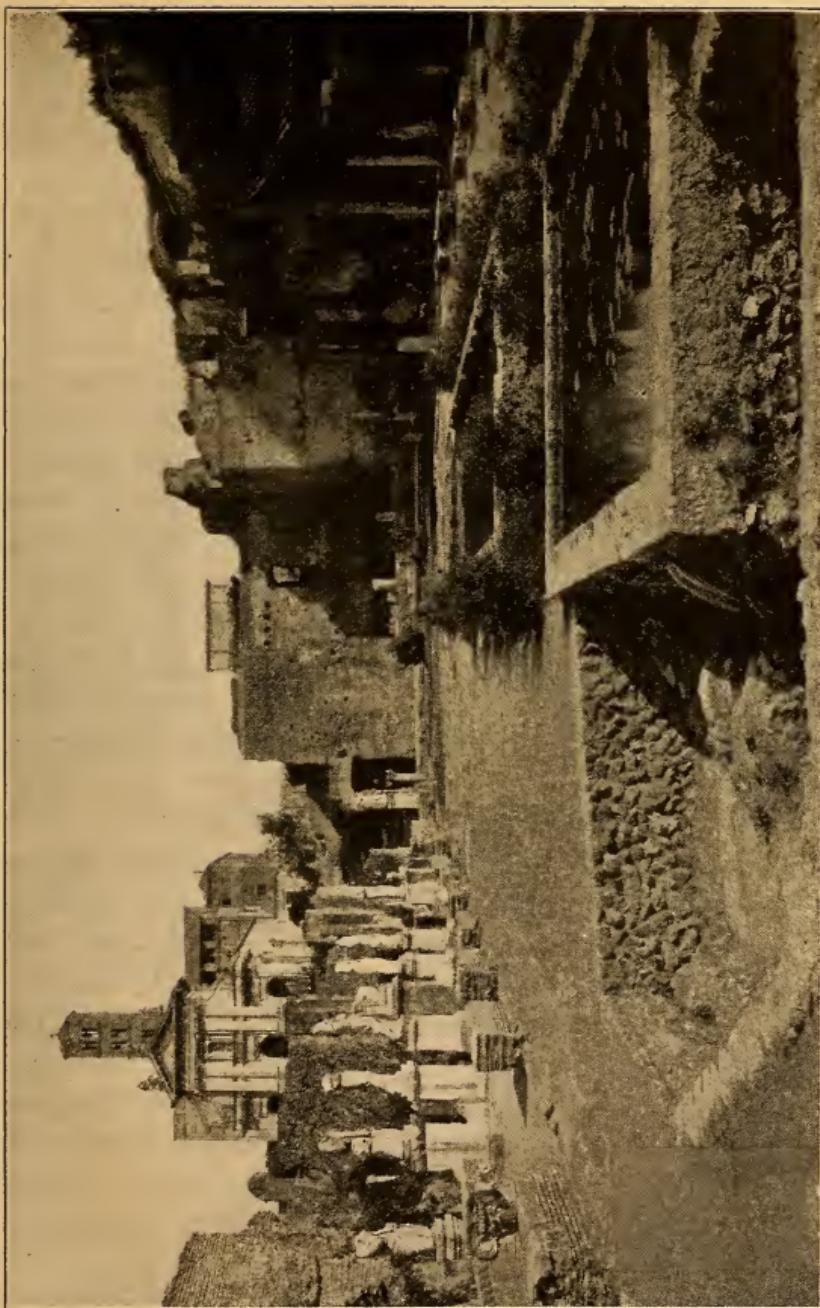

6. Quam ob rem, sīve hōc statueritis, dederitis mihi comitem ad cōtiōnem populō cārum atque iūcundum; sīve Silānī sententiam sequī mālueritis, facile mē atque 175 vōs ā crūdēlitātis vituperātiōne populō Rōmānō pūrgābō, atque obtinēbō eam multō lēniōrem fuisse. Quamquam, patrēs cōscrīptī, quae potest esse in tantī sceleris im- mānitātē pūniendā crūdēlitās? Ego enim dē meō sēnsū

180 iūdicō. Nam ita mihi salvā rē pūblicā vōbīscum perfruī liceat, ut ego, quod in hāc causā vehementior sum, nōn atrōcitāte animī moveor (quis enim est mē mītior?) sed singulārī quādam hūmānitāte et misericordiā. Videor enim mihi vidēre hanc urbem, lūcem orbis terrārum atque 185 arcem omnium gentium, subitō ūnō incendiō coincidentem; cernō animō sepultā in patriā miserōs atque īsepultōs acervōs cīvium; versātur mihi ante oculōs aspectus Cethēgī et furor in vestrā caede bacchantis.

Cum vērō mihi prōposuī rēgnantem Lentulum, sīcūt 190 ipse sē ex fātīs spērāsse cōfessus est, purpurātum esse huic Gabīnum, cum exercitū vēnisce Catilīnam, tum lāmentātiōnem mātrum familiās, tum fugam virginum atque puerōrum ac vexātiōnem virginum Vestālium perhorrēscō; et, quia mihi vehementer haec videntur misera 195 atque miseranda, idcircō in eōs quī ea perficere voluērunt mē sevērum vehementemque praebeō. Etenim quaerō, sī quis pater familiās, liberīs suīs ā servō interfictīs, uxōre occīsā, incēnsā domō, supplicium dē servō nōn quam acerbissimum sūmpserit, utrum is clēmēns ac misericors 200 an inhūmānissimus et crūdēlissimus esse videātur? Mihi vērō importūnus ac ferreus, quī nōn dolōre et cruciātū nocentis suum dolōrem cruciātumque lēnierit. Sīc nōs in hīs hominibus, quī nōs, quī coniugēs, quī liberōs nostrōs trucidāre voluērunt, quī singulās ūniūs cūiusque nostrum 205 domōs et hōc ūniversum reī pūblicae domicilium dēlēre cōnātī sunt, quī id ēgērunt, ut gentem Allobrogum in vēstīgiīs hūiūs urbīs atque in cinere dēflagrātī imperī conlocārent, sī vehementissimī fuerimus, misericordēs habē- 210 bimur; sīn remissiōrēs esse voluerimus, summae nōbīs crūdēlitātis in patriae cīviumque perniciē fāma subeunda est.

Nisi vērō cuipiam L. Caesar, vir fortissimus et amantissimus reī pūblicae, crūdēlier nūdius tertius vīsus est, cum iussū cōſulis interfectum filiumque ēius impūberem, lēgātum ā patre missum, in carcere necātum esse dīxit.

 Quōrum quod simile factum? Quod initum dēlendae rei pūblicae cōſilium? Largitiōnis voluntās tum in rē pūb-220 blicā versāta est et partium quaedam contentiō. Atque illō tempore hūius avus Lentulī, vir clārissimus, armātus Gracchum est persecūtus. Ille etiam grave tum vulnus accēpit, nē quid dē summā rē pūblicā dēminuerētur; hīc

 225 servitia concitat, Catilinam vocat, attribuit nōs trucīdan-dōs Cethēgō et cēterōs cīvēs interficiendōs Gabīnīō, urbem īflammandam Cassiō, tōtam Ītaliām vāstandam dīripien-damque Catilīnae. Vereāminī, cēnseō, nē in hōc scelere tam immānī ac nefandō nimis aliquid sevērē statuisse vid-230 eāminī; multō magis est verendum nē remissiōne poenae crūdēlēs in patriam quam nē sevēritātē animadversiōnis nimis vehementēs in acerbissimōs hostēs fuisse videāmur.

The unanimity of good citizens of all classes.

7. Sed ea quae exaudiō, patrēs cōſcriptī, dissimulāre nōn possum. Iaciuntur enim vōcēs, quae perveniant ad 235 aurēs meās, eōrum quī verērī videntur ut habeam satis praesidiū ad ea quae vōs statueritis hodiernō diē trānsigenda.
 Omnia et prōvisa et parāta et cōnstitūta sunt, patrēs cōſcriptī, cum meā summā cūrā atque dīligentiā, tum etiam multō māiōre populī Rōmānī ad summum imperium retinen-240 dum et ad commūnēs fortūnās cōſervandās voluntāte.
 Omnēs adsunt omnium ōrdinū hominēs, omnium gener-um, omnium dēnique aetātum; plēnum est forum, plēna templa circum forum, plēnī omnēs aditūs hūius templī ac locī. Causa est enim post urbē conditām haec inventa 245 sōla in quā omnēs sentīrent ūnum atque idem, praeter eōs qui, cum sibi vidērent esse pereundum, cum omnibus potius quam sōlī perire voluērunt.

Hōsce ego hominēs excipiō et sēcernō libenter, neque in improbōrum cīvium, sed in acerbissimōrum hostium numerō habendōs putō. Cēterī vērō, dī immortālēs ! quā 250 frequentiā, quō studiō, quā virtūte ad commūnem salūtem dīgnitātemque cōsentient ! Quid ego hīc equitēs Rōmānōs commemorem ? qui vōbīs ita summam ūrdinis cōsiliique concēdunt ut vōbīscum dē amōre reī pūblicae certent ; quōs ex multōrum annōrum dissēnsiōne hūiis 255 ūrdinis ad societātem concordiamque revocātōs hodiernus diēs vōbīscum atque haec causa coniungit. Quam sī cīnūctiōnem, in cōsulātū cōfirmātam meō, perpetuam in rē pūblicā tenuerimus, cōfirmō vōbīs nūllum posthāc malum cīvile ac domesticum ad ūllam reī pūblicae partem 260 esse ventūrum. Parī studiō dēfendendae reī pūblicae convēnisse videō tribūnōs aerāriōs, fortissimōs virōs ; scribās item ūniversōs, quōs cum cāsū hīc diēs ad aerārium frequentāset, videō ab exspectātiōne sortis ad salūtem commūnem esse conversōs. Omnis ingenuōrum adest mul- 265 titūdō, etiam tenuissimōrum. Quis est enim cui nōn haec templa, aspectus urbis, possessiō libertatis, lūx dēnique haec ipsa et commūne patriae solum cum sit cārum tum vērō dulce atque iūcundum ?

Even freedmen and slaves show their loyalty and good will.

8. Operae pretium est, patrēs cōnscriptī, libertīnōrum 270 hominum studia cognōscere, qui suā virtūte fortūnam hūiis cīvitātis cōsecūtī vērē hanc suam esse patriam iūdicant, quam quidam hīc nātī, et summō nātī locō, nōn patriam suam sed urbēm hostium esse iūdicāvērunt. Sed quid ego hōsce hominēs ūrdinēsque commemorō, quōs 275 privātae fortūnae, quōs commūnis rēs pūblica, quōs dēnique libertās, ea quae dulcissima est, ad salūtem patriae dēfendendam excitāvit? Servus est nēmō quī modo tolerābilī condiciōne sit servitūtis, quī nōn audāciam 280 cīvium perhorrēscat, quī nōn haec stāre cupiat, quī nōn quantum audet et quantum potest cōferat ad commūnem salūtem voluntātis.

Quārē sī quem vestrūm forte commovet hōc, quod audītum est, lēnōnem quendam Lentulī concursāre circum 285 tabernās, pretiō spērāre sollicitārī posse animōs egentium atque imperitōrum, est id quidem coeptum atque temptātum, sed nūllī sunt inventī tam aut fortūnā miserī aut voluntātē perditī, quī nōn illum ipsum sellae atque operis et quaestūs cotīdiānī locum, quī nōn cubile ac lectulum 290 suum, quī dēnique nōn cursum hunc ōtiōsum vītae suaे salvum esse velint. Multō vērō māxima pars eōrum quī in tabernīs sunt, immō vērō (id enim potius est dicendum) genus hōc ūniversum amantissimum est ōti. Etenim omne īstrūmentum, omnis opera atque quaestus frequen- 295 tiā cīvium sustentātur, alitur ōtiō; quōrum sī quaestus oclūsīs tabernīs minuī solet, quid tandem incēnsīs futūrum fuit?

Quae cum ita sint, patrēs cōscrīptī, vōbīs populī Rōmānī praesidia nōn dēsunt; vōs nē populō Rōmānō 300 deesse videāminī prōvidēte.

The foundation of the government must never hereafter be shaken.

9. Habētis cōsulem ex plūrimīs perīculīs et īnsidiīs atque ex mediā morte nōn ad vītam suam, sed ad salūtem vestrām reservātum. Omnēs ūrdinēs ad cōservandam rem pūblicam mente, voluntāte, studiō, virtūte, vōce 305 cōsentient. Obsessa facibus et tēlīs impiae coniūrātiōnis vōbīs supplex manūs tendit patria commūnis; vōbīs sē, vōbīs vītam omnium cīvium, vōbīs arcem et Capitōlium, vōbīs ārās Penātium, vōbīs illum īgnem Vestae sempiternum, vōbīs omnium deōrum templā atque dēlūbra, vōbīs mūrōs atque urbis tēcta commendat. Praetereā dē vestrā 310 vitā, dē coniugum vestrārum atque liberōrum animā, dē fortūnī omnium, dē sēdibus, dē focīs vestrīs hodiernō diē vōbīs iūdicandū est.

Habētis duce mēmorem vestrī, oblītū suī, quae nōn semper facultās datur; habētis omnēs ūrdinēs, omnēs 315 hominēs, ūniversum populum Rōmānum, id quod in cīvīlī causā hodiernō diē pīmū vidēmus, ūnum atque idem sentientem. Cōgitāte quantīs labōribus fundātū imperium, quantā virtūtē stabilitātem libertātem, quantā deō-rum benīgnitātē auctās exaggerātāsque fortūnās, ūna nox 320 paene dēlērit. Id nē umquam posthāc nōn modo cōnfici, sed nē cōgitārī quidem possit ā cīvibus, hodiernō diē prōvidendum est. Atque haec, nōn ut vōs, quī mihi studiō paene praecurritis, excitārem, locūtus sum, sed ut mea vōx, quae dēbet esse in rē pūblicā prīnceps, officiō 325 fūncta cōsulārī vidērētur.

Whatever may befall the consul, he will never repent of his course.

10. Nunc, antequam ad sententiam redeō, dē mē pauca dicam. Ego, quanta manus est coniūrātōrum, quam vidētis esse permāgnam, tantam mē inimīcōrum multitūdinem suscēpisse videō; sed eam esse iūdicō turpem et infirmam et abiectam. Quodsī ali- quandō alicūius furōre et scelere concitāta manus ista plūs valuerit quam vestra ac reī pūblicae dīgnitās, mē tamen meōrum factōrum atque cōnsiliōrum numquam, patrēs cōnscrīptī, paenitēbit. Etenim mors, quam illī fortasse minitantur, omnibus est parāta; vītae tantam laudem, quantā vōs mē vestrīs dēcrētīs honestāstis, nēmō est adsecūtus. Cēterī enim bene 350 gestā, mihi ūnī cōservātā rē pūblicā grātulātiōnem dēcrēvistis.

Sit Scipiō clārus ille, cūius cōnsiliō atque virtūte Hannibal in Āfricam redīre atque Ītaliā dēcēdere coāctus est; ornētur alter eximiā laude Āfricānus, quī duās urbēs huic 355 imperiō infēstissimās, Carthāginem Numantiamque, dēlēvit; habeātur vir ēgregius Paulus ille, cūius currum rēx potentissimus quondam et nōbilissimus Persēs honestāvit; sit aeternā glōriā Marius, quī bis Ītaliā obsidiōne et metū servitūtis liberāvit; antepōnātur omnibus Pompēius, cūiis rēs gestae atque virtūtēs īsdem quibus sōlis cursus 360 regiōnibus ac terminīs continentur; erit profectō inter hōrum laudēs aliquid locī nostrae glōriae, nisi forte māius est patefacere nōbīs prōvinciās quō exīre possīmus, quam cūrāre ut etiam illī qui absunt habeant quō victōrēs revertantur.

Quamquam est ūnō locō condiciō melior externae victōriae quam domesticae, quod hostēs aliēnigenae aut op̄pressi serviunt aut recepti in amīcitiam beneficiō sē obligātōs putant; qui autem ex numerō cīvium, dēmentiā aliquā dēprāvātī, hostēs patriae semel esse coepērunt, eōs 370 cum ā perniciē reī pūblicae reppuleris, nec vī coērcēre nec beneficiō plācāre possīs. Quārē mihi cum perditis cīvibus aeternum bellum susceptum esse videō. Id ego vestrō bonōrumque omnium auxiliō memoriāque tantōrum perī-culōrum, quae nōn modo in hōc populō qui servātus est, 375 sed in omnium gentium sermōnibus ac mentibus semper haerēbit, ā mē atque ā meis facile prōpulsārī posse cōnfīdō. Neque ūlla profectō tanta vīs reperiētur, quae coniūnciōnem vestram equitumque Rōmānōrum et tantam cōspirātiōnem bonōrum omnium cōnfringere et labefactāre 380 possit.

Cicero asks for nothing but the recollection of his consulship, and protection for his son.

11. Quae cum ita sint, prō imperiō, prō exercitū, prō prōvinciā quam neglēxi, prō triumphō cēterīsque laudis īsignibus, quae sunt ā mē propter urbis vestrāeque salūtis custōdiam repudiāta, prō clientēlīs hospitiīsque prō- 385 vinciālibus, quae tamen urbānīs opibus nōn minōre labōre tueor quam comparō, prō hīs igitur omnibus rēbus, prō meis in vōs singulāribus studiīs, prōque hāc quam perspīcītis ad cōservandam rem pūblicam diligentīā, nihil ā

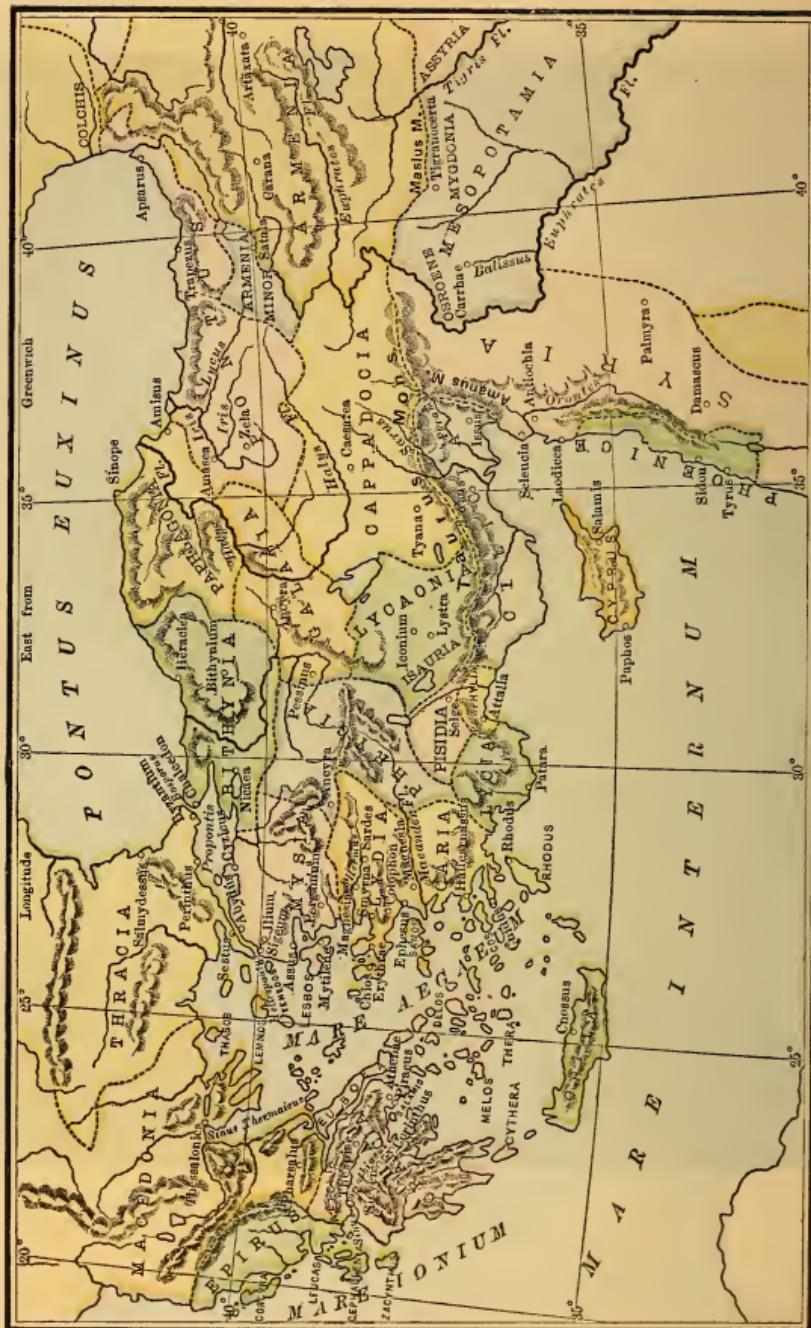

390 vōbīs nisi hūius temporis tōtiusque meī cōsulātūs memoriām postulō; quae dum erit in vestrīs fīxa mentibūs, tūtissimō mē mūrō saeptum esse arbitrābor. Quod sī meam spem vīs improbōrum fefellerit atque superāverit, commendō vōbīs parvūm meūm filium, cui profectō satis 395 erit praesidī nōn sōlum ad salūtem vērum etiam ad dīgnitātem, sī ēius, quī haec omnia suō sōlīus perīculō cōserves vārit, illum filium esse memineritis.

Quāpropter dē summā salūte vestrā populīque Rōmānī, dē vestrīs coniugībus ac liberīs, dē āris ac focīs, dē fānīs 400 atque templīs, dē tōtius urbīs tēctīs ac sēdibus, dē imperiō ac libertāte, dē salūte Italiae, dē ūniversā rē pūblicā dēcer-nite diligenter, ut īstituistis, ac fortiter. Habētis eum cōsulem quī et pārēre vestrīs dēcrētīs nōn dubitet et ea quae statueritis, quoad vivet, dēfendere et per sē ipsum 405 praestāre possit.

MARCUS TULLIUS CICERO
(From the bust in the Uffizi)

THE ROMAN EMPIRE IN GREECE AND ASIA MINOR

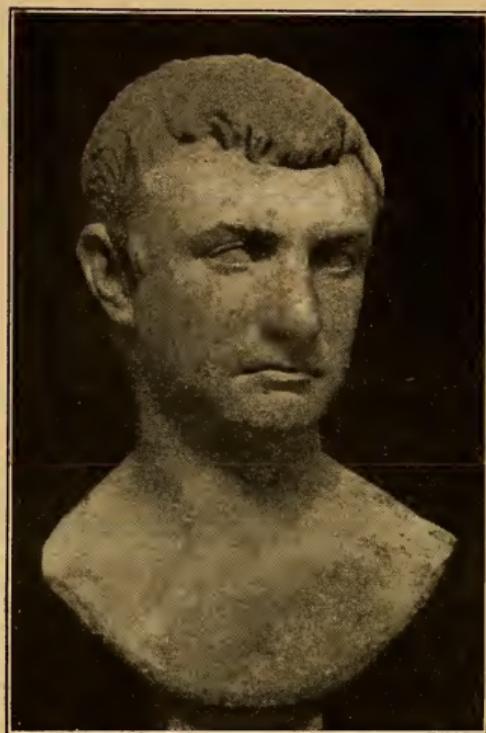

M. TULLI CICERONIS
DE IMPERIO CN. POMPEI
AD QUIRITES ORATIO

Cicero's first address before the popular assembly.

1. Quamquam mihi semper frequens conspectus vester multo iucundissimus, hic autem locus ad agendum amplissimus, ad dicendum ornatissimus est visus, Quirites, tamen hoc aditum laudis, qui semper optimo cuique maxime patuit, non mea me voluntas adhuc, sed vitae meae rationes ab ineunte aetate susceptae prohibuerunt. Nam cum anteā per aetatem nondum huius auctoritatem loci attingere audirem statueremque nihil huc nisi perfectum ingenio, elaboreatum industriā adferri oportere, omne meum tempus amicorum temporibus transmittendum putavi. 10 Ita neque hic locus vacuus umquam fuit ab eis qui vestram causam defendent, et meus labor in privatōrum periculis castē integrēque versatus ex vestro iudicio fructum est amplissimum consecutus. Nam cum propter dilatiōnem comitiōrum ter praetor primus centuriis cunctis renuntiatus sum, facile intellēxi, Quirites, et quid de me iudicaretis et quid aliis praescriberetis.

Nunc cum et auctoritatis in me tantum sit, quantum vos honib⁹ mandand⁹ esse voluistis, et ad agendum facultatis tantum, quantum homini vigilant⁹ ex forensi 20 usū prope cotidiāna dicendi exercitatiō potuit adferre, certe et si quid auctoritatis in me est, apud eos utar qui eam mihi dedērunt, et si quid in dicendō consequi possum, eīs ostendam potissimum quī eī quoque reī frūctum suō 25 iūdiciō tribuendum esse dūxērunt.

CN. POMPĒIUS

Atque illud in prīmīs mihi laetandum iūre esse videō, quod in hāc īsolitā mihi ex hōc locō ratiōne dīcendī causa tālis oblāta est in quā ōrātiō deesse nēminī possit. Dīcendum est enim dē Cn. Pompēi singulārī eximiāque virtūte; hūius autem ōrātiōnis diffīcilius est exitum quam pīncipium invenīre. Ita mihi nōn tam cōpia quam modus in dīcendō quaerendus est.

The situation in the East.
The main points to be considered.

2. Atque ut inde ōrātiō mea proficiscātur unde haec omnis causa dūcitur, bellum grave et perīculōsum vestrīs vectīgālibus ac sociīs 45 ā duōbus potentissimīs rēgibus īfertur, Mithridātē et Tigrāne, quōrum alter relictus, alter lacesſītus occāsiōnem sibi ad occupandam Asiam oblātam esse arbitrātur. Equitibus Rōmānīs, honestissimīs virīs, adferuntur ex Asiā cotīdiē litterae, quōrum māgnae rēs aguntur in 50 vestrīs vectīgālibus exercendīs occupātae; quī ad mē, prō necessitūdine quae mihi est cum illō ōrdine, causam reī pūblicae perīculaque rērum suārum dētulērunt; Bīthyniae, quae nunc vestra pīvincia est, vīcōs exūstōs esse complūrēs; rēgnū Ariobarzānis, quod fīnitimum est vestrīs vectīgālibus, tōtūm esse in hostiūm potestātē 55 L. Lūcullū māgnīs rēbus gestīs ab eō bellō discēdere; huic quī successerit nōn satis esse parātūm ad tantūm bellūm administrandum; ūnum ab omnibus sociīs et cīvībus ad id bellū imperātōrem dēposcī atque expetī, eundem hunc ūnum ab hostiūs metuī, praetereā nēminem. 60

Causa quae sit vidētis; nunc quid agendum sit cō-siderātē. Prīmū mihi vidētur dē genere bellī, deinde dē māgnitūdīne, tum dē imperātōre dēligendō esse dīcendum. Genus est enim bellī ēius modī quod māximē vestrōs animōs excitāre atque inflammāre ad persequendī studiū 65 dēbeat; in quō agitur populī Rōmānī glōria, quae vōbīs ā māiōribus cum māgna in omnibus rēbus tum summa in rē mīlitārī trādita est; agitur salūs sociōrum atque amīcōrum, prō quā multa māiōrēs vestrī māgna et gravia bella gessērunt; aguntur certissima populī Rōmānī vectī- 70 gālia et māxima, quibus āmissīs et pācis ḍornāmenta et subsidia bellī requīrētis; aguntur bona multōrum cīvium, quibus est ā vōbīs et ipsōrum et reī pūblicae causā cōsulendum.

The honor of Rome must be maintained.

3. Et quoniam semper appetentēs glōriae cēt- 75 erās gentēs atque avidī laudis fuistis, dēlenda est vōbīs illa macula Mithridāticō bellō superiōre concepta, quae penitus iam īsēdit ac nimis inveterāvit in populī Rōmānī nōmine, quod is quī ūnō diē, tōtā in Asiā, tot in cīvitātib⁹, ūnō nūntiō atque ūnā significātiōne litterārum cīvēs 80 Rōmānōs omnēs necandōs trucīdandōsque dēnotāvit, nōn modo adhūc poenam nūllam suō dīgnam scelere suscēpit, sed ab illō tempore annum iam tertium et vīcēsum rēgnat; et ita rēgnat ut sē nōn Pontī neque Cappadociae latebrīs occultāre velit, sed ēmergere ex patriō rēgnō 85 atque in vestrīs vectīgālibus, hōc est in Asiae lūce, versārī.

THE TRIUMPH OF A ROMAN GENERAL¹

(From a Roman sarcophagus)

Etenim adhuc ita nostri cum illo rege contendérunt imperatōrēs ut ab illo insignia victoriae, nōn victoriā reportārent. Triumphāvit L. Sulla, triumphāvit L. Mūrēna 90 dē Mithridāte, duo fortissimī virī et summī imperatōrēs, sed ita triumphārunt ut ille pulsus superātusque rēgnāret. Vērum tamen illis imperatōribus laus est tribuenda quod ēgērunt, venia danda quod reliquērunt, proptereā quod ab eō bellō Sullam in Italiām rēs pūblica, 95 Mūrēnam Sulla revocāvit.

The strength of Mithridates. The services of Pompey and Lucullus.

4. Mithridatēs autem omne reliquum tempus nōn ad obliviōnem veteris belli, sed ad comparatiōnem novī contulit; quī posteā, cum māximās aedificāset ornāassetque classēs exercitūsque permāgnōs quibuscumque ex gentibus potuisset comparāasset, et sē Bosporānīs, fīnitimīs suis, bellum īferre simulāret, ūsque in Hispāniām lēgātōs ac litterās mīsit ad eōs ducēs quibuscum tum bellum gerēbāmus, ut, cum duōbus in locīs disiūnetissimīs māximēque dīversīs ūnō cōnsiliō ā bīnīs hostium cōpiīs bellum

¹ Notice the captives kneeling; the crown and the palm, both emblematic of victory.

terrā marīque gererētur, vōs ancipitī contentiōne dīstrictī 105 dē imperiō dīmicārētis.

Sed tamen alterius partis perīculum, Sertōriānae atque Hispāniēnsis, quae multō plūs fīrmāmentī ac rōboris habēbat, Cn. Pompēi dīvīnō cōnsiliō ac singulārī virtūte dēpulsum est; in alterā parte ita rēs ā L. Lūcullō, summō virō, 110 est administrāta, ut initia illa rērum gestārum māgna atque praeclāra nōn fēlīcitātī ēius sed virtūtī, haec autem extrēma, quae nūper accidērunt, nōn culpae sed fortūnae tribuenda esse videantur. Sed dē Lūcullō dīcam aliō locō, et ita dīcam, Quirītēs, ut neque vēra laus eī dētrācta ḍrā- 115 tiōne meā neque falsa adfīcta esse videātur; dē vestrī imperī dīgnitātē atque glōriā, quoniam is est exōrsus ḍrātiōnis meae, vidēte quem vōbīs animū suscipiendum putētis.

The allies of Rome are in danger; they silently appeal for Pompey's aid.

5. Māiōrēs nostrī saepe mercātōribus aut nāviculārīs 120 nostrīs iniūriōsius trāctātis bella gessērunt; vōs, tot mīlibus cīvium Rōmānōrum ūnō nūntiō atque ūnō tempore necātis, quō tandem animō esse dēbētis? Lēgātī quod erant appellātī superbīus, Corinthum patrēs vestrī, tōtius Graeciae lūmen, exstīncfūm esse voluērunt; vōs eum 125 rēgem inultum esse patiēminī, quī lēgātūm populī Rō-mānī cōnsulārem vinculīs ac verberibus atque omnī suppliciō excrucīatum necāvit? Illī libertātem imminūtam cīvium Rōmānōrum nōn tulērunt; vōs ēreptam vītam neglegētis? Iūs lēgātiōnis verbō violātum illī persecūtī 130 sunt; vōs lēgātūm omnī suppliciō interfectum relinquētis?
Vidēte nē, ut illīs pulcherrimum fuit tantam vōbīs imperī glōriām trādere, sīc vōbīs turpissimum sit id quod accēpistis, tuērī et cōnservāre nōn posse.

Quid? Quod salūs sociōrum summum in perīculum ac 135 discrimen vocatur, quō tandem animō ferre dēbētis? Rēgnō est expulsus Ariobarzānēs rēx, socius populī Rōmānī atque amīcus; imminent duo rēgēs tōtī Asiae nōn sōlum vōbīs inimicissimī, sed etiam vestrīs sociīs atque 140 amīcīs; cīvitātēs autem omnēs cūnctā Asiā atque Graeciā vestrum auxilium exspectāre propter periculi māgnitūdinem cōguntur; imperatōrem ā vōbīs certum dēposcere, cum praesertim vōs alium mīseritis, neque audent neque sē id facere sine summō periculō posse arbitrantur. Vident 145 et sentiunt hōc idem quod vōs, ūnum virum esse in quō summa sint omnia, et eum propter esse, quō etiam carent aegrius; cūius adventū ipsō atque nōmine, tametsī ille ad maritimum bellum vēnerit, tamen impetūs hostium repressōs esse intellegunt ac retardatōs. Hī vōs, quoniam 150 liberē loquī nōn licet, tacitē rogant ut sē quoque, sīcūt cēterārum prōvinciārum sociōs, dīgnōs existimētis quōrum salūtem tālī virō commendētis; atque hōc etiam magis, quod cēterōs in prōvinciam ēius modī hominēs cum imperiō mittimus, ut etiamsī ab hoste dēfendant, tamen 155 ipsōrum adventūs in urbēs sociōrum nōn multum ab hostili expūgnatiōne differant. Hunc audiēbant anteā, nunc praesentem vident tantā temperantiā, tantā mānsuētudine, tantā hūmānitātē, ut eī bēatissimī esse videantur, apud quōs ille diūtissimē commorātur.

The revenues of the state are imperiled.

160 6. Quārē sī propter sociōs, nūllā ipsī iniūriā lacesſitī, māiōrēs nostrī cum Antiochō, cum Philippō, cum Aetōlis, cum Poenīs bella gessērunt, quantō vōs studiō convenit iniūriis prōvocatōs sociōrum salūtem ūnā cum imperi vestrī dignitātē dēfendere, praesertim cum dē māximīs 165 vestrīs vectigālibus agātur? Nam cēterārum prōvinciārum vectigālia, Quirītēs, tanta sunt ut eīs ad ipsās prōvinciās tūtandās vix contentī esse possīmus; Asia vērō tam opīma est ac fertilis, ut et ūbertāte agrōrum et varietāte frūctuum et māgnitūdine pāstiōnis et multitūdine eārum rērum quae exportentur facile omnibus terrīs antecellat.¹⁷⁰ Itaque haec vōbīs prōvincia, Quirītēs, sī et bellī ūtilitātem et pācis dīgnitātem retinēre vultis, nōn modo ā calamitāte sed etiam ā metū calamitātis est dēfendenda. Nam in cēterīs rēbus cum vēnit calamitās, tum dētrīmentum accipitur; at in vectīgālibus nōn sōlum adventus malī sed¹⁷⁵ etiam metus ipse adfert calamitātem. Nam cum hostium cōpiae nōn longē absunt, etiamsī irruptiō nūlla facta est, tamen pecuāria relinquitur, agrī cultūra dēseritur, mercā-tōrum nāvīgātiō conquiēscit. Ita neque ex portū nēque ex decumīs neque ex scriptūrā vectīgal cōservārī potest;¹⁸⁰ quārē saepe tōtīus annī frūctus ūnō rūmōre perīculī atque ūnō bellī terrōre āmittitur.

Quō tandem animō esse exīstimātis aut eōs qui vectīgālia nōbīs pēnsitant, aut eōs qui exercent atque exigunt, cum duo rēgēs cum māximīs cōpiīs propter adsint, cum¹⁸⁵ ūna excursiō equitātūs perbrevī tempore tōtīus annī vec-tīgal auferre possit, cum pūblicānī familiās māximās quās in saltibus habent, quās in agrīs, quās in portubus atque custōdiīs, māgnō perīculō sē habēre arbitrentur? Putātisne vōs illīs rēbus frūci posse, nisi eōs qui vōbīs frūctuī¹⁹⁰ sunt cōservāritis nōn sōlum, ut ante dīxī, calamitāte sed etiam calamitātis formīdine liberātōs?

The private fortunes of Roman citizens are affected.

7. Ac nē illud quidem vōbīs neglegendum est, quod mihi ego extrēmūm prōposueram cum essem dē bellī genere dictūrus, quod ad multōrum bona cīvium Rō-¹⁹⁵ mānōrum pertinet; quōrum vōbīs prō vestrā sapientiā, Quirītēs, habenda est ratiō diligenter. Nam et pūblicānī, hominēs honestissimī atque ornātissimī, suās ratiōnēs et cōpiās in illam prōvinciam contulērunt, quōrum ipsōrum 200 per sē rēs et fortūnae vōbīs cūrae esse dēbent. Etenim sī vectīgālia nervōs esse reī pūblicae semper dūximus, eum certē ūrdinēm quī exercent illa fīrmāmentum cēterōrum ūrdinūm rēctē esse dīcēmus.

Deinde ex cēterīs ūrdinībus hominēs gnāvī atque in-205 dustriī partim ipsī in Asiā negōtiantur, quibus vōs absentibus cōnsulere dēbētis, partim eōrum in eā prōvinciā pecūniās māgnās conlocātās habent. Est igitur hūmānitatis vestrae māgnūm numerūm eōrum cīvium calamitāte prohibēre, sapientiae vidēre multōrum cīvium calamitā-210 tem ā rē pūblicā sēiūnctam esse nōn posse. Etenim prīmum illud parvī rēfert, nōs pūblicānīs omissīs vectīgālia posteā victōriā recuperāre; neque enim īsdem redimendī facultās erit propter calamitātem neque aliīs voluntās propter timōrem.

215 Deinde, quod nōs eadem Asia atque idem iste Mithridātēs initiō belli Asiāticī docuit, id quidem certē calamitāte doctī memoriā retinēre dēbēmus. Nam tum, cum in Asiā rēs māgnās permultī āmiserant, scīmus Rōmae solūtiōne impedītā fidem concidisse. Nōn enim possunt ūnā 220 in cīvitāte multī rem ac fortūnās āmittere, ut nōn plūrēs sēcum in eandem trahant calamitātem. Ā quō periculō prohibēte rem pūblicam, et mihi crēdite, id quod ipsī vidētis: haec fidēs atque haec ratiō pecūniārum quae Rōmae, quae in forō versātur, implicāta est cum illīs 225 pecūniās Asiāticīs et cohaeret; ruere illa nōn possunt, ut haec nōn eōdem labefacta mōtū concidant. Quārē vidēte, num dubitandum vōbīs sit omnī studiō ad id bellum in-cumbere, in quō glōria nōminis vestrī, salūs sociōrum, vectīgālia māxima, fortūnae plūrimōrum cīvium coniūntae 230 cum rē pūblicā dēfendantur.

Lucullus must be praised for his great achievements.

8. Quoniam dē genere bellī dīxī, nunc dē māgnitūdine pauca dīcam. Potest enim hōc dīcī, bellī genus esse ita necessārium ut sit gerendum, nōn esse ita māgnūm ut sit pertimēscendum. In quō māximē labōrandū est nē forte ea vōbīs, quae dīlēgitissimē prōvidenda sunt, con-²³⁵ temnēda esse videantur. Atque ut omnēs intellegant mē L. Lūcullō tantum impertīre laudis, quantum fortī virō et sapientī hominī et māgnō imperātōrī dēbeātur, dīcō ēius adventū māximās Mithridātī cōpiās omnibus rēbus ḫornātās atque īstrūctās fuisse, urbemque Asiae²⁴⁰ clārissimam nōbīsque amīcissimam, Cīzcēnōrum, obsessam esse ab ipsō rēge māximā multitūdine et oppūgnātam vehementissimē, quam L. Lūcullus virtūte, assiduitāte, cōnsiliō, summīs obsidiōnis perīculīs liberāvit; ab eōdem imperātōre classem māgnam et ḫornātam, quae ducibus²⁴⁵ Sertōriānīs ad Ītaliām studiō īflammāta raperētur, superrātam esse atque dēpressam; māgnās hostium praetereā cōpiās multis proeliīs esse dēlētās, patefactumque nostrīs legiōnibus esse Pontū, quī anteā populō Rōmānō ex omnī aditū clausus fuisse; Sinōpēn atque Amīsum, qui-²⁵⁰ bus in oppidis erant domicilia rēgis, omnibus rēbus ḫornātās ac refertās, cēterāsque urbēs Pontī et Cappadociae permultās ūnō aditū adventūque esse captās; rēgem spoliātum rēgnō patriō atque avītō ad aliōs sē rēgēs atque ad aliās gentēs supplicem contulisse; atque haec omnia²⁵⁵ salvīs populī Rōmānī sociīs atque integrīs vectīgālibus esse gesta. Satis opinor haec esse laudis, atque ita, Quirītēs, ut hōc vōs intellegātis, ā nūllō istōrum quī huic obtrec-tant lēgī atque causae, L. Lūcullum similiter ex hōc locō esse laudātum.

The escape of Mithridates, the rising of many eastern nations, the retreat of Lucullus, and the defeat of part of his army.

9. Requīrētur fortasse nunc quem ad modum, cum haec ita sint, reliquum possit māgnum esse bellum. Cognōscite, Quirītēs; nōn enim hōc sine causā quaerī vidētur. Prīmum ex suō rēgnō sīc Mithridātēs profūgit, 265 ut ex eōdem Pontō Mēdēa illa quondam profūgisse dīcitur, quam praedicant in fugā frātris suī membra in eīs locīs, quā sē parēns persequerētur, dissipāvisse, ut eōrum collēctiō dispersa maerorque patrius celeritātem persequendī retardāret. Sīc Mithridātēs fugiēns māximam vim aurī 270 atque argentī pulcherrimārumque rērum omnium, quās et ā māiōribus accēperat et ipse bellō superiōre ex tōtā Asiā dīreptās in suum rēgnūm congesserat, in Pontō omnem reliquit. Haec dum nostrī colligunt omnia dīlēgitius, rēx ipse ē manibus effūgit. Ita illum in persequendī studiō 275 maeror, hōs laetitia tardāvit.

Hunc in illō timōre et fugā Tigrānēs, rēx Armenius, excēpit diffīdentemque rēbus suīs cōfīrmāvit et adflīctum ērēxit perditumque recreāvit. Cūius in rēgnūm posteā- 280 quam L. Lūcullus cum exercitū vēnit, plūrēs etiam gentēs contrā imperātōrem nostrum concitātae sunt. Erat enim metus iniectus eīs nātiōnībus quās numquam popu- lus Rōmānus neque lacessendās bellō neque temptandās putāvit; erat etiam alia gravis atque vehemēns opīniō quae animōs gentium barbarārum pervāserat, fānī locu- 285 plētissimī et religiōsissimī dīripiendī causā in eās ōrās nos- trum esse exercitū adductum. Ita nātiōnēs multae atque māgnæ novō quōdam terrōre ac metū concitābantur. Noster autem exercitus, tametsī urbē ex Tigrānis rēgnō cēperat et proeliī ūsus erat secundīs, tamen nimiā longin- 290 quitāte locōrum ac dēsideriō suōrum commovēbātur.

Hic iam plūra nōn dīcam; fuit enim illud extrēmum, ut ex eīs locīs ā militibus nostrīs reditus magis mātūrus quam prōcessiō longior quaererētur. Mithridātēs autem et suam manum iam cōfirmārat, et eōrum quī sē ex 295 ipsius rēgnō collēgerant, et māgnīs adventīciis auxiliīs multōrum rēgum et nātiōnum iuvābātur. Nam hōc ferē sīc fierī solēre accēpimus, ut rēgum adflīctae fortūnae facile multōrum opēs adlicant ad misericordiam, māxi-mēque eōrum quī aut rēgēs sunt aut vivunt in rēgnō, ut 300 eīs nōmen rēgāle māgnū et sāncutū esse videātur. Itaque tantum victus efficere potuit quantum incolumis numquam est ausus optāre. Nam cum sē in rēgnū suū recēpisset, nōn fuit eō contentus quod eī praeter spēm acciderat, ut illam, posteāquam pulsus erat, terram 305 umquam attingeret, sed in exercitū nostrū clārum atque victōrem impetum fēcit.

Sinite hōc locō, Quirītēs, sīcut poētae solent quī rēs Rōmānās scribunt, praeterire mē nostrā calamitātem, quae tanta fuit ut eam ad aurēs imperātōris nōn ex proeliō 310 nūntiūs, sed ex sermōne rūmor adferret. Hic in illō ipsō malō gravissimāqūe bellī offēnsiōne L. Lūcullus, quī tamen aliquā ex parte eīs incommodīs medērī fortasse potuisset, vestrō iussū coāctus, quod imperī diūturnitātī modum statuendum vetere exemplō putāvistis, partem 315 mīlitūm quī iam stīpendiīs cōflectī erant dīmīsit, partem M'. Glabriōnī trādīdit.

Multa praetereō cōnsultō, sed ea vōs coniectūrā per-spicie, quantum illud bellū factū putētis, quod coniungant rēgēs potentissimī, renovent agitātēs nātiōnēs, 320 suscipiant integrae gentēs, novus imperātor nōster accipiat vetere exercitū pulsō.

In Pompey are the four qualifications of a good general. First: knowledge of warfare.

10. Satis mihi multa verba fēcisse videor quārē esset hōc bellum genere ipsō necessārium, māgnitūdine perīculōsum; restat ut dē imperātōre ad id bellum dēligendō ac tantīs rēbus praeſiciendō dīcendum esse videātur. 325 Utinam, Quirītēs, virōrum fortium atque innocentium cōpiam tantam habērētis ut haec vōbīs dēliberātiō difficilis esset, quemnam potissimum tantīs rēbus ac tantō bellō praeſiciendum putārētis! Nunc vērō cum sit ūnus Cn. Pompēius quī nōn modo eōrum hominum quī nunc sunt 330 glōriam, sed etiam antīquitātis memoriam virtūte superārit, quae rēs est quae cūiusquam animum in hāc causā dubium facere possit? Ego enim sīc exīstīmō, in summō imperātōre quattuor hās rēs inesse oportēre, scientiam reī mīlitāris, virtūtem, auctōritātem, fēlīcitātem. 335

Quis igitur hōc homine scientior umquam aut fuit aut esse dēbuit? quī ē lūdō atque pueritiae disciplinīs bellō māximō atque ācerrimīs hostibus ad patris exercitum atque in mīlitiae disciplinā profectus est; quī extrēmā pueritiā mīles in exercitū fuit summi imperātōris, ineunte 340 adulēscētiā māximī ipse exercitūs imperātor; quī saepius cum hoste cōflīxit quam quisquam cum inimīcō concer-tāvit, plūra bella gessit quam cēterī lēgērunt, plūrēs prō-vinciās cōfēcit quam aliī concupīvērunt; cūius adulēscētia ad scientiam reī mīlitāris nōn alienīs praeceptīs, 345 sed suīs imperiīs, nōn offēnsiōnibus bellī, sed victōriīs, nōn stīpendiīs, sed triumphīs est ērudīta. Quod dēnique genus esse bellī potest in quō illum nōn exercuerit fortūna reī pūblicae? Cīvile, Āfricānum, Trānsalpīnum, His-pāniēnse mixtum ex cīvitātibus atque ex bellicōsissimīs 350 nātiōnibus, servile, nāvāle bellum, varia et dīversa genera et bellōrum et hostium nōn sōlum gesta ab hōc ūnō sed etiam cōfecta nūllam rem esse dēclārant in ūsū positam militārī, quae hūius virī scientiam fugere possit.

Second qualification : ability. Pompey's is attested by many nations.

355 11. Iam vērō virtūtī Cn. Pompēi quae potest ḍrātiō pār invenīrī? Quid est quod quisquam aut illō dīgnū aut vōbīs novum aut cuiquam inaudītūm possit adferre? Neque enim illae sunt sōlae virtūtēs imperātōriæ quae vulgō exīstīmantur, labor in negōtiīs, fortitūdō in perīculīs, industria in agendō, celeritās in cōficiendō, cōsiliūm in prōvidendō; quae tanta sunt in hōc ūnō quanta in omnibus reliquīs imperātōribus, quōs aut vīdimus aut audīvimus, nōn fuērunt.

Testis est Ītalia, quam ille ipse victor L. Sulla hūius 365 virtūte et subsidiō cōfessus est līberātam. Testis est Sicilia, quam multīs undique cīnctam perīculīs nōn terrōre bellī sed cōnsiliū celeritātē explicāvit. Testis est Āfrica, quae māgnīs oppressa hostium cōpiīs eōrum ipsōrum sanguine redundāvit. Testis est Gallia, per quam legiōni 370 bus nostrīs iter in Hispāniām Gallōrum internečiōne patefactum est. Testis est Hispaniā, quae saepissimē plūrimōs hostēs ab hōc superātōs prōstrātōsque cōnspexit. Testis est iterum et saepius Ītalia, quae, cum servīlī bellō taetrō perīculōsōque premerētur, ab hōc auxilium absente ex 375 petīvit; quod bellum exspectātiōne ēius attenuātum atque imminūtum est, adventū sublātum ac sepultum. Testēs nunc vērō iam omnēs sunt ḍrae atque omnēs exterae gentēs ac nātiōnēs, dēnique maria omnia cum ūniversa, tum in singulīs ūrīs omnēs sinūs atque portūs.

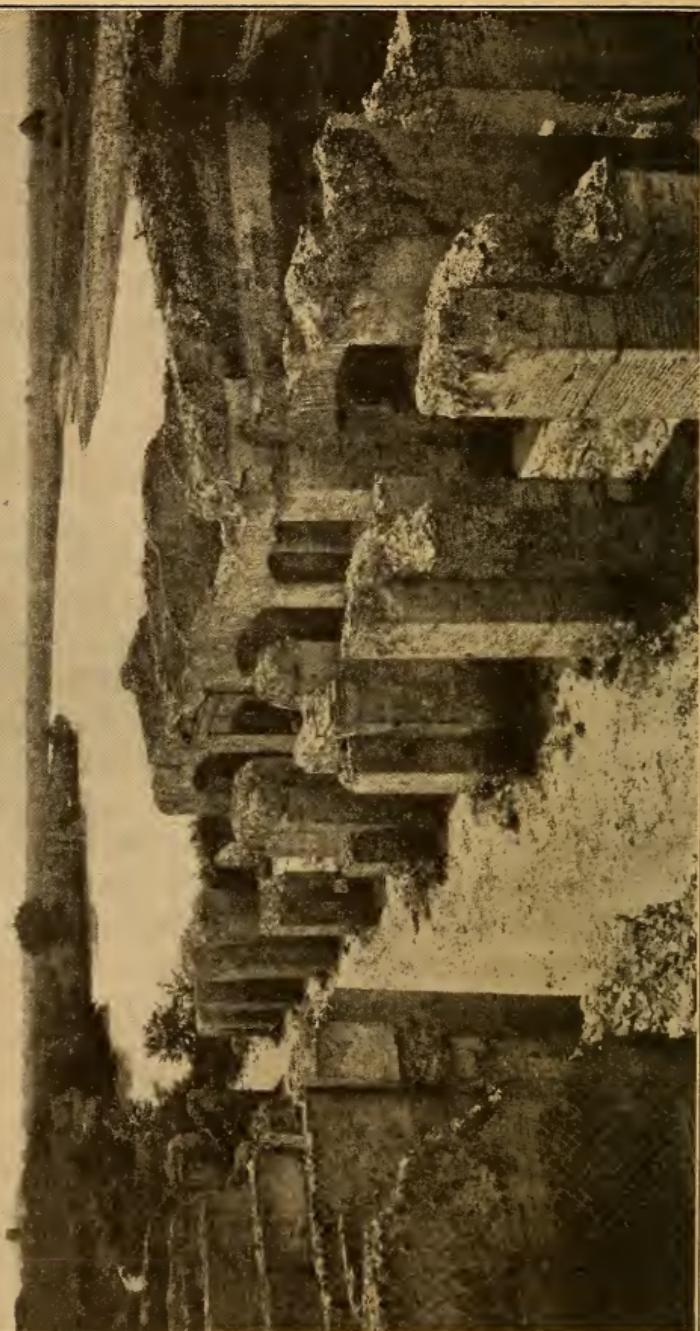

380 Quis enim tōtō marī locus per hōs annōs aut tam fīrmum habuit praesidium ut tūtus esset, aut tam fuit abditus ut latēret? Quis nāvigāvit quī nōn sē aut mortis aut servitūtis perīculō committeret, cum aut hieme aut refertō praedōnum marī nāvigāret? Hōc tantum bellum, tam turpe, tam vetus, tam lātē dīvīsum atque dīspersum, quis 385 umquam arbitrārētur aut ab omnibus imperātōribus ūnō annō aut omnibus annīs ab ūnō imperātōre cōnfici posse ?

 Quam prōvinciam tenuistis ā praedōnibus liberam per hōsce annōs ? Quod vectīgal vōbīs tūtum fuit ? Quem socium dēfendistis ? Cui praeſidiō classibus vestrīs fuistis ? 390 Quam multās exīstimātis īnſulās esse dēſertās, quam multās aut metū relictās aut ā praedōnibus captās urbēs esse sociōrum ?

The long struggle with the pirates was soon ended by Pompey.

12. Sed quid ego longinqua commemorō ? Fuit hōc quondam, fuit proprium populi Rōmānī longē ā domō 395 bellāre et prōpūgnāculīs imperī sociōrum fortūnās, nōn sua tēcta dēfendere. Sociīs ego nostrīs mare per hōs annōs clausum fuisse dīcam, cum exercitūs vestrī numquam ā Brundisiō nisi hieme summā trānsmiserint ? Qui ad vōs ab exterīs nātiōnibus venīrent, captōs querar, cum 400 lēgātī populi Rōmānī redēmptī sint ? Mercātōribus tūtum mare nōn fuisse dīcam, cum duodecim secūrēs in praēdōnum potestātem pervēnerint ? Cnidum aut Colophō-nem aut Samum, nōbilissimās urbēs, innumerābileſque aliās captās esse commemorem, cum vestrōs portūs, atque 405 eōs portūs quibus vītam ac spīritum dūcītis, in praedōnum fuisse potestāte sciātis ? An vērō ignōrātis portum Cāiētae celeberrimum ac plēnissimum nāvium īspectante praē-tōre ā praedōnibus esse dīreptum ; ex Mīsēnō autem ēius ipsius liberōs, qui cum praedōnibus anteā ibi bellum 410 gesserat, ā praedōnibus esse sublātōs ? Nam quid ego Ostiēnse incommodum atque illam lābem atque ignō-miniam reī pūblicae querar, cum prope īspectantibus vōbīs classis ea cui cōnsul populi Rōmānī praepositus esset, ā praedōnibus capta atque oppressa est ? Prō dī 415 immortālēs ! tantamne ūnius hominis incrēdibilis ac

OSTIA, SHOWING THE RIVER AND THE RUINED SHOPS

dīvīna virtūs tam brevī tempore lūcem adferre reī pūblicae potuit, ut vōs quī modo ante ūstium Tiberīnum classem hostium vidēbātis, eī nunc nūllam intrā Ōceanī ūstium praedōnum nāvem esse audiātis ?

Atque haec quā celeritāte gesta sint quamquam vidētis, tamen ā mē in dīcendō praetereunda nōn sunt. Quis enim umquam aut obeundī negōtī aut cōnsequendī quaestūs studiō tam brevī tempore tot loca adīre, tantōs cursūs cōnficere potuit, quam celeriter Cn. Pompēiō duce tantī 425 bellī impetus nāvigāvit ? Qui nōndum tempestīvō ad nāvigandum marī Siciliam adiit, Africam explōrāvit, in Sardiniam cum classe vēnit, atque haec tria frūmentāria subsidia reī pūblicae firmissimīs praesidiīs classibusque mūnīvit. Inde cum sē in Ītaliā recēpisset, duābus His- 430 pāniīs et Galliā Trānsalpīnā praesidiīs ac nāvibus cōfīrmātā, missīs item in ūram Illyricī maris et in Achāiam omnemque Graeciam nāvibus, Ītaliae duo maria māximīs classibus firmissimīsque praesidiīs adōrnāvit ; ipse autem ut Brundisiō profectus est, ūndēquīnquāgēsimō diē tōtam 435 ad imperium populi Rōmānī Ciliciam adiūnxit ; omnēs quī ubīque praedōnēs fuērunt, partim captī interfictīque sunt, partim ūnius hūius sē imperiō ac potestātī dēdidērunt. Idem Crētēnsibus, cum ad eum ūisque in Pamphylīam lēgātōs dēprecātōrēsque mīsissent, spēm dēditiōnis nōn 440 adēmit obsidēsque imperāvit. Ita tantum bellum, tam diūturnum, tam longē lātēque dispersum, quō bellō omnēs gentēs ac nātiōnēs premēbantur, Cn. Pompēius extrēmā hieme apparāvit, ineunte vēre suscēpit, mediā aestāte cōnfēcit.

445

Pompey's moral qualities. His scrupulous honesty.

13. Est haec dīvīna atque incrēdibilis virtūs imperātōris. Quid ? Cēterae quās paulō ante commemorāre cooperam, quantae atque quam multae sunt ? Nōn enim bellandī virtūs sōlum in summō ac perfectō imperātōre 450 quaerenda est, sed multae sunt artēs eximiae hūius ad-ministrae comitēsque virtūtis. Ac pŕimum quantā innocentiā dēbent esse imperātōrēs, quantā deinde in omnibus rēbus temperantiā, quantā fidē, quantā facilitāte, quantō ingeniō, quantā hūmānitāte ! Quae breviter quālia sint 455 in Cn. Pompēiō cōnsiderēmus. Summa enim omnia sunt, Quirītēs, sed ea magis ex aliōrum contentiōne quam ipsa per sēsē cognōscī atque intellegī possunt.

Quem enim imperātōrem possumus ūllō in numerō putāre cūius in exercitū centuriātūs vēneant atque vēnie-460 rint ? Quid hunc hominem māgnū aut amplū dē rē pūblicā cōgitāre, quī pecūniā ex aerāriō dēprōmptam ad bellū administrandum aut propter cupiditātem prōvinciae magistrātibus dīviserit aut propter avāritiam Rōmae in quaestū relīquerit ? Vestra admurmurātiō facit, 465 Quirītēs, ut agnōscere videāminī quī haec fēcerint ; ego autem nōminō nēminem ; quārē īrāscī mihi nēmō poterit, nisi quī ante dē sē voluerit cōnfitērī. Itaque propter hanc avāritiam imperātōrum quantās calamitātēs, quōcumque ventum sit, nostrī exercitūs ferant, quis ignōrat ? Itinera 470 quae per hōsce annōs in Ītaliā per agrōs atque oppida cīvium Rōmānōrum nostrī imperātōrēs fēcerint, recordā-minī ; tum facilius statuētis quid apud exterās nātiōnēs fierī exīstīmētis. Utrum plūrēs arbitrāminī per hōsce annōs mīlitum vestrōrum armīs hostiū urbēs an hīber-475 nīs sociōrum cīvitātēs esse dēlētās ? Neque enim potest exercitū is continēre imperātor quī sē ipse nōn continent, neque sevērus esse in iūdicandō quī aliōs in sē sevērōs esse iūdicēs nōn vult.

Hīc mīrāmur hunc hominem tantum excellere cēterīs, 480 cūius legiōnēs sīc in Asiam pervēnerint ut nōn modo manus tantī exercitūs sed nē vēstīgium quidem cuiquam pācātō nocuisse dīcātur ? Iam vērō quem ad modum militēs hībernent, cotīdiē sermōnēs ac litterae perferuntur; nōn modo ut sūmptum faciat in mīlitem nēminī vīs adfertur, sed nē cupientī quidem cuiquam permittitur. Hiemis 485 enim, nōn avāritiae perfugium māiōrēs nostrī in sociōrum atque amīcōrum tēctīs esse voluērunt.

His self-control, good faith, and kindness.

14. Age vērō, cēterīs in rēbus quā sit temperantiā, cōnsiderāte. Unde illam tantam celeritātem et tam incrēdibilem cursum inventum putātis? Nōn enim illum 490 eximia vīs rēmigum aut ars inaudīta quaedam gubernandi aut ventī aliquī novī tam celeriter in ultimās terrās pertulērunt, sed eae rēs quae cēterōs remorārī solent nōn retardārunt; nōn avāritia ab īstitūtō cursū ad praedam aliquam dēvocāvit, nōn libīdō ad voluptātem, nōn amoeni- 495 tās ad dēlectātiōnem, nōn nōbilitās urbīs ad cognitiōnem, nōn dēnique labor ipse ad quiētem; postrēmō sīgna et tabulās cēteraque ḥrnāmenta Graecōrum oppidōrum, quae cēterī tollenda esse arbitrantur, ea sibi ille nē vīsenda quidem existimāvit. 500

Itaque omnēs nunc in eīs locīs Cn. Pompēium sīeut aliquem nōn ex hāc urbe missum, sed dē caelō dēlāpsum intuentur. Nunc dēnique incipiunt crēdere fuisse hominēs Rōmānōs hāc quondam continentiā, quod iam nātiōnibus exterīs incrēdibile ac falsō memoriae prōditum vidēbātur. 505 Nunc imperī vestrī splendor illīs gentibus lūcem adferre coepit. Nunc intellegunt nōn sine causā māiōrēs suōs tum, cum eā temperantiā magistrātūs habēbāmus, servīre populō Rōmānō quam imperāre aliis māluisse. Iam vērō ita facilēs aditūs ad eum prīvātōrum, ita līberae queri- 510 mōniae dē aliōrum iniūriīs esse dīcuntur, ut is, qui dīgnitāte pīncipibūs excellit, facilitāte īfīmīs pār esse videātur.

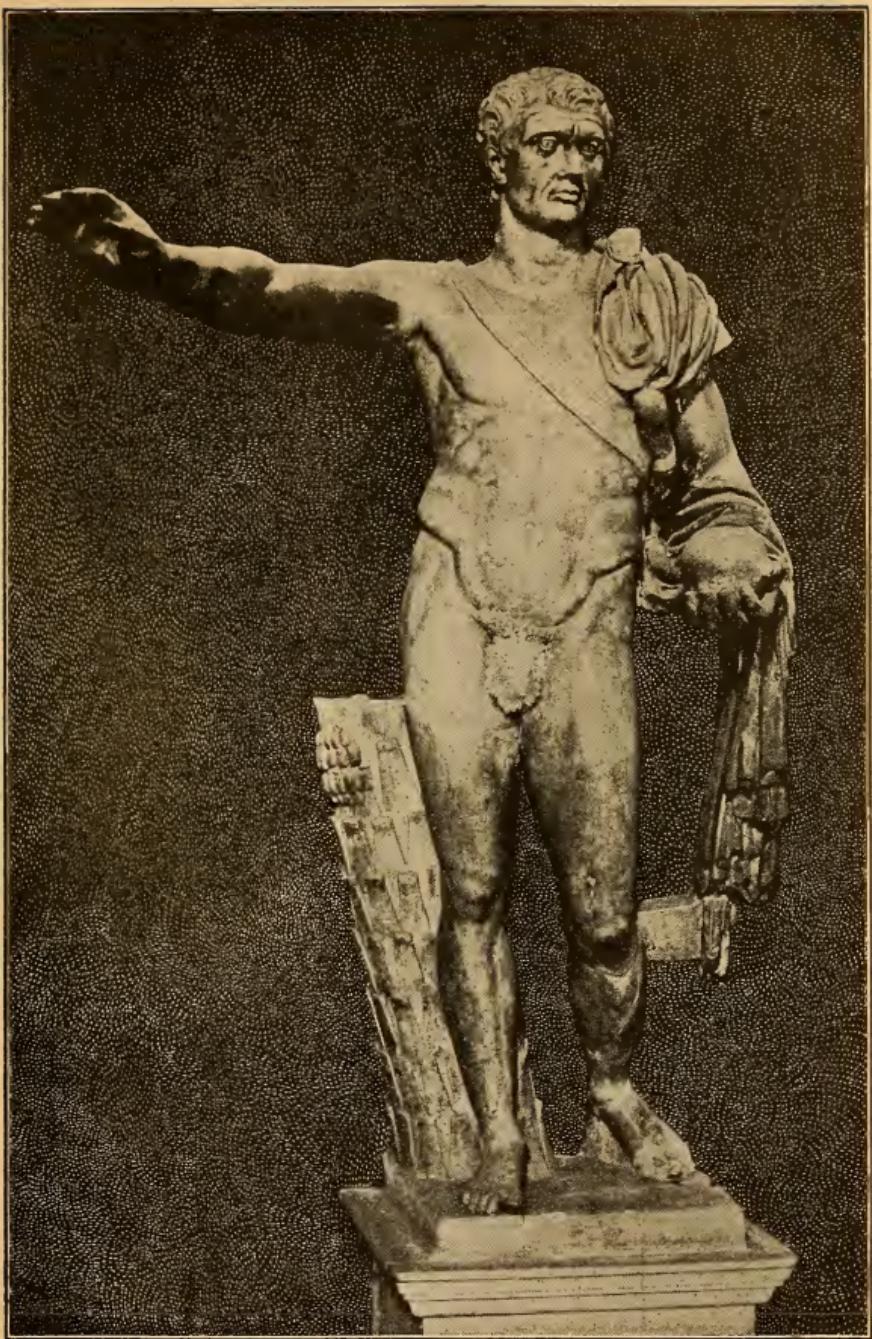

Iam quantum cōnsiliō, quantum dīcendī gravitāte et 515 cōpiā valeat, in quō ipsō inest quaedam dīgnitās imperātōria, vōs, Quirītēs, hōc ipsō ex locō saepe cognōvistis. Fidem vērō ēius quantam inter sociōs exīstīmārī putātis, quam hostēs omnēs omnium generum sāctissimam iūdīcārint? Hūmānitātē iam tantā est ut difficile dictū sit 520 utrum hostēs magis virtūtem ēius pūgnantēs timuerint an mānsuētūdinem victī dīlēixerint. Et quisquam dubitābit quīn huic hōc tantum bellum trānsmittendum sit, quī ad omnia nostrae memoriae bella cōficienda dīvīnō quōdam cōnsiliō nātus esse videātur?

Third qualification of a general: personal influence.

525 15. Et quoniam auctōritās quoque in bellīs adminis-trāndīs multum atque in imperiō militārī valet, certē nēminī dubium est quīn eā rē idem ille imperātor plūrīmū possit. Vehementer autem pertinēre ad bella adminis-trāndā' quid hostēs, quid sociī dē imperātōribus nostrīs 530 exīstīment, quis ignōrat, cum sciāmus hominēs in tantīs rēbus ut aut contemnānt aut metuant aut ūderint aut ament opīniōne nōn minus et fāmā quam aliquā ratiōne certā commovērī? Quod igitur nōmen umquam in orbe terrārum clārius fuit? Cūius rēs gestae parēs? Dē quō 535 homine vōs, id quod māximē facit auctōritātem, tanta et tam praeclāra iūdicia fēcīstis? An vērō ūllam ūsquā esse ūram tam dēsertam putātis quō nōn illiū diēi fāma pervāserit, cum ūniversus populus Rōmānus, refertō forō complētīsque omnibus templīs, ex quibus hīc locus cōn-540 spicī potest, ūnum sibi ad commūnē omnium gentium bellum Cn. Pompēiūm imperātōrem dēpoposcit?

Itaque, ut plūra nōn dīcam neque aliōrum exemplīs cōfīrmē quantum auctōritās valeat in bellō, ab eōdem Cn. Pompēiō omnium rērum ēgregiārum exempla sūmanet cāritāte reī frūmentāiae cōnsecūta est ūnius hominis spē ac nōmine, quantam vix ex summā ūbertāte agrōrum diūturna pāx efficere potuisse.

550 Iam acceptā in Pontō calamitāte ex eō proeliō dē quō vōs paulō ante invītus admonuī, cum sociī pertimuisserent, hostium opēs animīque crēvissent, satis fīrmum praeſidium prōvinciā nōn habēret, āmīssētis Asiam, Quirītēs, nisi ad ipsum discrīmen ēius temporis dīvīnitus Cn. Pompēium ad eās regiōnēs fortūna populi Rōmānī attulisse. Hūiis adventus et Mithridātem īsolitā īflammātum victōriā continuit et Tigrānem māgnīs cōpiīs minitantem Asiae retardāvit. Et quisquam dubitābit quid virtūte perfec-tūrus sit, quī tantum auctōritāte perfēcerit, aut quam facile imperiō atque exercitū sociōs et vectīgālia cōservātūrus sit, quī ipsō nōmine ac rūmōre dēfenderit?

FORTUNA

Fourth qualification of a general: good fortune.

16. Age vērō illa rēs quantum dēclārat ēiusdem hominis apud hostēs populī Rōmānī auctōritātem, quod ex locīs tam longinquīs tamque dīversīs tam brevī tempore omnēs huic sē ūni dēdidērunt ! Quod Crētēnsium lēgātī, cum in eōrum īsulā noster imperātor exercitusque esset, ad Cn. Pompēium in ultimās prope terrās vēnērunt, eīque sē omnēs Crētēnsium cīvitātēs dēdere velle dīxērunt ! Quid ? Idem iste Mithridātēs nōnne ad eundem Cn. Pompēium lēgātūm ūsque in Hispāniām mīsit ? Eum quem Pompēius lēgātūm semper iūdicāvit, eī quibus erat molestum ad eum potissimum esse missum, speculā-tōrem quam lēgātūm iūdicārī māluērunt ? Potestis igitur iam cōstituere, Quirītēs, hanc auctōritātem, multīs posteā 605 rēbus gestīs māgnīsque vestrīs iūdiciīs amplificātam, quantum apud illōs rēgēs, quantum apud exterās nātiōnēs valitūram esse existimētis.

Reliquum est ut dē fēlicitāte, quam praestāre dē sē ipsō nēmō potest, meminisse et commemorāre dē alterō 610 possumus, sīcut aequum est hominēs dē potestāte deōrum, timidē et pauca dīcāmus. Ego enim sīc exīstīmō, Māximō, Mārcellō, Scīpiōnī, Mariō, et cēterīs māgnīs imperātōribus nōn sōlum propter virtūtem sed etiam propter fortūnam 615 saepius imperia mandāta atque exercitūs esse commissōs. Fuit enim profectō quibusdam summīs virīs quaedam ad amplitūdinem et ad glōriam et ad rēs māgnās bene gerendās dīvīnitus adiūncta fortūna. Dē hūius autem hominis fēlīcitāte, dē quō nunc agimus, hāc ūtar moderātiōne 620 dicendī, nōn ut in illīus potestāte fortūnam positam esse dīcam, sed ut praeterita meminisse, reliqua spērāre videāmur, nē aut invīsa dīs immortālibus ērātiō nostra aut ingrāta esse videātur.

Itaque nōn sum praedicātūrus quantās ille rēs domī 625 mīlitiae, terrā marīque quantāque fēlīcitāte gesserit, ut ēius semper voluntātibus nōn modo cīvēs adsēnserint, sociī obtemperārint, hostēs oboedierint, sed etiam ventī tempestātēsque obsecundārint. Hōc brevissimē dīcam, nē minem umquam tam impudentem fuisse, quī ab dīs im- 630 mortālibus tot et tantās rēs tacitus audēret optāre, quot et quantās dī immortālēs ad Cn. Pompēium dētulērunt. Quod ut illī proprium ac perpetuum sit, Quirītēs, cum commūnis salūtis atque imperī tum ipsīus hominis causā, sīcūtī facitis, velle et optāre dēbētis.

635 Quārē cum et bellum sit ita necessārium ut neglegī nōn possit, ita māgnum ut accūrātissimē sit administrandum, et cum eī imperātōrem praeficere possītis, in quō sit eximia bellī scientia, singulāris virtūs, clārissima auctōritās, ēgregia fortūna, dubitātis, Quirītēs, quīn hōc 640 tantum bonī, quod vōbīs ab dīs immortālibus oblātum et datum est, in rem pūblicam cōnservandam atque amplificandam cōferātis?

Pompey's advantage of being near the enemy. The objections of Catulus and Hortensius.

17. Quodsi Rōmae Cn. Pompēius privātus esset hōc tempore, tamen ad tantum bellum is erat dēligendus atque mittendus; nunc cum ad cēterās summās ūtilitātēs haec 645 quoque opportūnitās adiungātur, ut in eīs ipsīs locīs adsit, ut habeat exercitum, ut ab eīs quī habent accipere statim possit, quid exspectāmus? Aut cūr nōn ducibus dīs immortālibus eīdem, cui cētera summā cum salūte reī pūblicae commissa sunt, hōc quoque bellum rēgium committāmus?

At enim vir clārissimus, amantissimus reī pūblicae, vestrīs beneficiīs amplissimīs adfectus, Q. Catulus, itemque summīs ornāmentīs honōris, fortūnae, virtūtis, ingenī praeditus, Q. Hortēnsius, ab hāc ratiōne dissentunt. Quōrum ego auctōritātem apud vōs multīs locīs plūrimū valuisse et valēre oportēre cōfiteor; sed in hāc causā, tametsī cognōscētis auctōritātēs contrāriās virōrum fortissimōrum et clārissimōrum, tamen omissīs auctōritātibus ipsā rē ac ratiōne exquirēre possumus vēritātem, atque 670 hōc facilius, quod ea omnia quae ā mē adhūc dicta sunt, īdem istī vēra esse concēdunt, et necessārium bellum esse et māgnum et in ūnō Cn. Pompēiō summa esse omnia.

QUINTUS HORTENSIUS

Quid igitur ait Hortēnsius? Sī ūnī omnia tribuenda 675 sint, dīgnissimum esse Pompeium, sed ad ūnum tamen omnia dēferrī nōn oportēre. Obsolēvit iam ista ōrātiō, rē multō magis quam verbīs refūtāta. Nam tū idem,
 Q. Hortēnsī, multa prō tuā summā cōpiā ac singulāri

 680 Gabīnium, graviter ōrnātēque dīxistī, cum is dē ūnō im perātōre contrā praedōnēs cōnstituendō lēgem prōmul gāsset, et ex hōc ipsō locō permulta item contrā eam lēgem verba fēcistī. Quid? Tum, per deōs immortālēs, sī plūs apud populum Rōmānum auctōritās tua quam 685 ipsīus populī Rōmānī salūs et vēra causa valuissest, hodiē hanc glōriam atque hōc orbis terrae imperium tenēremus?
 An tibi tum imperium hōc esse vidēbātur, cum populī Rōmānī lēgātī, quaestōrēs praetōrēsque capiēbantur, cum ex omnibus prōvinciīs commeātū et privātō et pūblicō 690 prohibēbāmur, cum ita clausa nōbīs erant maria omnia ut neque privātam rem trānsmarīnam neque pūblicam iam obīre possēmus?

The law of Gabinus restored Roman naval supremacy.

18. Quae cīvitās anteā umquam fuit, — nōn dīcō Athēniēnsium, quae satis lātē quondam mare tenuisse maritimīs rēbus valuerunt; nōn Rhodiōrum, quōrum ūsque ad nostrā memoriam disciplina nāvālis et glōria remānsit, — quae cīvitās, inquam, anteā tam tenuis, quae tam parva īinsula fuit quae nōn portūs suōs et agrōs et 700 aliquam partem regiōnis atque ūrae maritimae per sē ipsa dēfenderet? At hercule aliquot annōs continuōs ante lēgem Gabīniam ille populus Rōmānus, cūius ūsque ad nostrā memoriam nōmen invictum in nāvālibus pūgnīs permānsērit, māgnā ac multō māximā parte nōn modo

 715 parva, sine mūrō, nihil timēbat, idem nōn modo prōvinciīs atque ūrīs Ītaliae maritimīs ac portub⁹s nostrīs, sed etiam Appiā iam Viā carēbāmus; et eīs temporib⁹s nōn pudēbat magistratūs populi Rōmānī in hunc ipsum locum ēscendere, cum eum nōbīs māiōrēs nostrī exuviīs 720 nauticīs et classium spoliīs īrnātūm reliquissent!

The question of appointing Gabinius as Pompey's lieutenant.

19. Bonō tē animō tum, Q. Hortēnsī, populus Rōmānus et cēterōs quī erant in eādem sententiā dīcere exīstīmāvit ea quae sentiēbātis; sed tamen in salūte commūnī idem populus Rōmānus dolōrī suō māluit quam auctōritatī vestrae obtemperāre. Itaque ūna lēx, ūnus vir, ūnus annus nōn modo nōs illā miseriā ac turpitūdine liberāvit, sed etiam effēcit ut aliquandō vērē vidērēmur omnibus gentibus ac nātiōnibus terrā marīque imperāre.

Quō mihi etiam indīgnius vidētur obtrectātūm esse 730 adhūc — Gabiniō dīcam anne Pompēiō an utrīque, id quod est vērius? — nē lēgārētur A. Gabinius Cn. Pompeiō expetentī ac postulantī. Utrum ille, quī postulat ad tantum bellum lēgātūm quem velit, idōneus nōn est quī impetret, cum cēterī ad expīlandōs sociōs dīripiendāsque perātōris atque ēius exercitūs quī cōnsiliō ipsiūs ac perīculō est cōnstitūtus?

An C. Falcidius, Q. Metellus, Q. Caelius Latīniēnsis,⁷⁴⁰ Cn. Lentulus, quōs omnēs honōris causā nōminō, cum tribūnī plēbī fuissent, annō proximō lēgātī esse potuērunt; in ūnō Gabiniō sunt tam diligentēs, quī in hōc bellō quod lēge Gabiniā geritur, in hōc imperātōre atque exercitū, quem per vōs ipse cōnstituit, etiam praecipuō iūre esse⁷⁴⁵ dēbēret? Dē quō lēgandō cōsulēs spērō ad senātum relātūrōs. Quī sī dubitābunt aut gravābuntur, ego mē profiteor relātūrum; neque mē impediet cūiusquam inimīcum ēdictum quō minus vōbīs frētus vestrum iūs beneficiumque dēfendam, neque praeter intercessiōnem quic-⁷⁵⁰ quam audiam, dē quā, ut arbitror, istī ipsī quī minantur etiam atque etiam quid liceat cōsiderābunt. Meā quidem sententiā, Quirītēs, ūnus A. Gabinius bellī maritimī rērumque gestārum Cn. Pompēiō socius ascribitur, prop-tereā quod alter ūnī illud bellum suscipiendum vestrīs⁷⁵⁵ suffrāgiīs dētulit, alter dēlātūm susceptumque cōnfēcit.

A reply to the objections of Catulus.

20. Reliquum est ut dē Q. Catulī auctōritāte et sententiā dīcendum esse videātur. Quī cum ex vōbīs quaere-ret, sī in ūnō Cn. Pompēiō omnia pōnerētis, sī quid eō factum esset, in quō spem essētis habitūrī, cēpit māgnūm⁷⁶⁰ suae virtūtis frūctum ac dignitātis, cum omnēs ūnā prope vōce in eō ipsō vōs spem habitūrōs esse dīxistis. Etenim tālis est vir, ut nūlla rēs tanta sit ac tam difficilis, quam ille nōn et cōnsiliō regere et integritatē tuērī et virtūtē cōnficere possit. Sed in hōc ipsō ab eō vehementissimē⁷⁶⁵ dissentīō, quod, quō minus certa est hominum ac minus diūturna vīta, hōc magis rēs pūblica, dum per deōs immortālēs licet, fruī dēbet summī virī vītā atque virtūtē.

At enim nē quid novī fīat contrā exempla atque īstitūta

770 māiōrum. Nōn dīcam hōc locō māiōrēs nostrōs semper in pāce cōnsuētūdīnī, in bellō ūtilitātī pāruisse, semper ad novōs cāsūs temporū novōrum cōnsiliōrum ratiōnēs accommodāsse; nōn dīcam duo bella māxima, Pūnicum atque Hispāniēnse, ab ūnō imperātōre esse cōfecta, 775 duāsque urbēs potentissimās, quae huic imperiō māximē minitābantur, Karthāginēm atque Numantiam, ab eōdem Scipiōne esse dēlētās; nōn commemorābō nūper ita vōbīs patribusque vestrīs esse vīsum, ut in ūnō C. Mariō spēs imperiō pōnerētur, ut īdem cum Iugurthā, īdem cum Cim-780 brīs, īdem cum Teutonīs bellum administrāret. In ipsō Cn. Pompeiō in quō novī cōnstituī nihil vult Q. Catulus, quam multa sint nova summā Q. Catulī voluntātē cōnstitūta recordāminī.

New precedents already established in the career of Pompey.

21. Quid tam novum quam adulēscētūlūm pīvātūm
 785 exercitū difficilī reī pūblicae tempore cōnficere? Cōnfēcit. Huic praeesse? Praefuit. Rem optimē ductū suō gerere? Gessit. Quid tam praeter cōnsuētūdinēm quam hominī peradulēscētī, cūius aetās ā senātōriō gradū longē abesset, imperium atque exercitū darī, Siciliam permittī, 790 atque Africām bellumque in eā pīvīnciā administrāndū? Fuit in hīs pīvīnciīs singulārī innocentia, gravitātē, virtūtē; bellum in Africā māximum cōnfēcit, victōrem exercitū dēportāvit.

Quid vērō tam inaudītūm quam equitem Rōmānum 795 triumphāre? At eam quoque rem populus Rōmānus nōn modo vīdit, sed omnium etiam studiō vīsendam et concelebrandam putāvit. Quid tam inūsitātūm quam ut, cum duo cōsulēs clārissimī fortissimīque essent, eques Rōmānūs ad bellum māximum formīdolōsissimumque pīo 800 cōsule mitterētur? Missus est. Quō quidem tempore, cum esset nōn nēmō in senātū quī diceret nōn oportēre mittī hominem p̄ivātum prō cōnsule, L. Philippus dixisse dicitur nōn sē illum suā sententiā prō cōnsule sed prō cōnsulibus mittere. Tanta in eō reī pūblicae bene gerendae spēs cōnstituēbātur ut duōrum cōnsulum mūnus ūnius 805 adulēscētis virtūtī committerētur.

Quid tam singulāre quam ut ex senātūs cōsultō lēgibus solūtus cōnsul ante fieret quam ūllum alium magistrātum per lēgēs capere licuisset? Quid tam incrēdibile quam ut iterum eques Rōmānus ex senātūs cōsultō triumphāret? 810 Quae in omnibus hominib⁹ nova post hominum memoriam cōnstitūta sunt, ea tam multa nōn sunt quam haec quae in hōc ūnō homine vidēmus. Atque haec tot exempla, tanta ac tam nova, profecta sunt in eundem hominem ā Q. Catulī atque ā cēterōrum ēiusdem dīgnitātis amplissi- 815 mōrum hominum auctōritātē.

Hortensius and Catulus should therefore withdraw their objections.
Pompey especially fitted for the war in Asia.

22. Quārē videant nē sit perinīquum et nōn ferendum, illōrum auctōritātem dē Cn. Pompēi dīgnitātē ā vōbīs comprobātam semper esse, vestrum ab illīs dē eōdem homine iūdicium populīque Rōmānī auctōritātem impro- 820 bārī, praesertim cum iam suō iūre populus Rōmānus in hōc homine suam auctōritātem vel contrā omnēs qui dissentiunt possit dēfendere, proptereā quod īisdem istīs reclāmantibus vōs ūnum illum ex omnibus dēlēgistiſ quem bellō praedōnum praepōnerētis. Hōc sī vōs temerē fēcis- 825 tis et reī pūblicae parum cōsuluitis, rēctē istī studia vestra suis cōsiliīs regere cōnantur. Sīn autem vōs plūs tum in rē pūblicā vīdistis, vōs eīs repūgnantibus per vōs- met ipsōs dīgnitātem huic imperiō, salūtem orbī terrārum attulistiſ, aliquandō istī p̄incipēs et sibi et cēterīs populī 830 Rōmānī ūniversī auctōritātī pārendum esse fateantur.

Atque in hōc bellō Asiāticō et rēgiō nōn sōlum militāris illa virtūs, quae est in Cn. Pompēiō singulāris, sed aliae quoque virtūtēs animī māgnæ et multae requīruntur. Difficile est in Asiā, Ciliciā, Syriā, rēgnīsque interiōrum nātiōnum ita versārī nostrum imperātōrem ut nihil aliud nisi dē hoste ac dē laude cōgitet. Deinde, etiamsī qui sunt pudōre ac temperantiā moderātiōrēs, tamen eōs esse tālēs propter multitūdinem cupidōrum hominum nēmō arbitrātur. Difficile est dictū, Quirītēs, quantō in odiō sīmus apud exterās nātiōnēs propter eōrum quōs ad eās per hōs annōs cum imperiō mīsimus, libīdinēs et iniūriās. Quod enim fānum putātis in illīs terrīs nostrīs magistrātibus religiōsum, quam cīvitātem sānctam, quam domum satis clausam ac mūnītam fuisse? Urbēs iam locuplētēs et cōpiōsae requīruntur, quibus causa bellī propter dīrip-iendī cupiditātem īferātur.

Libenter haec cōram cum Q. Catulō et Q. Hortēnsiō, summīs et clārissimīs virīs, disputārem; nōvērunt enim sociōrum vulnera, vident eōrum calamitātēs, querimōniās audiunt. Prō sociīs vōs contrā hostēs exercitum mittere putātis, an hostium simulātiōne contrā sociōs atque amīcōs? Quae cīvitās est in Asiā quae nōn modo imperātōris aut lēgātī, sed ūnīus tribūnī mīlitum animōs ac spīritūs capere possit?

The bill is supported by many eminent men.

23. Quārē, etiamsī quem habētis quī conlātīs sīgnīs exercitūs rēgiōs superāre posse videātur, tamen nisi erit idem quī sē ā pecūniīs sociōrum, quī ab eōrum coniugibus ac līberīs, quī ab ḥornāmentīs fānōrum atque oppidōrum, quī ab aurō gazāque rēgiā manūs, oculōs, animūm cohībēre possit, nōn erit idōneus quī ad bellum Asiāticum rēgiumque mittātur. Ecquām putātis cīvitātem pācātam fuisse quae locuplēs sit, ecquām esse locuplētem quae istīs pācāta esse videātur? Ora maritima, Quirītēs, Cn. Pompēium nōn sōlum propter reī mīlitāris glōriam, sed etiam propter 865 animī continentiam requīsīvit. Vidēbat enim imperātōrēs locuplētārī quotannīs pecūniā pūblicā praeter paucōs, neque eōs quicquam aliud adsequī classium nōmine, nisi ut dētrimentīs accipiendīs māiōre adfici turpitūdine vidērēmur. Nunc quā cupiditāte hominēs in prōvinciās et 870 quibus iactūrīs, quibus condicōnibus proficīscantur, ignōrant vidēlicet istī qui ad ūnum dēferenda omnia esse nōn arbitrantur. Quasi vērō Cn. Pompēium nōn cum suīs virtūtib⁹, tum etiam alienīs vitiis māgnūm esse videāmus. Quārē nōlīte dubitāre quīn huic ūnī crēdātis omnia, 875 quī inter tot annōs ūnus inventus sit quem sociī in urbēs suās cum exercitū vēnisse gaudeant.

Quodsi auctōritātib⁹ hanc causam, Quirītēs, cōnfīrmādam putātis, est vōbīs auctor vir bellōrum omnium māximārumque rērum peritissimus, P. Servilius, cūius 880 tantae rēs gestae terrā marīque exstiterunt ut, cum dē bellō dēliberētis, auctor vōbīs gravior esse nēmō dēbeat; est C. Cūriō, summīs vestrīs beneficiīs māximīsque rēbus gestīs, summō ingeniō et prūdentīā praeditus; est Cn. Lentulus, in quō omnēs prō amplissimīs vestrīs honōrib⁹ 885 summum cōnsilium, summam gravitātem esse cognōvistis; est C. Cassius, integritatē, virtūte, cōstantiā singulārī. Quārē vidēte hōrum auctōritātib⁹, illōrum ḍrātiōnī quī dissentiunt respondērene posse videāmur.

24. Quae cum ita sint, C. M. TULLI CICERONIS
PRO A. LICINIŌ ARCHIĀ POĒTĀ ŌRĀTIŌ AD IŪDICĒS.

Cicero's own indebtedness to Archias.

1. Sī quid est in mē ingenī, iūdicēs, quod sentiō quam sit exiguum, aut sī qua exercitātiō dīcendī, in quā mē nōn īfītior mediocriter esse versātum, aut sī hūiusce reī ratiō aliqua ab optimārum artium studiīs ac disciplinā profecta, ā quā ego nūllum cōnfiteor aetātis meae tempus abhorruisse, eārum rērum omnium vel in prīmīs hīc A. Licinius frūctum ā mē repetere prope suō iūre dēbet. Nam quoad longissimē potest mēns mea respicere spatiū praeteritī temporis et pueritiae memoriam recordārī ultimam, inde ūsque repetēns hunc videō mihi prīcipem et ad suscipiendam et ad ingrediendam ratiōnem hōrum studiōrum exstitisse. Quodsī haec vōx hūius hortātū praeceptīsque cōnfōrmāta nōnnūllīs aliquandō salūtī fuit, ā quō id accēpimus quō cēterīs opitulārī et aliōs servāre possēmus, huic profectō ipsī, quantum est situm in nōbīs, 15 et opem et salūtem ferre dēbēmus.

Ac nē quis ā nōbīs hōc ita dīcī forte mīrētur, quod alia quaedam in hōc facultās sit ingenī neque haec dīcendī ratiō aut disciplīna, nē nōs quidem huic ūnī studiō penitus umquam dēdītī fuimus. Etenim omnēs artēs quae ad 20 hūmānitātem pertinent habent quoddam commūne vinculum et quasi cognātiōne quādam inter sē continentur.

Cicero begs indulgence for his unusual plea.

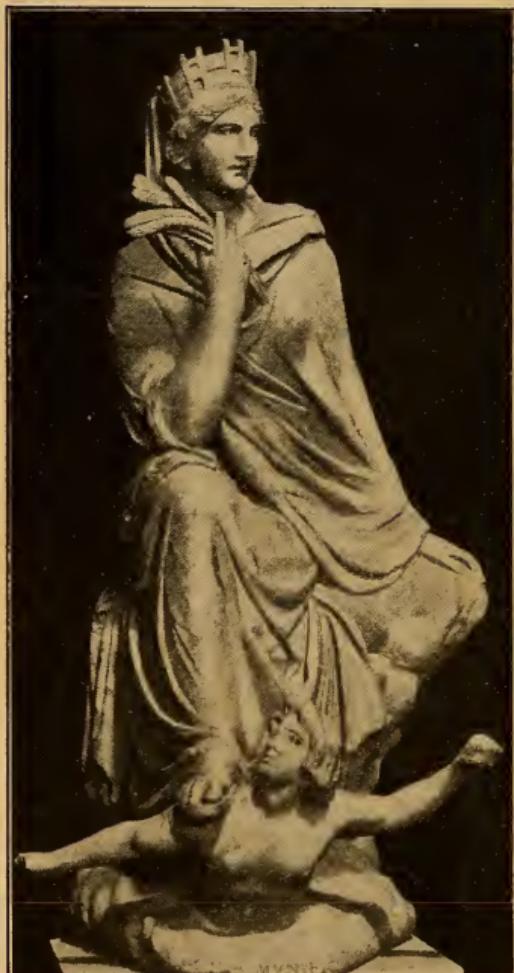

But less, please,

2. Sed nē cui vestrum mīrum esse videātur mē in quaestiōne lēgitimā et in iūdiciō pūblicō, cum rēs agātur apud praetōrem populī Rōmānī, lēctissimum virum, et 25 apud sevērissimōs iūdicēs, tantō conventū hominum ac frequentiā, hōc ūtī genere dīcendī, quod nōn modo ā cōnsuētūdine iūdiciōrum, vērum etiam ā forēnsī sermōne abhorreat, quaesō ā vōbīs ut in hāc causā mihi dētis hanc veniam, accommodātam huic reō, vōbīs, quem ad modum 30 spērō, nōn molestam, ut mē prō summō poētā atque ērudītissimō homine dīcentem, hōc concursū hominum litterātissimōrum, hāc vestrā hūmānitāte, hōc dēnique praetōre exercente iūdiciū, patiāminī dē studiīs hūmānitatis ac litterārum paulō loquī liberius, et in ēius modī 35 persōnā, quae propter ōtium ac studiū minimē in iūdiciīs perīculīsque trāctāta est, ūtī prope novō quōdam et in ūsitātō genere dīcendī. Quod si mihi ā vōbīs tribūi concēdīque sentiam, perficiam profectō ut hunc A. Licinium nōn modo nōn sēgregandum, cum sit cīvis, ā numerō cīvium, 40 vērum etiam sī nōn esset, putētis ascīscendum fuisse.

Archias in his youth won fame in the East. Coming to Italy, he was welcomed by men of high rank.

propter tranquillitatem rei publicae non neglegebantur. Itaque hunc et Tarentini et Locrenses et Regini et Neapolitani civitate ceterisque praemiis donarunt, et omnes qui 75 aliquid de ingeniis poterant iudicare cognitione atque hospitiō dignum existimārunt.

Hac tantā celebritate famae cum esset iam absentibus notus, Rōmam vēnit Mariō cōnsule et Catulō. Nactus est primum cōsulēs eōs quōrum alter rēs ad scribendum 80 māximās, alter cum rēs gestās tum etiam studium atque aurēs adhibēre posset. Statim Lūculli, cum praetextatus etiam tum Archiās esset, eum domum suam recēperunt. Et erat hōc nōn sōlum ingenī ac litterārum, vērum etiam nātūrae atque virtutis, ut domus quae hūius adulēscentiae 85 prīma fāvit, eadem esset familiārissima senectūti. Erat temporibus illis iūcundus Q. Metellō illi Numidicō et eius Piō filiō, audiēbātur ā M. Aemiliō, vīvēbat cum Q. Catulō et patre et filiō, ā L. Crassō colēbātur; Lūcullōs vērō et Drūsum et Octāviōs et Catōnem et tōtam Hortēnsiōrum 90 domum dēvinctam cōsuētūdine cum tenēret, adficiēbātur summō honōre, quod eum nōn sōlum colēbant quī aliquid percipere atque audīre studēbant, vērum etiam sī quī forte simulābant.

Archias has fulfilled the conditions of Roman citizenship.

4. Interim satis longō intervallō, cum esset cum M. 95 Lūcullō in Siciliam profectus et cum ex eā prōvinciā cum eōdem Lūcullō dēcēderet, vēnit Hēacliam. Quae cum esset civitās aequissimō iūre ac foedere, ascrībī sē in eam civitatem voluit, idque, cum ipse per sē dīgnus putārētur, tum auctōritāte et grātiā Lūculli ab Hēaclēnsibus im- 100 petrāvit. Data est civitās Silvāni lēge et Carbōnis: Sī QUĪ FOEDERĀTIS CIVITATIBUS ASCRİPTI FUISSENT; Sī TUM, CUM LĒX FERĒBĀTUR, IN ITALIĀ DOMICILIUM HABUSSIENT; ET Sī SEXĀGINTĀ DIĒBUS APUD PRAETŌREM ESSENT PRO-

105 FESSI. Cum hīc domicilium Rōmae multōs iam annōs habēret, professus est apud praetōrem Q. Metellum, familiārissimum suum.

Sī nihil aliud nisi dē cīvitāte ac lēge dīcimus, nihil dīcō amplius; causa dicta est. Quid enim hōrum īfīrmārī, 110 Grattī, potest? Hēracliaene esse eum ascrīptum negābis? Adest vir summā auctōritāte et religiōne et fidē, M. Lūcullus, quī sē nōn opīnārī sed scīre, nōn audīvisse sed vīdisse, nōn interfuisse sed ēgisse dīcit. Adsunt Hēraclīēnsēs lēgātī, nōbilissimī hominēs; hūius iūdicī causā 115 cum mandātis et cum pūblicō testimōniō vēnērunt, quī hunc ascrīptum Hēracliēnsem dīcunt. Hīc tū tabulās dēsiderās Hēraclīēnsium pūblicās, quās Ītalicō bellō incēnsō tabulāriō interīsse scīmus omnēs. Est rīdiculum ad ea quae habēmus nihil dīcere, quaerere quae habēre nōn possumus; et dē hominum memoriā tacēre, litterārum memoriam flāgitāre; et, cum habeās amplissimī virī religiōnem, integerrimī mūnicipiī iūs iūrandum fidemque, ea quae dēprāvārī nūllō modō possunt repudiāre, tabulās, quās idem dīcis solēre corrumpī, dēsiderāre. An domi- 120 cilium Rōmae nōn habuit is quī tot annīs ante cīvitātem datam sēdem omnium rērum ac fortūnārum suārum Rōmae conlocāvit? An nōn est professus? Immō vērō eīs tabulās professus quae sōlāe ex illā professiōne collēgiōque praetōrum obtinent pūblicārum tabulārum auctōritātem.

The records involved are trustworthy.

130 5. Nam cum Appī tabulae neglegentius adservātae dīcerentur, Gabīnī, quamdiū incolumis fuit, levitās, post damnātiōnem calamitās omnem tabulārum fidem resīgnāset, Metellus, homō sāctissimus modestissimusque omnium, tantā dīligentiā fuit ut ad L. Lentulum prae- 135 tōrem et ad iūdicēs vēnerit et ūnīus nōminis litūrā sē commōtum esse dīxerit. Hīs igitur in tabulis nūllam litūram in nōmine A. Licinī vidētis.

Quae cum ita sint, quid est quod dē ēius cīvitāte dubitētis, praesertim cum aliis quoque in cīvitātibus fuerit ascriptus? Etenim cum mediocribus multīs et aut nūllā 140 aut humili aliquā arte praeditīs grātuītō cīvitātem in Graeciā hominēs impertiēbant, Rēgīnōs crēdō aut Locrēnsēs aut Neāpolitānōs aut Tarentīnōs, quod scaenicīs artificibus largīrī solēbant, id huic summā ingenī praeditō glōriā nōluisse! Quid? Cum cēterī nōn modo post 145 cīvitātem datam, sed etiam post lēgem Pāpiam aliquō modō in eōrum mūnicipiōrum tabulās inrēpsērunt; hīc quī nē ūtitur quidem illīs in quibus est scrip̄tus, quod semper sē Hēracliēnsem esse voluit, rēiciētūr?

Cēnsūs nostrōs requīris. Scīlicet; est enim obscūrum 150 proximīs cēnsōribus hunc cum clārissimō imperātōre L. Lūcullō apud exercitū fuisse; superiōribus, cum eōdem quaestōre fuisse in Asiā; prīmīs, Iūliō et Crassō, nūllam populi partem esse cēnsam. Sed, quoniam cēnsus nōn iūs cīvitātis cōnfīrmat ac tantum modo indicat eum quī sit 155 cēnsus ita sē iam tum gessisse prō cīve, eīs temporibus, quem tū crimināris nē ipsīus quidem iūdiciō in cīvium Rōmānōrum iūre esse versātum, et testāmentum saepe fēcit nostrīs lēgibus et adiit hērēditātēs cīvium Rōmānōrum et in beneficiīs ad aerārium dēlātus est ā L. Lūcullō 160 prō cōsule. Quaere argūmenta, sī quae potes; numquām enim hīc neque suō neque amīcōrum iūdiciō revincētur.

The study of literature relaxes as well as cultivates. It preserves the examples of the past.

6. Quaerēs ā nōbīs, Grāttī, cūr tantō opere hōc homine dēlectēmur. Quia suppeditat nōbīs ubi et animus ex hōc 165 forēnsī strepitū reficiātur et aurēs convīciō dēfessae con-quiēscant. An tū exīstīmās aut suppetere nōbīs posse quod cotīdiē dīcāmus in tantā varietātē rērum, nisi animōs nostrōs doctrīnā excolāmus, aut ferre animōs tantam posse 170 contentiōnem, nisi eōs doctrīna eādem relaxēmus? Ego vērō fateor mē hīs studiīs esse dēditum. Cēterōs pudeat, sī quī ita sē litterīs abdidērunt ut nihil possint ex eīs neque ad commūnem adferre frūctum neque in aspectum lūcemque prōferre; mē autem quid pudeat, quī tot annōs ita 175 vīvō, iūdicēs, ut ā nūllius umquam mē tempore aut comodō aut ūtium meum abstrāxerit aut voluptās āvocārit aut dēnique somnus retardārit?

Quārē quis tandem mē reprehendat, aut quis mihi iūre suscēnseat, sī quantum cēterīs ad suās rēs obeundās, 180 quantum ad fēstōs diēs lūdōrum celebrandōs, quantum ad aliās voluptātēs et ad ipsam requiem animī et corporis concēditur temporum, quantum aliī tribuunt tempestīvīs convīviīs, quantum dēnique alveolō, quantum pilae, tan-tum mihi egomet ad haec studia recolenda sūmpserō? 185 Atque hōc eō mihi concēdendum est magis, quod ex hīs studiīs haec quoque crēscit ūrātiō et facultās, quae, quantacumque in mē est, numquam amīcōrum periculīs dēfuit. Quae sī cui levior vidētur, illa quidem certē, quae summa sunt, ex quō fonte hauriam sentiō. Nam nisi multōrum 190 praeceptīs multisque litterīs mihi ab adulēscētiā suāsissem nihil esse in vītā māgnō opere expetendum nisi laudem atque honestātem, in eā autem persequendā omnēs cruciātūs corporis, omnia pericula mortis atque exsilī parvī esse dūcenda, numquam mē prō salūte vestrā in tot ac 195 tantās dīmicātiōnēs atque in hōs prōflīgātōrum hominum cotīdiānōs impetūs obiēcissem. Sed plēnī omnēs sunt librī, plēnae sapientiū vōcēs, plēna exemplōrum vetustās; quae iacērent in tenebrīs omnia nisi litterārum lūmen accēderet. Quam multās nōbīs imāginēs, nōn sōlum ad 200 intuendum, vērum etiam ad imitandum, fortissimōrum virōrum expressās scrip̄tōrēs et Graecī et Latīnī reliquērunt ! Quās ego mihi semper in administrandā rē pūblicā prōpōnēns animum et mentem meam ipsā cōgitatiōne hominū excellentium cōnfōrmābam.

Nature and culture unite to produce the greatest men.

7. Quaeret quispiam : ‘Quid ? Illī ipsī summī virī 205 quōrum virtūtēs litterīs prōditae sunt, istāne doctrīnā quam tū effers laudibus ērudītī fuērunt?’ Difficile est hōc dē omnibus cōfīrmāre, sed tamen est certum quid respondeam. Ego multōs hominēs excellentī animō ac virtūte fuisse sine doctrīnā et nātūrae ipsius habitū prope 210 dīvīnō per sē ipsōs et moderātōs et gravēs exstis̄se fateor ; etiam illud adiungō, saepius ad laudem atque virtūtem nātūram sine doctrīnā quam sine nātūrā valuisse doctrīnam. Atque idem ego hōc contendō, cum ad nātūram eximiam et inlūstrem accesserit ratiō quaedam cōfōrmātiōque 215 doctrīnae, tum illud nesciō quid praeclārum ac singulāre solēre exsistere. Ex hōc esse hunc numerō, quem patrēs nostrī vīdērunt, dīvīnum hominem Āfricānum ; ex hōc C. Laelium, L. Fūrium, moderātissimōs hominēs et continentissimōs ; ex hōc fortissimum virum et illīs temporī- 220 bus doctissimum, M. Catōnem illum senem ; qui profectō sī nihil ad percipiendam colendamque virtūtem litterīs adiuvārentur, numquam sē ad eārūm studium contulissent. Quodsi nōn hīc tantus frūctus ostenderētur, et sī ex his studiīs dēlectātiō sōla peterētur, tamen, ut opīnor, hanc 225 animī remissiōnem hūmānissimam ac liberālissimam iūdicārētis. Nam cēterae neque temporū sunt neque aetātū omnū neque locōrum ; at haec studia adulēscentiam alunt, senectūtem oblectant, secundās rēs ḥ̄rnant, adversīs perfugium ac sōlācium praebent, dēlectant domī, nōn im- 230 pediunt forīs, pernoctant nōbiscum, peregrinantur, rūsticantur.

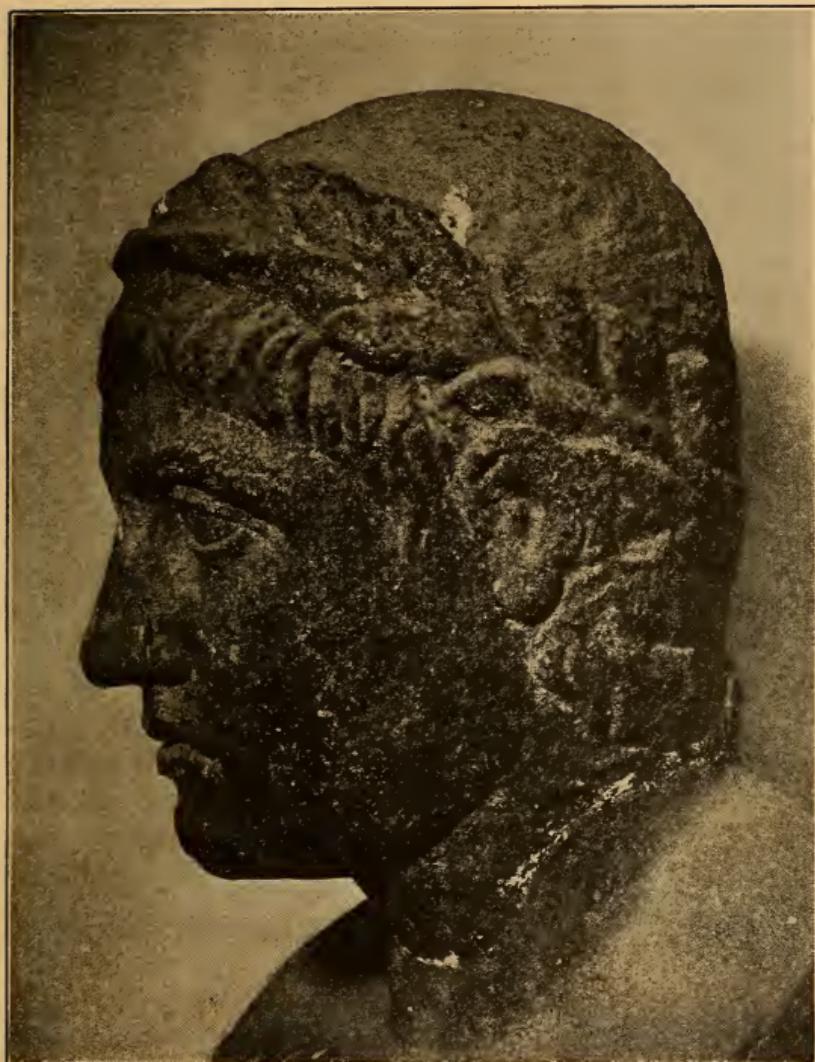

All true artists deserve our admiration. Poets have been called sacred.

8. Quodsi ipsi haec neque attingere neque sēnsū nostrō gustāre possēmus, tamen ea mīrārī dēbērēmus etiam cum 235 in aliis vidērēmus. Quis nostrum tam animō agrestī ac

Ergō ille corporis mōtū tantum amōrem sibi conciliārat ā 240 nōbīs omnibus; nōs animōrum incrēdibilēs mōtūs celeritātemque ingeniōrum neglegēmus? Quotiēns ego hunc Archiam vīdī, iūdicēs (ūtar enim vestrā benīgnitāte, quoniam mē in hōc novō genere dicendī tam diligenter attenditis), quotiēns ego hunc vīdī, cum litteram scripsisset

9. Ergō illī aliēnum, quia poēta fuit, post mortem etiam expetunt; nōs hunc vivum, quī et voluntātē et lēgibus noster est, repudiābimus, praesertim cum omne 270 ūlim studium atque omne ingenium contulerit Archiās ad populī Rōmānī glōriam laudemque celebrandam? Nam et Cimbricās rēs adulēscēns attigit et ipsī illī C. Mariō, quī dūrior ad haec studia vidēbātur, iūcundus fuit. Neque enim quisquam est tam āversus ā Mūsīs quī nōn mandārī 275 versibus aeternum suōrum labōrum facile praecōnium patiātur. Themistoclem illum, summum Athēnīs virum, dīxisse āiunt, cum ex eō quaererētur quod acroāma aut cūius vōcem libentissimē audīret: ‘ēius, ā quō sua virtūs optimē praedicārētur.’ Itaque ille Marius item eximiē 280 L. Plōtium dīlēxit, cūius ingeniō putābat ea quae gesserat posse celebrārī.

Mithridāticum vērō bellum, māgnum atque difficile et in multā varietātē terrā marīque versātum, tōtum ab hōc expressum est; quī librī nōn modo L. Lūcullum, fortissi- 285 mum et clārissimum virum, vērum etiam populī Rōmānī nōmen inlūstrant. Populus enim Rōmānus aperuit Lū-

Latīnīs, vehementer errat, proptereā quod Graeca leguntur in omnibus ferē gentibus, Latīna suīs fīnibus exiguīs sānē continentur.
Quārē sī rēs eae quās gessimus orbis terrae regjōnibus dēfīniuntur, cupere dēbēmus, quō manuum nostrārum
tēla pēvēnerint, eōdem glōriam fāmamque penetrāre; quod cum ipsīs 330 populīs dē quōrum rēbus scribitur, haec ampla sunt, tum eīs certē, quī dē vītā glōriae causā dīmicant, hōc māximum et perīculōrum incitāmentum est et labōrum. Quam mul-tōs scriptōrēs rērum suārum māgnus ille Alexander sēcum habuisse dīcitur! Atque is tamen, cum in Sīgēō ad 335 Achillis tumulum adstitisset: ‘O fortūnāte,’ inquit,

ALEXANDER THE GREAT

'adulēscēns, quī tuae virtūtis Homērum praecōnem in-vēneris !' Et vērē. Nam nisi Īlias illa exstisset, idem tumulus quī corpus ēius contēxerat nōmen etiam obruiisset.
 340 Quid ? Noster hīc Māgnus, quī cum virtūte fortūnam adaequāvit, nōnne Theophanem Mytilēnaeum, scriptōrem rērum suārum, in cōntiōne mīlitum cīvitāte dōnāvit; et nostri illī fortēs virī, sed rūsticī ac mīlītēs, dulcēdine quā-dam glōriae commōtī, quasi participēs ēiusdem laudis, 345 māgnō illud clāmōre approbāvērunt ?

Itaque, crēdō, sī cīvis Rōmānus Archiās lēgibus nōn esset, ut ab aliquō imperātōre cīvitāte dōnārētur perficere nōn potuit. Sulla cum Hispānōs et Gallōs dōnāret, crēdō, hunc petentem repudiāasset; quem nōs in cōntiōne vīdimus, 350 cum eī libellum malus poēta dē populō subiēcisset, quod epigramma in eum fēcisset tantum modo alternīs versibus longiusculis, statim ex eīs rēbus quās tum vēndēbat iubēre eī praemium tribuī, sed eā condiciōne, nē quid posteā scriberet. Quī sēdulitātem malī poētae dūxerit aliquō
 355 tamen praemiō dīgnam, hūius ingenium et virtūtem in scribendō et cōpiam nōn expetīset ? Quid ? Ā Q. Metellō Piō, familiārissimō suō, qui cīvitāte multōs dōnāvit, neque per sē neque per Lūcullōs impetrāvisset ? Quī praesertim ūsque eō dē suīs rēbus scribī cuperet ut etiam 360 Cordubae nātīs poētīs, pingue quiddam sonantibus atque peregrīnum, tamen aurēs suās dēderet.

The desire for praise and fame is common to all.

11. Neque enim est hōc dissimulandum, quod obscūrārī nōn potest, sed prae nōbīs ferendum : trahimur omnēs studiō laudis, et optimus quisque māximē glōriā dūcitur.
 365 Ipsī illī philosophī, etiam in eīs libellīs quōs dē contem-nendā glōriā scribunt, nōmen suum īscribunt ; in eō ipsō, in quō praedicātiōnem nōbilitātemque dēspiciunt, praedicārī dē sē ac nōniinārī volunt. Decimus quidem

Brūtus, summus vir et imperātor, Accī, amīcissimī suī, carminibus templōrum ac monumentōrum aditūs exōr- 370 nāvit suōrum. Iam vērō ille quī cum Aetōlīs Enniō comite bellāvit, Fulvius, nōn dubitāvit Mārtis manubiās Mūsīs cōnsecrāre. Quārē in quā urbe imperātōrēs prope armātī poētārum nōmen et Mūsārum dēlūbra coluērunt, in eā nōn dēbent togātī iūdicēs ā Mūsā- rum honōre et ā poētārum salūte abhorrrē.

Atque ut id libentius faciātis, iam mē vōbīs, iūdicēs, indicābō et dē meō quōdam amōre glōriae, nimis ācī fortasse vērum tamen honestō, vōbīs cōfitēbor. Quibus audītīs, quod mihi māgna rēs et iūcunda vīsa est, hunc ad perficiendum adhortātus sum. Nūllam enim virtūs aliam mercēdem labōrum perīculō- 395 rumque dēsiderat praeter hanc laudis et glōriae; quā quidem dētrāctā, iūdicēs, quid est quod in hōc tam exiguō vītāe curriculō et tam brevī tantīs nōs in labōribus exerceāmus? 12. An vērō tam parvī animī videāmur esse omnēs, quī in rē pūblicā atque in hīs vītā pericu-lis labōribusque versā-mur, ut cum ūsque ad extrēmum spatium nūl-lum tranquillum atque ōtiōsum spīritum dūxe-rimus, nōbīscum simul moritūra omnia arbitrē-mur? Quārē cōservāte, iūdicēs, hominem pudōre eō, quem 435 amīcōrum vidētis comprobārī cum dīgnitāte tum etiam vetustāte; ingenīo autem tantō quantum id convenit exīstīmārī, quod summōrum hominum ingeniīs expetītum esse videātis; causā vērō ēius modī quae benefīcī lēgis, auctōritātē mūnicipī, testimōniō Lūcullī, tabulī Metellī 440 comprobētur. Quae cum ita sint, petimus ā vōbīs, iūdicēs, sī qua nōn modo hūmāna vērum etiam dīvīna in tantīs ingeniīs commendātiō dēbet esse, ut eum quī vōs, quī vestrōs imperātōrēs, quī populī Rōmānī rēs gestās semper ornāvit, quī etiam hīs recentibus nostrīs vestrīsque 445 domesticīs perīculīs aeternum sē testimōniū laudis datūrum esse profitētur, estque ex eō numerō quī semper apud omnēs sānc̄tī sunt habitī itaque dictī, sīc in vestram accipiātis fidem, ut hūmānitātē vestrā levātus potius quam acerbitātē violātus esse videātūr. 450

Quae dē causā prō meā cōnsuētūdine breviter simpliciterque dīxī, iūdicēs, ea cōnfīdō probāta esse omnibus; quae ā forēnsī aliēna iūdiciālīque cōnsuētūdine et dē hominis ingenīo et commūniter dē ipsō studiō locūtus sum, ea, iūdicēs, ā vōbīs spērō esse in bonam partem 455 accepta; ab eō quī iūdiciū exercet, certō sciō.

M. TULLI[—] CICERONIS

PR[—] M. MARCELLO[—] ORATIO[—]

Marcus Claudius Marcellus was a distinguished advocate, consul in 51 b.c., and leader of the senatorial party. He was a bitter enemy of Caesar, even proposing the latter's recall from his province. After the battle of Pharsalus (48 b.c.) and the defeat of Pompey, he retired to the island of Lesbos, and engaged in the study of philosophy. He disdained to seek the conqueror's pardon, though appealed to by Cicero to do so. In 46 b.c. pardon was granted him through the efforts of a relative, Gaius Marcellus, whose entreaty as he threw himself at the feet of Caesar was seconded by the whole Senate. When Caesar generously offered to grant the request, and put the question to a formal vote of the Senate, Cicero in his turn delivered the panegyric, known as "The Oration for Marcellus." Marcellus, however, did not live to return to Rome, for on his way he was assassinated at the harbor of Athens by one of his own party. The Athenians honored him with burial in their own Academy.

Cicero's silence is broken by Caesar's clemency.

TOMBS ON THE APPIAN WAY

M. TULLI CICERONIS
CATO MAIOR DE SENECTUTE LIBER

AD T. POMPONIUM ATTICUM

Cicero's essay "De Senectute" is a treatise in praise of old age, so charmingly written that Montaigne said of it, that "it made one long to grow old." It is cast in the form of a dialogue, in which Marcus Cato the Elder, in his eighty-fourth year, converses with two young companions, Scipio Africanus and Gaius Laelius. Cicero says, "I introduced Cato, the old man, speaking, because no personage seemed better fitted to talk concerning old age, than he who had been an old man a very long time, and in old age itself had flourished beyond others."

Old age not burdensome to Cato.

C. SALLUSTI CRISPI

BELLUM CATILINAE

Sallust (C. Sallustius Crispus, 86–35 B.C.) was tribune of the people in 52; was expelled from the Senate in 50, being an opponent of Cicero, and Pompey, but restored later by Caesar; was praetor in 46, and governor of Numidia. After Caesar's assassination he wrote Bellum Catilinæ and Bellum Iugurthinum. In the former he gives an account of the conspiracy of Catiline and the moral condition of the times. The speeches of Caesar and Cato before the Senate, concerning the punishment of the conspirators, are of special interest (chapters 51, 52).

The character of Catiline.

5. L. Catilina, nōbilī genere nātus, fuit māgnā vī et animī et corporis sed ingenio malō prāvōque.¹ Huic ab adulēscētiā bella intestīna, caedēs, rapīnae, discordia cīvīlis, grāta fuēre²; ibique³ iuventūtem suam exercuit. 5 Corpus patiēns inediae,⁴ algōris,⁵ vigiliae, suprā quam cuiquam crēdibile est. Animus audāx, subdolus,⁶ varius, cūius reī libet simulātor ac dissimulātor;⁷ aliēnī⁸ adpetēns, suī profūsus, ardēns in cupiditātibus; satis ēloquen-tiae, sapientiae parum. Vāstus⁹ animus immoderāta, 10 incrēdibilia, nimis alta semper cupiēbat. Hunc post dominātiōnem L. Sullae libīdō māxima invāserat reī pūblicae capienda; neque id quibus modīs adsequerētur, dum sibi rēgnum parāret, quicquam pēnsī¹⁰ habēbat. Agitābātur magis magisque in diēs animus ferōx inopiā reī 15 familiāris et cōscientiā scelerum; quae utraque eīs

FIRST ORATION AGAINST CATILINE

INTRODUCTORY NOTE

1. Catiline. — Lucius Sergius Catiline, who was born about 108 b.c., belonged to a patrician family that had fallen into poverty. According to Cicero and the historian Sallust, he was a man of remarkable powers of body and mind, but a reckless debauchee whose strong influence was perverted. He appears first in history in connection with the proscriptions of Sulla. His own hands were stained, it is said, with the blood of his wife, his son, and his brother-in-law. Catiline was praetor in 68 b.c. and governor of the province of Africa in 67. Returning to Rome, he was prevented from standing for the consulship in 66 by threats of prosecution for extortion in his province. He then formed a plot to kill the consuls-elect, Cotta and Torquatus, on January 1, 65 b.c., and to make himself and Autronius consuls in their place. This so-called first conspiracy was discovered and failed, and on a second attempt, February 5, was frustrated because Catiline gave the signal too soon.

2. The Conspiracy. — In 65 and 64 b.c., Catiline again sought the consulship but failed, Cicero and Antonius being elected for 63. Maddened by his fourth failure at the election, in July 63, he planned his insurrection, known as "The Conspiracy of Catiline." The plot included the murder of Cicero, the massacre of enemies, the burning of the city, and the seizing of the government. The city was filled with dangerous classes, men who had lost their fortunes acquired during the civil wars, and discontented veterans of Sulla. These Catiline would stir to revolution by hope of "new tablets," being emboldened himself by the silent approval of many men of rank. Recruits for his army were to be drawn from the colonies in Italy and Gaul. "The wild shepherds, the brigands of the hills, the slaves and gladiators were all to play their part." Cicero was fully informed of the details by the mistress of one of the conspirators. When he disclosed the conspiracy to the Senate on October 21, that body virtually declared martial law by its decree "Let the consuls see to it that the state suffer no harm." On October 27, Manlius raised the standard of the rebel forces at Faesulae, in Etruria. The next day Cicero foiled the projected murder of the Optimates. On November 1 the rebels attempted to seize the fortress of Praeneste near Rome, but were successfully resisted by the inhabitants, upon Cicero's warning. Then occurred the meeting of the conspirators in the house of Laeca on the night of November 6, when two men volunteered to murder Cicero. But the consul learned of the design in time to take precaution.

3. The First Oration. — On the 8th of November, 63 B.C., the Senate met for safety in the temple of Jupiter Stator, on the Palatine Hill, surrounded by a special guard of knights. Catiline boldly took his place among the other senators, conscious in all probability of the purpose of the meeting. It was then that Cicero delivered the oration which is one of the world's masterpieces of eloquence, The First Oration against Catiline.

1. abutere : fut. ind. In the second sing. pass., Cicero regularly uses the ending -ris only in the pres. indic., -re in other tenses; HB. 151. Catilina : case, 96.¹ patientia : case, 147.²

2. Quam diu etiam : how much longer? furor iste tuus : that frenzy of yours.

3. audacia : sc. tua. Nihilne : not at all, stronger than nonne. For the case of nihil see 129.³ For the repetition of nihil in the following phrases, "anaphora," see 235. The sentence may be rendered in the passive: are you not alarmed at all by the night guard?

4. Palati : the Palatine Hill, one of the seven hills on which Rome was built. It was famous for its temples, for the residences of prominent men, including Cicero, and later for the palaces of the emperors. Hence our words "palatial," "palace." The conspirators would attempt to seize this part of the city.

5. bonorum: i.e. good citizens. They had probably assembled outside the Temple of Jupiter Stator, in which the Senate had met for safety (hic . . . locus, l. 6). The Senate house was the Curia Hostilia (Introd. 43), but a session might be held in any temple for special reasons.

6. horum: i.e. the senators.

7. moverunt: alarmed, disturbed. Patere: note the order of words; 233, a. non: used for nonne.

8. Constrictam . . . teneri: is held in check, as might be said of a wild beast.

9. proxima (nocte): Nov. 7. superiore: Nov. 6; see Introd. Note, p. 184.

10. egeris, fueris, etc.: subjunctives in indirect questions, depending on ignorare; 202.¹ quid consili: what plan; consili: gen. of the whole; 103.²

11. quem . . . arbitraris: what man of us do you think is not aware? nostrum: for the form of this gen., see 162, b.¹

12. tempora: acc. of exclamation; 130.² haec: the conspiracy. consul: Cicero.

13. hic: Catiline.

14. fit . . . particeps: takes part in the public deliberations. consili: case, 104.³

15. oculis: i.e., as he glances about; abl. of means.

16. fortes: ironical. satis facere videmur (sc. nobis): we think we are doing our duty (lit., seem to ourselves, etc.).

17. istius: of that scoundrel. vitemus: subjunctive in indir. disc., depending on videmur (we think).

18. te duci oportebat: you ought to have been led. For the pres. inf. translated as if perf., see 209, b.⁴ iussu consulis: the Senate had given the consuls special authority by its decree of Oct. 21. See Introductory Note, p. 182.

19. conferri: w. oportebat, ought to have been fought. See note on l. 18.

20. An: this particle ordinarily connects the members of a double question, with the meaning or. Here, as in early Latin, it is used somewhat like -ne, or nonne, but putting strong emphasis on the preceding statement; 89, b.⁵ Trans. did not a most honorable man . . . kill . . . ; (and) shall we endure (perferemus, l. 24) . . . ?

21. Scipio, Gracchum: Tiberius Gracchus, a tribune of the people in 133 B.C., had aroused the opposition of the wealthy by reviving the law limiting the amount of land to be held by an individual. Though he was a patriot and reformer, he was not always legal in his methods. He was put to death by a mob of his opponents led by P. Scipio Nasica. The latter is called a private citizen (privatus, l. 22) because the high priest was not classed as a magistrate.

24. Nam . . . quod: for I pass over that precedent as too ancient, that. The plural illa may imply other similar precedents in the mind of the speaker.

25. Maelium: M. Maelius, a rich plebeian, in the famine of 439 B.C. obtained grain for the sufferers. Charged by the patricians with seeking favor in order to make himself king, he was summoned before the dictator Cincinnatus, but refusing to obey the summons was slain by Ahala, the master of horse.

26. Fuit, fuit: the figure of anaphora; 235. ista: such.

29. senatus consultum: the decree of Oct. 21. in te: against you.

30. rei publicae: dat. w. deest; trans. the republic does not lack. huius ordinis: i.e. the Senate.

CHAPTER 2

32. Decrevit: “A Roman citizen had the right to appeal to the people in a case of life or death, but the Senate found means of suspending this right, when it wished to get rid of an enemy, by establishing a special commission or by passing a senatus consultum ultimum.”—Abbott. quondam: in 121 B.C. ut . . . videret, ne . . . caperet, object clauses; 205, a.¹

34. intercessit: between the passing of the decree and the execution.

35. C. Gracchus: a more able statesman than his brother Tiberius (l. 21). As tribune in 123 and 122 B.C., he accomplished many reforms in the interest of the people. His influence, however, was undermined by the Senate, whose supremacy he had attacked. Defeated for the tribuneship of 121, he met the fate of his brother in the insurrection which followed. patre, etc.: abl. of description. The father of Gracchus had been censor, twice consul, and twice honored with a triumph. His mother Cornelia, famed for her “jewels,” was the daughter of Cornelius Scipio (avo), the conqueror of Hannibal.

36. Note the emphatic position of occisus est, and of decrevit, interfectus est above; 233, a. Fulvius: it is said that three thousand of the followers of Gracchus perished after him.

37. Mario, Valerio: datives. Marius, the conqueror of the Cimbri and Teutones, was consul for the sixth time in 100 B.C.

As leader of the democracy, he was to some extent in sympathy with Saturninus and Servilius (l. 39), but because of their unscrupulous action, ending in the murder of their rival Memmius, he was compelled to carry out the Senate's decree against them.

38. res publica: the safety of the republic. Num . . . remorata est? in the case of . . . was death delayed . . .?
(Lit., did death delay them?)

40. mors ac poena: omit ac; poena explains mors. rei publicae: 98.¹ vicesimum: Cicero uses round numbers. From Oct. 21, when the decree was passed, to Nov. 8 was eighteen days.

41. aciem: edge, as of a sword.

43. tabulis: i.e. the public records. vagina: the metaphor of a sword is continued.

44. ex: according to. te . . . convenit: you should have been put to death (lit., it was fitting, etc.).

47. patres conscripti: conscript fathers, a phrase used in addressing the senators in a body. The expression was probably patres et conscripti at first, patres referring to the original senators, who were patricians, conscripti to the plebeians who were enrolled and admitted later. (Introd. 28.)

49. inertiae: for the case, see 105.²

50. Etruria faucibus: at Faesulae (modern Fiesole), about three miles from Florence. "It is a position of great natural strength, commanding a wide view of the valley of the Arno

3 and the Tuscan plain. To the northwest lie the passes (fauces) by which the great roads crossed the Apennines." — Nicol.

52. imperatorem ducemque: Catiline.

55. comprehendi: w. iussero. Trans. iussero as if pres. Latin is more exact than English in its use of tenses, and therefore uses the fut. perf. here.

56. credo . . . dicat: the sentence is ironical. Cicero means that he fears the charge of slowness rather than of severity in his treatment of the conspirators. Trans. I shall have to fear, I suppose, that all good citizens will not say my action was too tardy, rather than that any one should say it was too severe. non: modifies dicant (to be supplied w. omnes boni), but not dicat.

59. certa de causa: for a definite reason, stated in the next sentence. ut faciam: to do.

61. tui: for the gen. w. similis, see 119, a.¹ qui . . . fateatur: as not to admit; rel. clause of result; 192, a.²

62. qui . . . audeat: a clause of description; 192.³

63. multis et firmis: English omits the connective.

CHAPTER 5

6 136. Quae . . . sint: causal, since these things are so.

137. Egressere: imperative.

138. Nimium diu desiderant: has too long been missing; 173, c.¹ castra: the camp referred to in l. 49.

139. Educ: used for educe. si minus: if not.

141. dum modo: if only, introducing a clause of proviso; 199.² me atque te: the Latin order is the reverse of the English.

142. feram, patiar, sinam: synonyms, used for emphasis.

144. Magna: w. gratia, l. 145. habenda est: is due. atque: and especially. huic: the orator pointed to the statue of the god in whose temple the Senate was assembled.

145. Iovi Statori: the flight of the Romans from their enemies, the Sabines, in the time of Romulus, was said to have been stayed by Jupiter. Hence the epithet stator, stayer.

147. saepius: too often.

148. in: in the case of. homine: i.e. Catiline. periclitanda: passive in meaning; 220, a.

174. oderit: the perf. tense of this def. vb. has the force of the present. nota inusta: runaway slaves were branded on the forehead as a punishment. domesticae: referring to domestic or family scandal; privatarum rerum: of private life, in a broader sense.

176. haeret in fama: clings to your name. ~~Quae libido . . . afuit: from what lust have your eyes ever been free?~~

178. Cui adulescentulo: w. praetulisti, before what young man? quem inretisses: a descriptive clause, meaning a young man such as you had ensnared.

179. ad audaciam: i.e. for some daring deed.

180. praetulisti: as a slave by night carried a torch before his master to light the way, so Catiline guided the youth into crime.

181. Quid vero: but again. morte: abl. of means. novis nuptiis: dat. of purpose.

182. alio scelere: the murder of his son in addition to the implied murder of his first wife.

183. cumulasti: = cumulavisti. praetermitto: the orator, by pretending to omit, really emphasizes the statement. This figure of rhetoric is called praeteritio, a passing over.

184. tanti facinoris immanitas: a crime so enormous.

185. non vindicata esse: to have been left unpunished.

186. omnes: to be taken w. ruinas in the main clause, utter ruin.

187. proximis Idibus: Nov. 13. Debts were due on the Kalends and Ides of each month.

189. summam rem publicam: the highest welfare of the state.

193. cum: causal. horum: the senators.

194. Lepidus and Tullus were consuls in 66 b.c. On Dec. 31 of that year Catiline had planned to kill the new consuls, Cotta and Torquatus, who were to take office the following day.

195. comitio: see Vocab. cum telo: armed.

196. paravisse: repeat te as subj. sceleri ac furori: w. obstitisse; trans. passively, and that your criminal frenzy was checked.

198. fortunam: fortunately for the state the first conspiracy of Catiline had failed, because the signal was given too soon. illa: the following. omitto: see note on l. 183.

199. neque . . . postea: your later crimes are indeed neither unknown nor few in number. non multa: few; the figure litotes; 242.

200. designatum: sc. consulem.
 201. petitiones: thrusts, as made by gladiators.
 203. declinatione et corpore: hendiadys; 240.

 206. Quae . . . nescio quod: I know not by what ceremonies, etc. . . . because.
 207. initiata: it was customary for assassins to consecrate their weapons to some deity.

CHAPTER 7

209. Nunc vero: the orator here begins a calmer appeal, based on Catiline's present life.

211. debeo: sc. permotus esse. nulla: not at all.
 213. hoc: this (lack of greeting). post: within.
 214. vocis contumeliam: the reproach of speech.
 216. Quid . . . putas: and again, with what feelings, I ask, ought you to bear the fact that, etc.? The two quod-clauses are subjects of ferendum (esse); 204.¹ ista: those near you.

SUBSELLIUM

subsellia: the low seats of the senators, distinguished from the sella curulis, the official chair of the consul.

217. consulares: Catiline's place was with the other ex-praetors next to the exconsuls (consulares). tibi: dat. of agent, used w. a compound tense; 116.²

218. fuerunt: have been, used for sunt to denote what is no longer true.

221. si . . . metuerent: if my slaves feared me, not if they should fear; a condition contrary to fact; 198, a.³ The subject servi is more emphatic by its position.

accused of inciting to riot (de vi). A citizen who was to be tried for a crime against the state might place himself under the protection (custodia libera) of some man of rank who became responsible for his appearance at court. Note that such protection was refused Catiline by an ex-consul, by the consul Cicero, and by a praetor.

252. ad : = apud, at the house of.

254. domi meae : locative, at my house; 154.

255. tulisses : had received. isdem parietibus : in the same house walls; loc. abl. moenibus (l. 257) : by the same city walls; abl. of means.

256. qui . . . essem : since I was; a causal rel. clause; 192, c.¹

259. optimum : said w. irony. M. Metellum : a friend of Catiline, of whom little is known. videlicet : of course, ironical.

262. quam longe videtur : how far does it seem that he, etc. (lit., does he seem)?

263. dignum custodia; 150.² iudicarit : perf. subj.

264. emori, abire : i.e. suicide or exile.

265. suppliciis : abl. of separation.

268. Refer ad senatum : sc. rem, lay the matter before the Senate; a technical expression. The Senate, however, had no power to banish a citizen.

270. id quod abhorret : an act which is foreign to.

271. faciam ut intellegas : I will make you understand.

273. hanc vocem : this word, i.e. exsilio.

274. attendis, animadvertis : synonyms.

276. auctoritatem loquentium, etc. : the expressed command of those whose silent desire.

277. si . . . intulisset : a condition contrary to fact; 198, b.³

278. Sestio : a friend of Cicero who was now quaestor. Marcello : Marcellus became consul in 51 B.C. Cicero delivered an oration Pro Sestio, in 56 B.C. and another Pro Marcello in 46 B.C.

279. hoc in templo : a temple was a place of special safety.

280. vim et manus : violent hands; what figure of speech?

281. quiescunt : are silent; tacent : say nothing. Note the climax in this passage.

282. hi (i.e. the senators), equites, cives: the orator includes all classes of citizens, as arrayed against Catiline.

286. studia: sympathies, feelings. voces: shouts, raised by the crowd, when the conspirator entered the temple, or during the speech.

287. iam diu, iam pridem: see note on l. 138 and l. 165.

289. prosequantur: it was the custom for citizens going into exile to be escorted to the city gate by their friends.

CHAPTER 9

291. Quamquam: and yet, a common meaning in transitions. The clauses Te ut . . . frangat, etc. are exclamatory questions,¹ and may be explained as subjects of potestne fieri (can it be?) to be understood. Note the emphatic position of the pronouns. Trans. You be subdued by anything! You ever reform!

293. Utinam . . . duint: a wish expressing possibility. O that the gods may give; 188.²

294. duint: an old form of do, = dent.

295. animum induxeris: you determine (lit., bring your mind to). The tense is fut. perf., which is to be translated by the pres. after si.

296. nobis: indirect obj. of impendeat. si minus: if not.

297. recenti memoria: abl. of cause. at: at least. impendeat: indir. question w. quanta.

298. est tanti: it is worth while (lit., of such value); 110.³ dum modo: if only, introducing a clause of proviso; 199.⁴ privata: i.e. confined to myself.

320. Tu ut . . . possis: the same construction as in l. 291.

CHAPTER 10

323. tandem aliquando: at last (lit., some time at length).
iam pridem rapiebat: has long been hurrying; 174, c.¹

325. haec res: i.e. joining Manlius in rebellion against the country.

326. peperit: from pario. voluntas: desire.

327. Nunquam non modo: not only . . . never.

329. ex perditis atque derelictis conflatam: composed of men morally ruined, and deserted. ab fortuna: modifying derelictis. The abl. of agent is used instead of the abl. of means, because fortuna is personified.

331. Hic: here, i.e. in company with such men. perfruere: note the ending of the second person singular. gaudiis: abl. of cause.

334. Ad . . . studium: for the pursuit of a life like this. meditati sunt: were designed. The deponent verb is here passive in meaning. feruntur: see Vocab.

335. iacere: in appos. w. labores (practices). ad . . . stuprum: to watch for some intrigue.

338. bonis otiosorum: for the property (goods) of peaceable men. ubi ostentes: an opportunity to display (lit., where you may display); rel. clause of purpose; ubi = locum in quo.

339. patientiam: Catiline, according to the historians, was a man of great physical strength and endurance. His character is here depicted in darkest colors.

340. Tantum: so much, explained by the following ut-clauses, which are appositive clauses of result.

341. a consulatu reppuli: kept from, etc. Catiline had been a candidate for the consulship in the election of 63 B.C. His defeat was brought about by Cicero. exsul, consul: a play upon words.

14

345. Nunc, patres conscripti: the peroration or conclusion (chapters 11–13) is thought by critics to have been added or at least revised by Cicero when he wrote the oration later for publication. It seems too elaborate to have been delivered as here given.

346. detester ac deprecer: I may avert by protest and entreaty.

347. dicam: future. quae is relative not interrogative. penitus: adv., but may be rendered inmost, w. animus.

350. loquatur: should speak. The conclusion of this condition is implied in the first sentence of chapter 12: His . . . vocibus . . . respondebo.

351. Tune := tu + ne, to be taken w. patiere, l. 355. hostem: pred. acc.; 122, a.¹

354. servorum: eight years before this time the slaves under Spartacus had defeated several Roman armies and even threatened the city itself.

355. emissus, immissus: another play upon words (lit., let out, let into), driven out, let free against; cf. l. 341.

357. duci, rapi, mactari: a pass. inf. may be used w. impero instead of the regular ut and the subj.

358. mactari: note the meanings of this word, as given in the larger dictionaries: 1. to honor the gods; 2. to honor a man; 3. to present a man with anything good; 4. to present a man with an evil, hence to punish.

359. persaepe: this is an exaggeration. In chapter 1, Cicero mentions only one instance of a private citizen, that of P. Scipio, which was exceptional.

360. leges: the Valerian law of 509 B.C., the Porcian law of 198 B.C., and the Sempronian law of 122 B.C., provided that no Roman citizen should be scourged or put to death without the consent of the people, and that voluntary exile might be substituted for these penalties.

362. qui a . . . defecerunt: who have been traitors to.

363. invidiam posteritatis: it was the odium resulting from Cicero's prosecution of the conspirators that led to his banishment in 58 B.C.

364. praeclaram gratiam: ironical, fine gratitude.
 365. hominem . . . cognitum: Cicero was a novus homo, i.e. he was the first of his family to hold the higher offices; see Introd. 3. nulla commendatione: abl. of description. tam mature: Cicero held all his offices at the earliest legal age; see Introd. 32.

SECOND ORATION AGAINST CATILINE

INTRODUCTORY NOTE

At the conclusion of Cicero's oration against him, Catiline replied in his own defense, but upon speaking abusively of the consul, was interrupted by the senators, who called him "traitor" and "assassin." (See Sallust, Ch. 31). That night he left the city, pretending to go to Marseilles into exile, but in reality to join his army in Etruria, and assume the insignia of a consul.

THE ROSTRA (restored)

The Second Oration was delivered the following day (Nov. 9, 63 b.c.) from the rostra before the people in the Forum, to acquaint them officially of the facts, and to justify his own course.

OUTLINE

- I. Exordium — Catiline's departure, Ch. 1.
- II. Narratio —
 1. Cicero's defense against the charge of
 - (a) Too great leniency, Ch. 2-5;
 - (b) Too great severity, Ch. 6, 7.
 2. The forces of Catiline, Ch. 8-10.

3. The forces of the republic, Ch. 11.

III. Peroratio — The consul's vigilance and the protection of the gods.

CHAPTER 1

1. Tandem aliquando: an emphatic expression, now at last. Quirites: fellow citizens. This word, of uncertain origin, was applied to the Romans as civilians; Romani, as warriors and rulers.

3. ferro flammaque: we say with fire and sword.

4. iecimus, etc.: an anticlimax. Note the climax and asyndeton in the next sentence, Abiit, etc. See 237 and 239. ipsum: of his own accord.

5. verbis: with words of farewell, used in irony. For the same thought see Oration I, line 289.

6. Nulla iam: see Vocab. for iam w. negatives.

7. moenibus ipsis: dat. of ind. obj., against the city, i.e. the walled city.

9. inter versabitur: will play about. sica illa: the famous dagger, referred to in Oration I, l. 205.

10. campo, foro, curia: “the three chief centers of Roman public life.”

11. domesticos parietes: Cicero may have had in mind the attempt on his own life. loco motus est: he was forced from his position, i.e. vantage ground, as a wrestler or gladiator.

13. bellum iustum: a regular war, i.e. with an open enemy, not with insidious conspirators.

16. Quod: causal. vero: but. cruentum: red with blood, used as a pred. adj.

17. ei: dat. of reference, 115, a.¹

20. Iacet prostratus: as a defeated gladiator.

23. e suis faucibus: the figure of animal of prey.

24. evomuerit, proiecerit: subjv. in a quoted causal clause; 196.²

CHAPTER 2

26. quales . . . oportebat: as all ought to have been; see note on Cat. I, l. 18. If the citizens had all desired the arrest of Catiline, the consul's task would have been easier.

² — 886	540	286	541	588	535

26. qui . . . accuset: a clause of description. in hoc ipso: in this very thing, i.e. the fact of Catiline's departure.

30. Interfectum esse: the perf. tense is here used for emphasis instead of the pres.; HB. 490.

31. adfectum: we should expect this word to precede interfectum, as it does in thought.

32. mos maiorum: see Cat. I. l. 362. huius imperi: of this authority, vested in the consul.

33. res publica: the public welfare.

34. qui . . . crederent: a clause of description. deferrem: subjv., by attraction.

35. defenderent: sc. eum. si iudicarem: if I judged; a condition contrary to fact.

38. periculo: at the risk. cum: causal. ne . . . probata: as the matter had not even then been made clear to all of you.

40. multassem: should punish; a subjv. in indir. disc. for multavero.

41. huc: to this point. ut . . . possetis: a clause of result.

43. Quem hostem: to preserve the emphasis, trans. as for this enemy. quam . . . putem: indir. question, depending on intellegatis, how much I think he should be feared.

44. licet intellegatis: you may know (lit., it is permitted that you know). intellegatis (without ut) is the subject of licet. hinc: explained by the following clause.

45. quod exierit: subjv. as if quoted from another person. parum comitatus: with so small an escort.

46. Utinam eduxisset; 188.¹

47. Tongilium, etc.: friends of Catiline. mihi: an ethical dat. not easily translated. I see, bless me, thank Heaven, are suggested equivalents; 115, b.² in praetexta: see Vocab.

50. quanto aere alieno: how much in debt (lit., of how great debt); abl. of description.

CHAPTER 3

52. illum exercitum: of Catiline. prae: in comparison with. Gallicanis legionibus: the Roman garrison in Cisalpine Gaul.

1 — 773	441	279	260	558	510
2 — 478	380	188	351	432	372

54. Metellus: the praetor mentioned in Cat., I, l. 257. habuit: has made. his copiis: w. prae, l. 52.

55. magno opere: greatly. ex senibus: referring to the veterans of Sulla; the abl. denotes material, 134, a.¹.

56. ex agresti luxuria: abstract for the concrete, of luxurious countrymen, a phrase nearly repeated in ex . . . decoctoribus.

57. vadimonia: these men in debt were under bail to appear at court. quam: rather than.

58. quibus si: = et si eis. aciem: the battle array.

59. edictum praetoris: at the beginning of his year of office, the praetor or judge issued a statement of the principles he would follow in his administration. These of course would concern the bankrupts.

61. unguentis, purpura: the use of these was a sign of degeneration in the eyes of the sterner Romans.

62. malleum: a potential subjv., I should prefer; 189.² Here it takes the place of utinam before eduxisset, to express a wish; cf. l. 46., suos milites: pred. acc., as his soldiers.

66. quid cogitent: indir. question, object of scire.

68. cui sit . . . attributa: Catiline had assigned the various parts of Italy to his lieutenants.

70. has . . . insidias: the execution in the city of these plots of murder and of fire.

71. superioris noctis: Nov. 6, when the meeting was held at Laeca's house.

73. Ne: surely, or I assure you.

CHAPTER 4

76. Quod: what, explained by the noun clause ut . . . videlicet, that you should see.

78. nisi si: unless. quis: any one. Catilinae similes: men like Catiline (cf. "the likes of"). Catilinae is in the gen. case, like tui in Cat., I, l. 61.

81. concedam: fut. exeant: let them begone. ne patiantur; 187, b.³ desiderio sui: with longing for them.

82. miserum: in misery. Aurelia via: abl. of the route taken; 146.¹ This road extended from Rome along the coast to Pisa. Another road would have been more direct to the camp of Manlius, but Catiline was pretending to go to another place; see l. 215.

83. ad vesperam: by evening.

85. O rem publicam: cf. O tempora, Cat., I, l. 12. sentinam urbis, exhausto: the figure of the ship of state. Catiline is compared to the "bilge water" of the ship.

88. quod . . . conceperit: a descriptive clause.

89. tota Italia: the loc. abl. may omit in when tota modifies the noun.

97. Iam vero: and again.

98. alios: some; aliorum (l. 99), of others.

99. serviebat: ministered to. Repeat qui as the subject. aliis, aliis: to some, to others.

100. impellendo: 227, d.²

CHAPTER 5

116. eius studia . . . ratione: his varied activities in a different sphere of life.

GLADIATORS

(From a Pompeian tomb relief)

117. ludo gladiatorio: gladiators were trained in schools in Rome, Capua, and other places. They were slaves, originally captives taken in war.

- 24 118. audacior: bolder, than the rest; so levior (l. 119). fateatur: subjv. in a descriptive clause.
119. nemo in scaena: actors as well as gladiators were slaves as a rule, their art being considered unworthy of Romans.
121. exercitatione: abl. of means. adsuefactus frigore . . .
122. perferendis: trained to endure cold (lit., in enduring); abl. of specification. Cicero spoke of Catiline's powers of endurance in Cat., I, l. 339. fortis: pred. adj. w. praedicabatur.
123. cum: concessive. industriae subsidia: the aids of industry.
126. O nos beatos: for the acc., cf. l. 85.
129. libidines, audaciae: used concretely, deeds of passion, acts of boldness.
131. res: money. fides: credit.
133. quae erat (sc. eis): which they had. in abundantia: in their (time of) prosperity.
134. comissiones solum: if they aimed only at revelry, they would be tolerable, but they mingle their revelry with plans of murder and fire.
136. hoc: explained by insidiari. quis possit: who would be able? potential subjv. in a rhetorical question; 201.¹
138. mihi: ethical dat., implying sarcasm or disgust, which we may express by the tone of the voice; or trans. bless me. accubantes: it was the Roman custom to recline at table.
143. Quibus: = sed eis: dat. w. impendere; 112, b.²
144. improbitati: dat. w. debitam.

THIRD ORATION AGAINST CATILINE

INTRODUCTORY NOTE

The Senate promptly declared Catiline an enemy of the state and offered amnesty to all his followers who would lay down their arms. To Cicero was assigned the guarding of the city, and to his colleague, Antonius, the command of the army. The documentary evidence needed against the conspirators was supplied by the Allobroges who had come to Rome to secure aid for their financial difficulties. Their patron at Rome was Q. Fabius Sanga. To him they reported the overtures made to them by the conspirators, and he in turn informed Cicero. By design they were to feign enthusiasm and require written statements from the leaders. On the night following December 2, they left Rome with Volturcius, and were arrested on the Mulvian Bridge three miles north of the city. The Gauls and the leading conspirators were brought before the Senate, which hastily convened in the Temple of Concord. The meeting was prolonged till the dusk of evening, when Cicero gave an account of it to the people who were awaiting the news outside the temple. This was the Third Oration against Catiline (December 3, 63 b.c.).

OUTLINE

- I. Exordium — The exposure of the conspiracy, Ch. 1.
- II. Narratio —
 1. The arrest of the Allobroges, Ch. 2, 3.
 2. The testimony of Volturcius and the Gauls before the Senate, Ch. 4, 5.
 3. The action of the Senate, Ch. 6.
 4. Success due to the absence of Catiline, and to divine aid, Ch. 7-9.
- III. Peroratio — The people exhorted to express their gratitude and to fulfill their duties as citizens, Ch. 10-12.

PAGE

1. Rem publicam . . . videtis: this long sentence illustrates the "period" in Latin rhetoric; 234.¹ We may translate the objects first, then introduce the verb and the participles. vitam: we should say lives.

3. domicilium: urbem is an appositive.

4. deorum: subjective gen. w. amore; 98.²

7. non minus iucundi: the figure of litotes; 242.

9. salutis . . . condicio: the joy of safety is certain, (while) our lot at birth is uncertain; i.e. whether we are destined to good fortune or not. sensu: consciousness.

11. profecto: w. debemit. illum: i.e. Romulus.

13. benevolentia famaque: with our loyalty and regard for his fame. sustulimus: exalted. The Romans deified their heroes and leaders. As a deity Romulus was called Quirinus.

14. debemit: he (Cicero) will deserve.

15. urbi, etc.: dat. w. subiectos, circumdatos.

20. comperta: logically should precede inlustrata. exponam: I will tell (the facts).

21. et quanta . . . sint: obj. of scire.

22. investigata, comprehensa: investigated, detected (lit., tracked, caught).

23. exspectatis: are waiting to hear.

24. ut: ever since.

39

29. cum eiciebam: indicative because the clause is merely temporal, and not descriptive; 195, b.³

30. illa: sc. invidia.

31. quod exierit: subjv., quoting what men will say; 196, a.⁴

33. restitissent: what form would the direct discourse require? 216, b.⁵

34. putabam: I was thinking; the time denoted is the same as that of eiciebam and volebam; cf. putavi, l. 48.

36. in eo: explained by the noun clause ut . . . sentirem ac viderem, in the effort to know and see.

38. auribus: ind. obj. w. minorem fidem faceret: found too little credence in your ears.

39. faceret: subjv. by attraction. oratio mea: my words.

40. ut . . . comprehendenderem: stating the purpose of viderem.

42. Allobrogum: this Gallic tribe had been conquered by the Romans in 121 B.C. Their envoys had come to Rome to complain of the provincial government.

43. Lentulo: one of the praetors who was allied with Catiline.

44. eodem itinere: i.e. through Etruria, where Catiline had his headquarters.

46. Volturcum: he was sent along as an agent of the conspirators.

49. ut: repeating ut of l. 48, for emphasis.

51. praetores: there were eight praetors in the city. Though they were primarily legal officers, judges, they had also the power to command troops (imperium).

52. amantissimos rei publicae (gen.): most patriotic.

54. qui . . . omnia sentirent: who entertained all sentiments, a descriptive causal clause.

56. pontem Mulvium: across the Tiber, about two miles north of the city, now called Ponte Molle.

60. praefectura Reatina: a provincial town governed by an officer (praefectus) sent from Rome, and having Cicero as a patron (patronus). Introd. 21.

CHAPTER 3

69. erat commissa: had begun. litterae: letters; the pl. may mean either letter or letters.

70. integris signis: with seals unbroken. ipsi: the Allobroges and Volturcius.

73. Gabinium: this man had brought about the conference of the Allobroges and the conspirators.

76. credo: ironical, I suppose. Lentulus was known for his sluggishness as well as his wickedness. in litteris dandis: in writing the letter. This letter, however, was very short; see chapter 5, l. 155.

78. viris placeret: it seemed best to the men. The subject of placeret is the infinitive clause litteras . . . aperiri . . . deferri.

80. prius: to be taken w. quam.

81. tumultus iniectus (esse) civitati: English inverts this construction, the state was thrown into panic.

82. negavi . . . deferrem: I said that I would not fail to lay before the public council (the Senate) the case as a whole which concerned the public peril (lit. would not act so as not to refer, etc.).

87. frequentem: full.

89. qui efferet: purpose.

90. si quid . . . esset: any weapons there might be. esset: subjv. by attraction.

CHAPTER 4

92. fidem publicam: a promise of pardon in the name of the state, because of his turning state's evidence.

93. quae sciret: subjv. by attraction.

96. litteras: a letter. ut uteretur: advising him to employ.

98. ut . . . esset ille: a noun clause explaining consilio.

100. caedem infinitam: the plan was to kill the senators and as many other citizens as possible.

103. litteras: letters.

105. sibi praescriptum . . . mitterent: that they had been directed to send.

108. ex fatis Sibyllinis: according to the Sibylline prophecies. The tradition was that the Cumæan prophetess, Sibyl, had sold to King Tarquin her books of prophecy, written in Greek hexameters. These books were destroyed in the Capitol fire, in 83 B.C., but were replaced by others. haruspicum: the soothsayers foretold the future and interpreted the divine will chiefly by inspecting the entrails of animals slain in sacrifice.

109. Cornelium: his full name was P. Cornelius Lentulus Sura.

110. esset necesse: it was ordained. Cinna: L. Cornelius Cinna, the successor of Marius as leader of the popular party.

111. Sulla: L. Cornelius Sulla, the dictator and rival of Marius. fatalem: ordained by fate.

113. virginum absolutionem: six Vestal Virgins guarded the sacred perpetual fire in the Temple of Vesta. If a Vestal broke her vows, she was to be buried alive. Nothing is known of the acquittal referred to.

114. Capitoli incensionem: the Capitol, or Temple of Jupiter, was burned in 83 b.c.

115. Cethego: dat. of possessor.

116. Saturnalibus: on the Saturnalia, a festival of merriment and good will in honor of Saturn, beginning Dec. 17. Revolutionists select holidays as the time for executing their plots.

CHAPTER 5

118. ne longum sit: not to be tedious. tabellas: short letters were written on tablets (tabellae) made of two or more thin boards

TABELLAE ET STILUS

fastened together. The inner surfaces were hollowed out and the depressions filled with wax, so as to leave a raised rim, resembling our slates. Writing was done upon the wax by means of a pointed instrument (stilus). The letter was bound with a thread (linum), and sealed on the knot with wax (cera).

119. datae: written; sc. esse.

120. signum: the seal made on the knot with a signet ring.

121. Erat scriptum: the subj. is the inf. clause following.

44

123. orare: the subj. is sese (Cethagus). sibi recepissent: had undertaken for him, i.e. had promised him (Cethagus).

124. qui: = cum is, although he; 192, b.¹

125. apud ipsum: at his house.

127. recitatis litteris: by the reading of the letters. abiectus conscientia: conscience-smitten.

129. manum: handwriting.

130. in eandem sententiam: to the same purport.

133. avi tui: P. Cornelius Lentulus, consul 162 B.C.

135. revocare debuit: ought to have recalled.

136. eadem ratione: of the same character; abl. of description.

137. si vellet: subjv. in implied indir. disc.

139. exposito atque edito: given and taken down (recorded).

140. quid sibi esset: what he had to do (lit., what there was to him).

144. fatis Sibyllinis: cf. l. 108.

145. subito: adv.

146. posset infitari: might have denied.

147. eum: obj. of defecit (l. 150).

151. litteras: the letter.

154. Erant: it was. sine nomine: the customary greeting was omitted, as well as the name of the writer.

156. quem in locum: to what position, in the plot.

158. infimorum: of the lowest, referring to the slaves.

161. cum . . . tum: not only . . . but also.

CHAPTER 6

168. Indiciis . . . editis: cf. l. 139. The evidence was recorded by the clerks of the Senate.

169. de summa re publica: for the highest welfare of the state. fieri placeret: should be done (lit., was pleasing to be done).

170. principibus: i.e. the leading men of the Senate, including ex-consuls and consuls elect. See Introd. 30.

171. sine ulla varietate: without any dissenting voice, unanimously.

176. sit liberata: subjv. in a quoted reason.

177. forti fidelique: may best be taken as pred. adj. Trans. I had found (usus essem) their service brave and loyal.

178. collegae meo: C. Antonius, the other consul. He was in sympathy with Catiline, but was made neutral by the promise of the province of Macedonia for his proconsulship.

181. abdicasset: see Vocab. A Roman magistrate could not be brought to trial until he resigned his office. in custodiam: cf. Cat. I, l. 251.

184. hoc decretum est: this decree was passed (lit., this was decreed). L. Cassium: a senator mentioned in l. 105.

187. Apulia: a district used chiefly for grazing; cf. Cat. II, l. 68. indicatum: proved.

188. deduxit: “deducere is the technical word for leading forth or conducting a colony to a place. The Roman colonia marched out in military style, sub vexillo.”—Nicol.

190. versatus: engaged.

192. ea . . . ut: such . . . that.

194. novem hominum: of this number Lentulus, Cethegus, Statilius, and Gabinius were already under arrest; Ceparius fled from Rome when the conspiracy was discovered, but was arrested later; the rest escaped punishment by flight.

197. supplicatio: a solemn thanksgiving to the gods for victory, declared by the Senate. The student will recall the instances mentioned in Caesar's Gallic War.

A ROMAN SACRIFICE

FOURTH ORATION AGAINST CATILINE

INTRODUCTORY NOTE

1. The penalty.—On December 4, the Senate voted rewards to the Allobroges and Volturcius, and heard further evidence. Finally, on December 5, this body met in the Temple of Concord at the foot of the Capitoline Hill, to consider the question of punishment for the prisoners. Silanus advocated the death penalty; Caesar, life imprisonment and the confiscation of their property. Then the consul, as the presiding officer, reviewed the two opinions in his Fourth Oration against Catiline. He was followed by M. Porcius Cato, the young tribune-elect, who in a speech of great vigor declared that the conspirators were criminals who deserved death. The Senate had been strongly impressed by the proposal of Caesar, but, after hearing Cato, decided for immediate execution.

M. PORCIUS CATO (UTICENSIS) AND HIS WIFE

2. The execution. — Without delay, the five prisoners were taken to the state's prison, known as the Tullianum, where in the lower dungeon, death was inflicted by strangling. (See Introd. 43.) On his way across the Forum Cicero announced to the populace "Vixērunt," "they have lived." Although the law provided that Roman citizens should not be put to death without appeal to the people, Cicero attempted to justify the Senate's course on the plea that such men were not to be treated as citizens.

3. The fate of Catiline. — Early in 62 b.c. the rebel forces, attempting to escape into Cisalpine Gaul, were annihilated near Faesulae, between two divisions of the Roman army. Of Catiline, who led them, the historian Florus wrote, Catilīna longē a suīs inter hostium cadavera repertus est, pulcherrimā morte, sī prō patriā sīc concidisset.

1. in me: toward me. vestrum: poss. gen. of vos.
 3. vestro: sc. periculo. depulsum sit: implied indir. disc.
 for depulsum erit.
 4. iucunda: pleasing. grata: welcome.
 7. si . . . data est: i.e. if the consulship has been given to me on these terms.
 9. feram: fut.

13. aequitas continetur: justice is centered. The reference is to the law courts of basilicas, located around the Forum. campus consecratus: the consuls were elected by the Comitia Centuriata, which met in the Campus Martius. But no election could take place until the auspices were favorable.

14. auxilium . . . gentium: the Senate, meeting usually in the Curia, determined the policy of the Roman government toward foreign nations.

16. lectus: cf. Cat. I. l. 129. haec sedes: the sella curulis, or curule chair, a symbol of authority for a consul, censor, praetor, curule aedile, dictator, or magister equitum. It was shaped like a camp chair, without a back, resting on ivory legs.

19. meo quodam dolore: with some pain on my own part; abl. of attendant circumstance. in vestro timore: i.e. while you were afraid.

SELLA CURULIS

20. ut . . . eriperem: a noun clause explaining hunc exitum.
 22. virgines Vestales: cf. note on Cat., III, l. 113.

27. subeat: let it be endured; 187, b.¹ fatale: cf. Cat., III, l. 111.

34. cur non laeter: why should I not rejoice? A deliberative question; 201.¹

CHAPTER 2

47. praesident: watch over. pro eo ac mereor: in such measure as I deserve.

48. gratiam; see Vocab. si quid obtigerit (fut. perf.): if anything happens, put mildly for if I shall be killed.

50. consulari: death could not be untimely for a man who had held the highest office.

51. sapienti: Roman philosophy taught that one should endure with calmness whatever fate might befall him.

52. fratris: Quintus Tullius Cicero, the praetor elect. In 54 B.C. he served as a legatus with Caesar's army in Gaul; Caes., B. G., Bk. V, 38-52. praesentis: now present.

53. horum: his friends among the senators.

54. Neque . . . revocat: and often my thoughts are recalled homeward by, etc. neque non : = et.

55. uxor: Terentia. filia: Tullia. parvulus filius: Marcus, now only two years old. Cicero in his letters gives evidence of his affection for his family.

57. obsidem: the thought of his son's name and welfare would strengthen Cicero's purpose. If he failed while performing his duty, the state would protect his heir.

58. gener: C. Calpurnius Piso, Tullia's husband. He was not a senator, and therefore stood with the other spectators at the entrance of the temple.

59. in eam partem uti: to the end (or purpose) that.

61. una peste: in one common destruction.

62. incumbite, circumspicite: lit., bend to the oars, look out for. These words with nautical meaning suggest the ship of state.

64. Non Ti. Gracchus . . . adducitur: (it is) not Tiberius Gracchus . . . (who) is brought.

69. vestram omnium: = omnium vestrum.

72. servitia: = servi, abstract for the concrete.

76. indices: the witnesses. rei: from reus.
 77. iudiciis: the official measures explained in the following statement.

82. dandos: sc. esse.
 83. qui honos: an honor which.
 85. praemia: Sallust says that the Senate had offered to any slave who should give information, freedom and 100,000 sesterces; to a freeman, impunity and 200,000 sesterces.

87. nominatim: the names are given by Sallust, Cat., 47, 4.
 90. tamquam integrum: as an open question.

91. praedicam: will say first. sunt consulis: belong to the consul (to say); pred. gen. of possession.

92. nova . . . mala: that certain strange evils were brewing and stirring.

94. haberi: was being made.
 96. ante noctem: to be valid, a decree of the Senate must be passed before sunset.

97. delatum sit: has been reported.
 99. Latius opinione: more widely than is supposed.
 100. transcendit Alpes: this refers to the Allobroges.
 101. provincias: Catiline expected aid from Spain, and from Mauretania in northern Africa.

102. sustentando aut prolatando: by forbearance or delay.

CHAPTER 4

104. sententias: the motions offered, or opinions expressed by the senators, when called upon by the presiding officer; cf. Cat. I. l. 109. D. Silani: being consul elect he was entitled to speak first; see Introd. 30.

105. haec: these things, i.e. this city.
 106. C. Caesaris: Gaius Julius Caesar, leader of the popular party. He had been quaestor and aedile and was now praetor elect for 62 B.C.

 118. inviti: used adverbially, unwillingly.
 119. Vincula et ea sempiterna: imprisonment and that too for life. In this argument it must be remembered that Cicero himself favored the death penalty. Life imprisonment, as he shows, would be more severe than death, but it was not legal as a penalty, and besides there were no prisons for the purpose.
 121. iubet: i.e. he proposes to order them (sc. eos). Habere: to involve. ista res: that proposition. iniquitatem: it would be unfair to the towns to impose the burden of responsibility for the prisoners. difficultatem (l. 122): a refusal to take them would embarrass the towns in their relations with Rome.
 122. si velis: if you (i.e. any one) wish; the indef. second person sing. requires the subjv. in subordinate clauses.² Decernatur: let it be decreed.

149. Intellectum est quid interesseret: it was seen (when Caesar spoke) what a difference there is. levitatem: “irresponsible utterances.” — Nicol.

152. de istis: eorum.

153. non neminem: one or more. Cicero may have had in mind particularly the tribune elect, Q. Metellus Nepos, who with his veto a few weeks later prevented Cicero from addressing the people on the ground that the consul's execution of the conspirators was illegal. de capite: regarding the life, or civil rights. The power to condemn a citizen to death did not belong to the Senate, but to the people in the Comitia Centuriata.

154. sententiam ferat: cast a vote. Is: singular in form, referring to non neminem.

157. quaesitori: the investigator, i.e. Cicero.

158. re et causa: the fact (of the conspiracy) and the case (i.e. the legal question).

159. legem Semproniam: the law of C. Sempronius Graeculus reaffirming the right of Roman citizens to appeal to the people before they could be punished with death. But enemies of their country cannot be protected by this law (l. 161).

162. latorem: if Gracchus himself was not saved by his law, how can these men be saved by it?

CHAPTER 6

173. sive hoc statueritis: i.e. if you pass Caesar's motion.

174. comitem ad contionem: a companion for the assembly. After the meeting of the Senate the consul would be expected to call an informal assembly of the people (contio), and announce the Senate's decision, as he did in delivering the third oration. It was the custom for the man who proposed the bill to stand with the consul, as he thus addressed the people. populo: w. carum atque iucundum.

255. ex dissensione huius ordinis: after a quarrel with this order. The quarrel between the Senate and the equites arose over the question who should be the jurors in the courts of justice. This right originally held by the senators alone was transferred to the equites by C. Gracchus. Sulla restored the right to the senators. By the Aurelian law in 70 B.C., the jury was divided between the senators, the equites, and the tribunes of the treasury.

262. tribunos aerarios: their duties are not clearly defined, but were first connected with raising and disbursing the war tax. At this time they constituted an order in the state. scribas: on Dec. 5, the date of this oration, the clerks were customarily assigned by lot (sors) to the quaestors, to serve in the provinces. Cicero says that they had come away from the treasury because they were more interested in the fate of the conspirators than in their own fortune.

353. Italia: we should expect ex.

354. alter Africanus: P. Cornelius Scipio Aemilianus Africanus Minor, son of Aemilius Paulus, but adopted into the Scipio family; hence his name. He captured Carthage in 146 b.c. and Numantia in 133, thus ending the wars with Carthage and Spain.

356. Paulus: father of the younger Scipio just mentioned. The Macedonian king Perses was defeated by him at Pydna in 168 b.c.

358. bis liberavit: by his victory over the Teutons in 102 b.c., and over the Cimbri in 101.

360. res gestae: exploits, deeds. solis cursus: sc. continetur.

363. quo: = ad quas.

364. quo: a country to which (lit., whither).

366. Quamquam: and yet. uno loco: in one respect.

368. oppressi serviunt: (when) conquered become our slaves.

371. cum reppuleris: when you have driven.

372. possis: you can (w. the force of potes). Both verbs are in the subjv. because of the indef. second person. mihi: dat. of agent.

377. a me: abl. of separation.

380. conspiracyem: not conspiracy; see Vocab.

CHAPTER 11

382. pro imperio: in place of the military command. The rich province of Macedonia had fallen by lot to Cicero for his proconsulship, but he had conceded it to his colleague Antonius, to secure the latter's neutrality.

385. clientelis: clientships. A province or provincial town might appoint an ex-governor or other influential person to be its representative (patronus) at Rome. The provincials were then his clients (clientes). hospitiis: ties of friendship, formed by two citizens of different states, by which they were bound to protect and aid each other; or a community might honor an individual by making him their hospes.

THE MANILIAN LAW

INTRODUCTORY NOTE

1. Mithridates. — One of Rome's most formidable foes was Mithridates the Great, king of Pontus, a country south of the Black Sea. As early as 90 B.C. he had extended his power over a large part of Asia Minor. Allying himself with Tigranes, king of Armenia, he overran the Roman province of Asia, i.e. Phrygia, Mysia, Caria, and Lydia. In 88 B.C., by his edict, 80,000 Italians on the Asiatic Coast were cruelly murdered. His next step was to invade Greece. At this time Sulla, the Roman general, was sent against him, who within four years re-established the Roman power, causing the king to give up his conquests, surrender 80 war vessels, and pay a heavy fine. This was the First Mithridatic War (88–84 B.C.). The Second Mithridatic War (83–82 B.C.) was of little importance, though resulting in the defeat of Murena, whom Sulla had left in command.

2. The Third Mithridatic War (74–63 B.C.). — For eight years the king increased his forces and strengthened his cause. In 74 he renewed hostilities by invading Bithynia. The Romans were led in succession by Lucullus, Glabrio, and Pompey. Lucullus, who was an able general, conquered both Mithridates and Tigranes taking the greater part of Pontus and the Armenian capital. But this conquest was left incomplete by the mutiny of his soldiers and his recall, secured by his enemies at Rome (74–67 B.C.). Taking advantage of this situation, the king succeeded in recovering all his lost territory, while the incompetent Glabrio, who succeeded Lucullus, remained inactive (67–66 B.C.). It was then that the Romans turned to Pompey.

3. Pompey (Gnaeus Pompeius) was pre-eminently a soldier. Born in 106 B.C., he was, at the age of 17, a subordinate to his father in the Social War. He had distinguished himself in Italy under Sulla, in Africa against the Marians who had fled there, in Gaul, in Spain against Sertorius, and, on his return from Spain, against Spartacus and the slaves. In 70 he was made consul, though under legal age, and not having been praetor or quaestor. The bill of the tribune A. Gabinius, in 67 B.C., gave him supreme command for three years over all the Mediterranean and its coasts for ten miles inland. It was in the exercise of this command that Pompey won his greatest fame, by promptly clearing the Mediterranean of the pirates who had been a menace to commerce for many years.

4. The Manilian Law. — With the popularity naturally resulting from this career, Pompey was logically the man for the war with Mithridates. The tax-farming Equites and all classes except the conservative Optimates demanded him. C. Manilius the tribune nominated him early in 66 B.C., in the bill known as the Manilian Law. The Optimates, represented by Catulus and Hortensius, opposed the law on the ground that it bestowed too much power on an individual. Cicero, who was serving as praetor, was the chief advocate of the bill. The speech which he then delivered was his first from the Rostra to the popular assembly. It is noted as a model for "clearness of statement, beauty of diction, and regularity of construction." But it has been criticised because it treats the questions of public policy but superficially, conjuring with facts rather than weighing arguments.

5. End of the War. — The bill was passed by the Comitia, and Pompey, who was still in Cilicia, hastened to encounter Mithridates. Within three years (66–63 B.C.), the king was completely vanquished, and perished in the Crimea, to which he had fled.

CHAPTER 1

1. frequens conspectus vester: the sight of your crowded assembly.

2. hic locus: i.e. the rostra in the Forum. The right of addressing the people on a question of legislation (ius agendi) belonged only to a magistrate (hence amplissimus, most dignified), though he might delegate the privilege to a private citizen (hence ornatissimus, most honorable).

4. aditu laudis: pathway to fame. optimo cuique: to all the best men.

6. vitae rationes: plan of life, in the practice of his legal profession. ineunte: early (lit., beginning).

7. per aetatem: a citizen under forty years could not be praetor, and hence had not the ius agendi. See Introd. 32.

8. perfectum: refers to the thought in an address; elaboratum to its form; "nothing save the finished product of talent and painstaking industry."—Nicol.

10. temporibus: the necessities. periculis (l. 12) legal dangers, trials.

13. caste integreque: the Cincian law (204 B.C.) made it illegal for advocates to receive fees. Cicero here implies his own innocence.

14. dilationem: the election for the eight praetors, which was held in the Comitia Centuriata, was declared void on two occasions in 67 B.C. possibly because of some political disturbance. On each occasion Cicero had been elected first and unanimously before the postponement (dilationem) occurred.

19. honoribus mandandis: by conferring honors (offices).

20. ex forensi usu: i.e. from practice in the courts.

24. ei rei: for this ability, i.e. in dicendo. quoque: as well as for other qualifications.

26. laetandum esse: is a cause for rejoicing (lit., w. pass. force, must be rejoiced over).

39. copia: abundance of material. modus: proper limit.

CHAPTER 2

43. ducitur: is derived, originates.

46. alter relictus: Mithridates, after being defeated by Lucullus, had been allowed to escape. alter lacesitus: Tigranes had been provoked to warfare by the demand to surrender Mithridates, his father-in-law, who had taken refuge with him.

COIN OF MITHRIDATES

47. Asiam: the Roman province consisting of Phrygia, Mysia, Caria, and Lydia.

48. Equitibus: the members of the equestrian order, because of their wealth, were the financiers of Rome.

49. magnaes res aguntur: capital is at stake.

51. necessitudine: Cicero himself came from an equestrian family.

52. detulerunt: the obj. of this verb extends to neminem (l. 60).

53. vestra provincia: Bithynia had been bequeathed to the Romans by Nicomedes III. in 74 B.C. quae . . . est: parenthetical, and not affected by the indir. disc.

54. regnum Ariobarzanis: Cappadocia, bordering on Pontus.

56. magnis rebus gestis: concessive.

57. qui successerit: the successor of Lueullus was Glabrio, who was incompetent for the task. esse paratum: sc. eum as subj.

58. unum: one man, Pompey. imperatorem: pred. acc.

64. quod (= ut id) . . . debeat: a descriptive clause of result.

65. persequendi: sc. belli: of prosecuting it, i.e. following it up to the end.

71. pacis ornamenta, subsidia belli: chiasmus; 238.¹

73. a vobis: abl. instead of dat. of agent, to avoid confusion w. quibus which is dat. of ind. obj.

CHAPTER 3

77. illa macula: explained by quod (l. 79) . . . regnat (l. 84), etc. bello superiore: the First Mithridatic War, 88–83 B.C.

78. insedit: from insido.

80. una significazione litterarum: by one stroke of the pen, as we should say. Mithridates commanded that all Italians in his dominions be put to death. Eighty thousand are said to have perished.

85. latebris: abl. of means, but trans. in the hiding places.

86. versari: to flaunt himself.

88. insignia victoriae: i.e. the triumphal procession in Rome, granted by the Senate on the return of the victorious army.

89. Sulla's triumph was celebrated in 83 B.C., Murena's in 81.

93. quod: sc. propter id: for what they did, etc.

94. res publica: the political situation, caused by the renewed supremacy of the Marian faction, while Sulla was absent. To meet this, Sulla returned to Rome, leaving his lieutenant Murena in command.

100. potuisset: subjv. by attraction.

102. ac litteras: we should say with despatches. eos duces: i.e. Sertorius and his associates, who succeeded Marius in Spain. Sertorius, who was a very able leader, agreed to send the king Roman military instructors in exchange for a fleet.

103. disiunctissimis . . . diversis: Pontus and Spain, widely separated and most remote (in opposite directions) from Rome.

104. binis: used for duobus.¹

106. de imperio: for the supremacy.

107. alterius partis: from one quarter.

110. in altera parte: in the East. res: affairs.

111. initia . . . gestarum: his exploits at the beginning.

114. alio loco: in chapter 8.

115. vera: undeserved. ei: dat. of separation.

CHAPTER 5

120. Maiores . . . gesserunt: the statement refers to campaigns against the Illyrian pirates, in 229 B.C.

121. iniuriosius: the force of the comp. is somewhat, rather; so in superbius, l. 124; see 160.² tot milibus: see note, l. 80.

124. appellati superbius: Sparta desired to withdraw from the Achaean League and appealed to Rome for help. Commissioners were sent to Greece to settle the difficulty (148 B.C.), but they were insulted in the assembly at Corinth, prevented from speaking, and, as some say, imprisoned. Cicero states the offense mildly for the sake of argument.

125. extinctum: agreeing in gender w. lumen; Corinthus is feminine.

126. legatum consularem: M. Aquillius, who had been consul with Marius in 101 B.C. He was sent in 90 B.C. to restore the

152. hoc (abl.) etiam magis: and that too all the more.

154. cum imperio: with full authority. ut: denoting result.

CHAPTER 6

161. Antiocho: the Roman people fought with Antiochus, king of Syria, on behalf of Pergamus and Rhodes, 192 b.c. Antiochus was aided by the Aetolian League (cum Aetolis). The war with Philip V, of Macedonia, was undertaken for the Athenians; the three Punic wars, for allies in Sicily, Spain, and Africa. But the protection of allies in all these wars was merely a pretext for conquest.

165. de vectigalibus agatur: = vectigalia agantur.

166. tanta: (only) so great, scarcely enough to pay the troops.

166. eis contenti: see 150.³

171. belli utilitatem: the advantage gained by war, derived from the resulting revenues.

179. ex portu: duties on imports and exports, collected at the harbors. decumis: tithes ("tenths"), the tax on farm products. scriptura: a tax on cattle grazing in the public lands, according to the number listed (scribere).

181. fructus: income.

184. exercent: men "farmed" the taxes, i.e., took the contract for collecting them. The contract was awarded to the highest bidder, who paid the stated amount annually into the treasury, keeping as his profit any additional amount collected. The revenue farmers, or publicans, were of the equestrian order, the wealthy class. In the case of large provinces the revenues were farmed by great stock companies, which kept their headquarters at Rome.

368. eorum ipsorum: of those very enemies.

369. testis, testis, testis: what figure is this? legionibus: dat.

371. Hispania, saepissime: Pompey, however, accomplished but little in Spain until the death of Sertorius in 72 B.C., and on one occasion was saved from defeat only by the arrival of his colleague Metellus.

373. servili bello: Crassus had practically ended this war, before Pompey on his way back from Spain met and easily destroyed a remnant of the army of Spartacus, who were trying to escape into Gaul. But Pompey claimed the honors of the bellum servile. taetro: disgraceful, because the enemy were slaves and gladiators. periculoso: because the slaves had defeated four Roman armies in succession.

374. absente: Pompey was in Spain.

375. quod = et id. attenuatum . . . est: trans. by the part., having wasted and dwindled away.

378. cum universa: not only in their whole extent.

382. servitutis: the pirates often sold their captives into slavery.

383. hieme: men might risk the storms of winter, in order to escape the pirates who would then be inactive. referto: governs either the gen. or abl.; 104.¹

385. vetus: piracy in the Mediterranean had begun many years before Pompey was appointed commander (67 B.C.). divisum: extended. quis . . . arbitraretur: who would ever have thought? 201.²

399. Brundisio: a famous seaport, which still has some commercial importance. It was the terminus of the Appian Way and the starting point for Greece and the East. For the use of the prep. see 133, b.⁵ hieme summa: in midwinter; cf. note on l. 383. transmiserint: intr., see Vocab.

401. legati: it is not known who these envoys were.

402. duodecim secures: by metonymy for "two praetors," who were attended outside the city by six lictors each. As a symbol of authority each lictor carried an ax in a bundle of rods (fasces). Plutarch mentions the incident in his Life of Pompey, sec. 24.

406. quibus . . . ducitis: owing to the decline of Italian farming and the increase in the population of Rome, it was necessary to obtain foreign supplies. The ports to which Cicero refers were sources of grain.

408. inspectante praetore: under the eyes of a praetor. His name is unknown.

410. liberos: a rhetorical exaggeration. According to Plutarch, a daughter of Marcus Antonius was captured by the pirates and ransomed for a large sum. Antonius, who had fought against them in 102 b.c., was the grandfather of the triumvir.

412. Ostiense: Ostia was the port of Rome, sixteen miles away, at the mouth of the Tiber. The pirates had burned the Roman fleet in the harbor and plundered the town.

413. cum: at the time when; hence followed by the indic.; cf. transmiserint (l. 399), where the subjv. is due to the involved idea of cause.

414. ea cui: = ea ut ei, a fleet such that a consul, etc. The subjv. clause is descriptive.

416. unius hominis: Pompey.

419. ei: the same persons, emphasizing vos. Oceani ostium: i.e. the Straits of Gibraltar.

422. a me: stronger than the usual dat. of agent.

425. celeriter: omit. tanti . . . navigavit: “the storm of so great a war swept the sea. The impetus was Pompey’s fleet of 500 war galleys.”—D’Ooge.

426. nondum tempestivo: navigation on the Mediterranean was suspended from November till March.

428. frumentaria subsidia: granaries.

430. duabus Hispaniis: two provinces, citerior and ulterior, divided by the river Ebro.

433. omnemque Graeciam: and in fact all Greece. Achaia was the southern part, the Peloponnesus. duo maria: the Adriatic and the Tuscan.

435. ut: from the time when.

436. Ciliciam: the stronghold of the pirates.

439. Cretensibus: dat. of separation w. ademit. The Cretans had been almost subdued by Metellus, but sent envoys to Pompey, hoping for more favorable terms from him. usque in Pamphyliam: not far from Crete; the great distance implied would be from Rome.

446. haec: i.e. bellandi virtus, as given in chapters 11 and 12.

447. Quid: transitional, but further. Ceterae: sc. virtutes, distinguished from military ability.

450. artes: qualities.

451. innocentia: Pompey’s integrity, scrupulous honesty in money matters, is set forth in the rest of the chapter.

454. Quae: these qualities.
 455. Summa: of the highest order.
 456. ex aliorum contentione: from a comparison with (the qualities of) others. ipsa per se: by themselves.
 458. ullo in numero: of any standing, of any account.
 459. centuriatus: centurions were selected from the ranks by the commander-in-chief because of good service. veneant: from veneo.
 460. Quid magnum aut amplum: obj. of cogitare; sc. possimus putare: what great or noble thoughts . . . can we suppose that this man has?
 462. provinciae: sc. retinendae. The governor bribed men of influence (magistratibus) to secure for him a longer term of office.
 463. propter avaritiam: Caesar speaks of the avarice of generals in B.G., I, chap. 40.
 464. Romae: loc. facit . . . videamini: makes it evident that you recognize; 205, c.¹
 467. ante: beforehand. voluerit: fut. perf.

485. hiemis . . . perfugium: a shelter from winter (objective), not for avarice (subjective).

Pompey's integrity then is established because: (1) he is not bribed in selecting centurions; (2) he does not misappropriate war funds; (3) he does not allow the allies to be oppressed.

585. cum: concessive. noster imperator: a commander of ours, i.e. Quintus Metellus.

589. ultimas terras: Pamphylia.

598. eum: subj. of iudicari.

600. ei . . . missum: those to whom it was annoying (Pompey's rivals) that he (the envoy) was sent to him (Pompey) rather than to any one else. The incident is not fully understood. We know that Mithridates was negotiating with Sertorius (l. 102), against whom Pompey and Metellus were fighting. It has been suggested that "Pompey caught a spy of the king in his camp and was led by his vanity to believe that Mithridates was making overtures to him." Pompey's rivals considered this a slight to Metellus, who outranked him.

606. multis . . . gestis: by many later achievements. iudiciis: cf. note, l. 536.

609. praestare de: guarantee for.

610. meminisse: asyndeton, but which, etc.

611. aequum est: sc. dicere.

98 612. Maximo: Q. Fabius Maximus, who defended Rome against Hannibal by his policy of delay.

613. Marcello: M. Claudius Marcellus, a brilliant general, the conqueror of Syracuse, 212 B.C. Scipioni: either Scipio Africanus the Elder, conqueror of Hannibal, or more probably Scipio Aemilianus the Younger, who destroyed Carthage in 146 B.C.

616. Fuit: w. adiuncta, has been granted. quaedam: as it were. ad: for.

618. fortuna: emphatic by position.

621. videamur: it may be seen that we.

624. non sum praedicaturus: one of many instances of praeteritio, the figure by which the orator emphasizes what he pretends to omit.

625. militiae: loc., and in the field (of battle). ut: how.

626. voluntatibus: ind. obj. w. four following verbs.

632. Quod ut: = et ut id.

634. sicuti facitis: just as you do (wish).

639. dubitatis quin conferatis: do you hesitate to devote? dubito, hesitate, usually takes an infinitive to complete it, but may take quin w. a subjv., when a negative is implied, as here.

644. erat diligendus: would deserve to be chosen. Why indic.?
 See 198, note 2.¹

646. ut . . . adsit, etc.: appositive clauses explaining opportunitas.

648. ab eis: i.e. Lucullus and Glabrio; see chapter 9. accipere: sc. exercitus.

649. quid exspectamus: why do we hesitate?

652. cetera: sc. bella.

655. regium: against the kings Mithridates and Tigranes. committamus: deliberative, should we commit.

657. At enim: but indeed, introducing an objection to the argument just given.

659. beneficiis: referring to the offices of state.

660. adfectus: honored. Catulus: a man of fine character, consul in 78 B.C., and leader of the aristocratic party.

664. Hortensius: a famous orator and rival of Cicero. He was an ex-consul (hence honoris), and a man of great wealth (fortunae). ratione: view.

666. locis: occasions.

670. re ac ratione: hendiadys, by a consideration of the facts.

672. idem isti: they likewise. isti: referring to the opponents of the bill. et necessarium, etc.: explaining ea omnia.

678. Hortensi: the regular voc. ending for nouns in -ius. pro: in accordance with.

680. Gabinius: the tribune who proposed the law giving Pompey command against the pirates, 67 B.C. graviter ornataque: with weight and eloquence, referring to the thought and the expression of it.

681. promulgasset: a proposed law had to be announced at least seventeen days before it was voted on.

685. vera causa: real interests.

689. commeatu: from intercourse; abl. of separation. ex omnibus provinciis: with all the provinces, modifying commeatu (lit., a going back and forth from all the provinces).

694. Atheniensium, etc.: the naval supremacy of Athens over the Aegean began with the Persian wars in the fifth century b.c. Carthage held the Mediterranean for years before the First Punic War. Rhodes became a maritime power after the death of Alexander, and had assisted Rome with her fleet.

696. rebus: resources.

700. regionis: of its territory; modified by maritimae.

702. ante legem Gabiniam: see note l. 680.

703. invictum: Cicero omits notable exceptions, however.

704. permanserit: subjv. in a relative clause of concession;

192, b.¹ ac: and indeed. parte: abl. w. caruit; 149.²

706. Antiochum: the war with Antiochus III, of Syria (192–189 b.c.) included two naval battles disastrous to the king.

Persem: the last king of Macedonia. After his defeat at Pydna in 168 b.c., he surrendered to the Roman admiral on the island of Samothrace without a naval battle. “The final supremacy of Rome upon the sea was all the more remarkable because the Romans were not naturally a nation of sailors. The wars with Carthage compelled them to build and equip fleets and learn how to use them successfully against the best seamen in the world.” — D’Ooge.

709. ei: we, repeating nos, l. 705. pares: a match (for).

712. Delos: after the fall of Corinth the Romans made this sacred island an important commercial center.

715. idem: referring to nos.

717. Appia Via: the famous road from Rome to Brundisium, built as far as Capua by Appius Claudius, 300 b.c. carebamus: were obliged to avoid, because of the pirates.

lieutenant for this war. But legally no man nor any of his relatives could be appointed to an office created under his own statute. This applied to Gabinius, for the proposed law of Manilius only added to the imperium that was conferred by the Gabinian law.

732. Utrum idoneus . . . impetraret: does he not deserve to obtain? utrum, an (l. 735) introduce a double direct question; see 89.¹

733. quem velit: descriptive (a lieutenant) whom he wishes. qui impetraret: 192, c.²

734. cum: translate when, but the clause is concessive.

103 738. periculo: at his peril. The proposer of a law was treated as if responsible for its results. Even at the time when the bill was passed Gabinius narrowly escaped death at the hands of the senators who opposed it.

740. An: here = nonne.

741. honoris causa: with respect. From the use of this phrase it is inferred that the men were still living. cum: although.

742. plebi: a gen. used for plebis w. tribunus.

743. in: in the case of. diligentes: scrupulous. Cicero implies that the opposition to Gabinius was due to his having been tribune the preceding year; but the true reason was his authorship of the law bearing his name; cf. notes on ll. 680 and 731.

744. in (hoc imperatore): under.

746. De: the question of.

748. inimicum edictum: Cicero as praetor might bring a matter before the Senate for consideration, unless forbidden by a higher magistrate. quo minus defendam: from defending; 205, e.³

750. intercessionem: the tribunes had the right to veto the action of any magistrate.

751. minantur: i.e. to exercise the power of veto.

752. quid liceat: the will of the people would have to be respected.

"In fact Gabinius did serve with Pompey under the new commission, and took advantage of the position to amass a fortune." — Kelsey.

851. Pro sociis: in defense of allies.

852. hostium simulatione: under the pretense of acting against the enemy.

854. sed: but even. animos ac spiritus capere: to satisfy the arrogance and insolence.

CHAPTER 23

856. conlatis signis: i.e. when the battle has been joined.

857. nisi erit idem qui: unless he is also a man who. The rel. clauses are descriptive.

861. idoneus qui mittatur: the man to be sent (lit., suitable who should be sent); a rel. clause of obligation or propriety; 192, c. Cf. impetrat, l. 733.

862. pacatam, locuples: the state would not be considered subdued as long as plunder was possible.

864. Ora maritima: of Asia Minor.

866. Videbat: the subj. is ora.

868. eos: refers to imperatores, not to paucos. classum nomine: with their so-called fleets, existing only in name. The money for the support of these fleets had been embezzled by the commanders; see l. 468.

869. maiore: greater than if we had not fought. videremur: we were seen.

870. cupiditate: desire for gain.

871. iacturis: expenditures, in purchasing their appointments.

873. Quasi videamus: a conditional clause of comparison takes the subjv. non: w. videamus.

875. quin . . . credatis: we should expect the infinitive here, since dubitare means hesitate.

879. est vobis auctor: you have as an authority.

880. Servilius had fought against the pirates and the Isauri; Curio (l. 883) against the Thracians and Dardanians.

881. extiterunt: = fuerunt.

884. praeditus: honored (beneficiis), distinguished (rebus), possessing (ingenio).

885. Lentulus: consul 72 B.C., lieutenant under Pompey in the war with the pirates. pro: in keeping with.

888. auctoritatibus: abl. of means. orationi: argument.

889. responderene: whether, etc. We should expect the enclitic -ne to be written w. horum instead of respondere.

THE CITIZENSHIP OF ARCHIAS

INTRODUCTORY NOTE

1. Archias. — The poet, A. Licinius Archias, was a Greek, born at Antioch in Syria about the year 119 b.c. In his youth he acquired considerable fame among his fellow citizens for his poetical ability, and, traveling in Asia Minor, Greece, and Southern Italy, was received with honor by men of rank. In 102 b.c., he came to Rome, where the Luculli in particular were his patrons, for whom he took the gentile name of Licinius. Accompanying Marcus Lucullus, he visited Heraclea in Lucania, where he was honored with citizenship. Later he accompanied Lucius Lucullus upon his Asiatic campaign.

In 89 b.c. the lex Plautia-Papiria gave the Roman franchise to all residents in Italy who were enrolled as citizens in any allied town, provided that they should register before a Roman praetor within sixty days. That same year Archias was registered by Quintus Metellus Pius at Rome, in accordance with the law. It was not until twenty-seven years later (62 b.c.) that a man named Grattius called his citizenship into question. This he did under the lex Papia, passed in 65 b.c., which required the removal of all foreigners from Rome. The charge was aimed not so much at Archias as against his patron, Lucius Lucullus, who had many political enemies, and whose victories had been celebrated in verse by the poet.

2. The Oration. — Cicero undertook the defense of the poet, partly, as he says, because of his personal indebtedness to him. The case was tried before a jury, with Cicero's own brother as presiding judge (62 b.c.). The oration was irregular in the fact that the orator argued the case but briefly, discoursing at greater length on the benefits of literature. "Strange words these to fall from the pleader's lips in the dusty atmosphere of the praetor's court! non fori, neque iudiciali consuetudine, says Cicero himself, in the few words of graceful apology with which the speech ends.

But in truth, as he well knew, he was not speaking to the respectable gentlemen on the benches before him. He addressed a larger audience: posterity and the civilized world."—Mackail's "Latin Literature."

The defense was undoubtedly successful, for Archias is mentioned later as a resident of Rome.

1. ingeni: natural ability, talent. iudices, judges, "gentlemen of the jury," composing the court over which the praetor presided; cf. note, Cat., IV, l. 255. quod : = et id.
2. exiguum: the modesty here assumed by the orator was intended to conciliate the jury. exercitatio dicendi: readiness of speech, derived from practice.
3. versatum: best taken as an adj.
4. ratio: theoretical knowledge, of the art of public speaking. This is the third requisite of an orator, the others being ingenium and exercitatio. optimarum artium: of the liberal arts. Cicero means that an orator must have broad general culture.
5. profecta: derived (from). a qua: to which. confiteor: "Roman juries looked on the literary barrister as unpractical; hence the faltering way in which Cicero owns to a knowledge of Greek literature."—Reid. tempus: lit., subj. acc. of abhorruisse, but trans. as acc. of duration.

6. abhorruisse: (I) have been averse. earum rerum: i.e. the three essential qualities. vel: strengthens in primis, especially.

7. A. Licinius: Cicero skillfully assumes the Roman citizenship of his defendant by using only his Latin name.

8. quoad longissime: as far back as.
 10. repetens: looking back. mihi principem: my guide.
 11. suscipiendam: referring to the resolution, ingrediendum to the actual undertaking. rationem: pursuit.
 12. exstisset: = fuisse.
 13. nonnullis: to any. saluti: 114.¹ After fuit trans. deberimus ferre . . ., quantum . . ., huic . . ., a quo . . ., quo . . . possemus.
 14. ceteris, alios: others, some. quo . . . possemus: a descriptive clause.
 15. quantum . . . nobis: as far as in me lies.
 17. hoc ita dici: i.e. that I am so indebted to the poet.
 18. facultas ingenii: natural ability.
 20. dediti: devoted. fuimus: used rather than sumus because dediti has the force of an adj.
 21. humanitatem: culture.

CHAPTER 2

24. quaestione legitima: in a legal inquiry, conducted in a regular court. iudicio publico: in a state trial, one in which the state was a party. cum agatur: though the case is tried.
 25. praetorem: Q. Cicero, brother of the orator, lieutenant a few years later in Caesar's army.
 26. tanto . . . frequentia: in so crowded an assembly; abl. of attendant circumstance. Note the hendiadys.
 29. abhorreat: differs. The difference consisted in this, that Cicero proposed to speak in praise of literature, as well as argue the case.
 30. vobis: (and) to you.
 32. hoc concursu, hac . . . humanitate: in this assembly, with such culture on your part; abl. of attendant circumstance.
 33. hoc praetore: Q. Cicero wrote some poetry himself, but only a few verses remain.
 34. de studiis humanitatis ac litterarum: about the pursuit of culture and the study of literature.
 35. in . . . persona: in the case of a character.

PAGE

- 111 36. persona: lit. mask, a word borrowed from the stage. in iudiciis periculisque: in courts and lawsuits.
 39. perficiam ut putetis: I will cause you to think.
 40. segregandum: sc. esse.
 41. asciscendum fuisse: ought to have been; in dir. disc. asciscendus fuit; 198, note 2; 218.¹

CHAPTER 3

- 112 42. ut primum: as soon as. ex pueris excessit: grew out of boyhood.
 43. ab eis artibus: modifies contulit, which is coördinate w. excessit. ad (humanitatem): with a view to.
 44. scribendi: of composition. primum: w. coepit.
 46. loco nobili: of a noble family.
 47. quondam: Antioch had lost much of its importance because of the Mithridatic wars and the quarrels of the Seleucidae. urbe: a noun in app. w. a loc. (Antiochiae) is in the abl.
 59. celebrabantur: the tense implies customary action.
 61. exspectatio: anticipation in regard to the man.
 63. ipsius: of the man himself.
 64. admiratio: the admiration he excited. Italia: i.e. southern Italy, known as Magna Graecia.
 68. disciplinarum: sciences. studia haec: i.e. the study of poetry.
 113 73. tranquillitatem: in the interval between the Gracchan disturbances (121 b.c.) and the Social War (90–88 b.c.).
 74. vehementius: with greater zeal.
 76. aliquid iudicare: to form any opinion. de ingeniis: about men of genius.
 78. Hac tanta celebritate famae: because of this fame so widely spread. absentibus: sc. nobis, to us who were far away.
 79. Mario, Catulo: consuls in 102 b.c. consule is singular because Marius was the more famous.
 80. eos: such. quorum alter: Marius. res maximas: the victory over the Cimbri and Teutones.
 81. alter: Catulus, who was a soldier and shared with Marius the glory of his victory. He was also a man of literary taste; hence studium et aures: appreciation and attention.

82. posset: subjv. in a descriptive clause. Luculli: a noble Roman family distinguished by Lucius and Marcus. praetextatus: a youth, properly applied to a Roman boy who wore the toga praetexta until his seventeenth year; not to be taken literally here, for the honors mentioned would scarcely have been given to one so young.

84. hoc: explained by the noun clause ut . . . senectuti. ingeni ac litterarum: an evidence of his literary ability; pred. gen.

87. illi: the well known. Numidico: Metellus was so called because of his victories over the Numidians.

88. Pio: a surname given to the younger Metellus because he sought the recall of his father from exile. Aemilio: a great statesman and orator. vivebat: associated. Catulo et patre et filio: the father was the colleague of Marius (l. 81); the son was consul in 78 B.C., and was a prominent leader of the aristocracy.

89. L. Crasso: a famous orator about 95 B.C.

90. Drusum: a political leader early in the first century B.C., assassinated because of his efforts at reform. Catonem: probably the father of Cato Uticensis.

91. devinctam consuetudine: bound by ties of friendship.

92. eum colebant: cultivated his acquaintance.

93. si qui: whoever.

CHAPTER 4

95. satis longo intervallo: after quite a long interval; the abl. may be taken as absolute.

97. decederet: was returning. Rome was still his place of residence. Heraclia: nothing remains to-day of this old Greek city of southern Italy. Quae cum: = et cum (causal) ea.

98. esset aequissimo . . . foedere: enjoyed very favorable treaty rights (with Rome); abl. of description.

99. cum: while. tum: at that time.

101. civitas: citizenship. lege: known as the lex Plautia-Papiria from the gentile names of the tribunes who proposed it in 89 B.C.

101. si qui: i.e. (civitas data est) eis qui. Note that the law is stated in the form of a quotation; hence the subjv. verbs which in dir. disc. would be fut. perf.

PAGE

- 113 103. ferebatur: is parenthetical and not part of the wording of the law.
104. praetorem: a praetor; see Introd. 34. essent professi: i.e. declared their intention to become citizens.
- 114 109. causa dicta est: Archias has met the three conditions of the law: he was a citizen of an allied town, Heraclea, had long been a resident of Rome, and had made his declaration before a praetor, Metellus.
110. Gratti: voc. Grattius was the prosecutor who claimed that Archias was not a citizen.
111. religione et fide: scrupulous honor and good faith. non: not that.
113. interfuisse: was present (when it was done). egisse: i.e. by his influence.
114. huius indici: of this trial.
117. Italico bello: in the Social War of 90 B.C.
118. ad ea: in reply to the proofs.
120. litterarum memoriam: documentary evidence.
121. et: sc. est ridiculum. amplissimi viri: Metellus.
122. religionem: conscientious testimony. municipi: before the Social War, Heraclea was an allied town without Roman citizenship (civitas foederata); afterwards, a town enjoying full citizen rights (municipium); see Introd. 21.
124. quas idem: you yourself. An: introducing a rhetorical question; 89, b.; B. 162, 4, a; Bur. 368; HB. 236; cf. Cat., I, l. 20.
125. tot annis: Archias came to Rome in 102, thirteen years before citizenship was granted (ante civitatem datam).
128. collegio: board, consisting of eight praetors.

CHAPTER 5

130. Appi: Appius Claudius Pulcher, whose records were kept too carelessly (neglegentius).
131. Gabini: = et Gabini. quamdiu . . . fuit: before he was tried (lit., as long as he was safe). After his praetorship Gabinius was convicted of extortion practiced while he was governor of Achaia.
132. calamitas: he lost his civil rights. tabularum fidem: confidence in his records.
133. Metellus: the third praetor mentioned.

138. quid est quod dubitetis: what reason is there for doubting? The clause is descriptive. Archias, therefore, was a citizen not only of Heraclea but of other towns.

140. mediocribus multis et praeditis: dat. arte (l. 143): abl. of means.

142. credo: I suppose, used w. irony. The four towns referred to were in Magna Graecia, called here Graecia.

143. quod: the antecedent is id (l. 146). scaenicis artificibus: the Romans of the Republic regarded acting on the stage as unworthy of citizens.

146. legem Papiam: the alien act of the tribune Papius, passed in 65 B.C., providing that all foreigners should be expelled from Rome. It was under this act that Archias was brought to trial.

150. Scilicet . . . obscurum: of course, for I suppose(ironical) it is not known.

151. proximis censoribus: during the time of the last censors, 70 B.C., and also those of 86 (superioribus) the poet was absent. The first censors (primis) after he became a citizen in 89, resigned without taking the census.

152. apud exercitum: with the army, as a guest of the commander. cum eodem quaestore: with the same man (Lucullus) when he was quaestor, under Sulla.

156. ita: thereby. pro: as. eis temporibus: beginning the main clause; construe w. fecit.

157. quem: he whom.

158. et (omit) testamentum fecit, etc.: only citizens could perform these acts.

159. civium: i.e. bequeathed by Romans.

160. in beneficiis: among those to be rewarded. The proconsul (pro consule) on returning from his province would report the names of his followers who were to be rewarded for their services. The naming of Archias implied that Lucullus regarded him as a citizen.

162. suo . . . iudicio: the poet and his friends have acted as though he were really a citizen.

CHAPTER 6

165. ubi: = id quo, the means by which (lit., wherewith); i.e. his poetry. ex: after. The clause is descriptive.

166. convicio: the wrangling of the courts.

167. An: cf. l. 126, and Cat., I, l. 20. suppetere . . . posse: that we could have ideas.

168. quod dicamus: a purpose clause. nisi excolamus: the subjv. may be due to the indir. disc., or may be a condition less probable (should cultivate).

171. deditum: cf. dediti sumus, l. 21. Ceteros pudeat: let others be ashamed.

173. adferre, proferre: either in speaking or writing something new.

174. quid pudeat: cf. Cat., I, l. 314.

TWO CHILDREN AT DICE-PLAY

(From a Pompeian wall painting)

175. vivo: have lived. tempore: needs, in court; time of peril.

178. quis reprehendat: a potential question, or a question of "ideal certainty." (Hale.)

179. si: w. sumpsero, l. 186. quantum temporum tantum: as much time as. súas res obeundas: attending to their business.

182. tempestivis: protracted, beginning before the usual hour, which was three or four in the afternoon.

183. alveolo: gambling flourished notwithstanding many laws condemning it. pilae: throwing and catching formed the basis of the different games of ball, but the bat seems not to have been used. See Johnston's The Private Life of the Romans.

185. eo: w. magis, the more.

186. crescit oratio et facultas: the power of public speaking is improved.

187. periculis: a term referring to criminal trials.

188. Quae: this ability. quae summa sunt: the principles of living, derived from philosophy.

190. multis litteris: by wide reading.

191. magno opere: = magnopere. laudem: true merit.

193. parvi: of little importance; see 110.¹

196. impetus: the attacks resulting from the suppression of Catiline's conspiracy.

197. exemplorum: the examples of men who have practiced these high principles.

199. accederet: were thrown upon them. Literature preserves the examples of great men. imagines, expressas: words used of the work of a sculptor or painter.

CHAPTER 7

208. est . . . respondeam: it is clear (to me) what answer I shall give. The question is deliberative (dir. what shall I reply?).

209. animo ac virtute: attributive w. homines.

210. sine doctrina: pred. phrase w. fuisse. naturae . . . di- vino: by an almost divine quality of their very nature.

212. ad laudem valuisse: has availed to produce true merit.

214. idem ego: I further.

117

215. ratio . . . doctrinae: systematic training derived from instruction.

216. nescio quid: see Vocab.

218. Africanum: Scipio Africanus the Younger, conqueror of Carthage, a scholar and statesman as well as soldier. Scipio, Laelius, and Furius were patrons of Greek culture at Rome, after the conquest of Greece in 146 b.c.

220. illis temporibus: abl. of time, but trans. for (i.e. considering) those times.

221. Catonem: Cato, the Censor, who lived 234–149 b.c., was the father of Latin prose. “He was considered by men of later times as the ideal of Roman character.”

222. ad percipiendam: in appreciating.

223. adiuvarentur: were continually aided.

227. ceterae: sc. animi remissiones. This passage in Cicero’s tribute to letters is deservedly famous. temporum: gen. of possession.

CHAPTER 8

118

234. deberemus: it would be our duty.

236. Rosci: Roscius, the comic actor, died a few months before this trial. He had been a slave, but lived to realize a large fortune by his profession, and became the friend of Cicero and other public men.

237. excellentem . . . venustatem: the excellence and charm of his art.

240. animorum motus: mental activity. celeritatem ingeniorum: natural quickness.

243. novo genere dicendi: cf. I. 27.

244. cum: concessive. litteram nullam: not a single word.

119

246. quae agerentur: which were then going on; i.e. current events. The subjv. is due to attraction. revocatum: i.e. encored.

247. eandem rem dicere: treat the same theme.

249. scriptorum: the Greek writers, of the same country as Archias.

250. diligam, etc.: deliberative subjv.; cf. I. 176.

253. ceterarum . . . constare: the study of other things (than poetry) is based on theory, rules, and practice.

254. poetam: sc. sed. valere: derives his power (from). Poeta nascitur, non fit was a Latin proverb.

256. ille: well-known, great. Ennius, "the father of Latin poetry," was born in Calabria 239 b.c., and came to Rome in 204.

120

260. Saxa . . . bestiae: when Amphion, king of Thebes, was building the walls of his city, according to the story, he caused the stones to take their places by the music of his lyre. Orpheus in the same way drew after him wild beasts and even trees.

121

266. pugnant inter se: there were seven cities claiming the honor of being the birthplace of Homer.

CHAPTER 9

270. repudiabimus: in questions of deliberation the fut. ind. is sometimes used instead of the pres. subjv.; Bur. 757; HB. 572.

271. omne studium: his utmost zeal.

273. Cimbricas res: the war w. the Cimbri.

274. durior: too rude. Marius boasted that the camp and battle field were his only school.

275. aversus a: unfriendly to.

277. Themistoclem: Themistocles, the Athenian statesman and commander, the victor in the battle of Salamis, 480 b.c. illum, ille (l. 280); cf. l. 256.

278. quaereretur: impers. acroama: performer. This Greek word (lit., thing heard) comes to mean an entertainment, as a play, dance, or recitation; then the person who gives the entertainment.

121

281. Plotium: the first Roman teacher of rhetoric, a friend of Marius.

284. ab hoc: i.e. by Archias.

287. aperuit: especially to Roman merchants.

122

289. natura et regione: by natural situation; hendiadys. populi Romani: note the repetition and emphatic position of this phrase.

290. non maxima: no very great. Plutarch says that Lucullus had 10,000 men against an army of 200,000. Armeniorum: the allies of Mithridates.

292. urbem Cyzicenorum: Cyzicus was an important city on the southern coast of the Propontis, friendly to Rome. eiusdem: Lucullus.

293. ore ac faucibus: the open jaws (lit., mouth and jaws).

294. nostra feretur: as ours (the battle) will be spoken of.

296. apud Tenedum pugna: the battle off Tenedos, 73 B.C. So it is named, though really fought near Lemnos.

298. Quae . . . efferuntur: by whose genius these deeds are proclaimed. In trans. begin w. the antecedent clause ab eis, etc.

299. Africano superiori: the elder Scipio.

300. is: i.e. his statue. In Cicero's time, according to Livy, there were three statues at the entrance of the tomb of the Scipios, one of which was thought to be that of Ennius.

303. huius: of the present Cato (Uticensis). Cato: the Censor. His praises were sung by Ennius, who had served as a soldier under him in Sardinia. It was in Cato's army that Ennius first came to Rome in 204 B.C.

CHAPTER 10

307. haec: sc. carmina. fecerat: the word for "poet" in Greek means maker. Rudinum hominem: Ennius, born at Rudiae of Greek origin, became a Roman citizen late in life.

309. civitatibus: dat. of agent.

320. Graeca leguntur: Greek is (or Greek writings are) read. Archias wrote in Greek, Ennius in Latin.

322. suis finibus: to its own boundaries (lit., by, etc.). sane:

we must admit. Latin was spoken in Latium and in the Roman colonies, Greek in the whole civilized world.

327. quo: wherever. The antecedent is eodem.
 329. pervenerint: subjv. in an indir. clause.
 330. cum . . . tum: while . . . at the same time.
 331. haec: i.e., these poems. ampla: honorable.
 332. de: at the risk of.
 337. qui . . . inveneris: a rel. causal clause; 192, b¹.
 338. vere: sc. dixit.
 340. Magnus: a surname given to Pompey by Sulla.
 342. in contione . . . donavit: citizenship was often conferred by generals in this way.
 344. eiudem laudis: the same as Pompey received from Theophanes.
 346. credo: ironical.
 347. perficere non potuit: could not have managed; 198, note 2.²
 349. petentem: = si petisset. quem: i.e. Sulla; subj. of iubere (l. 352).
 350. de populo: from the common people, untrained; cf. Archias loco nobili (l. 46). ei subiecisset: had handed up to him, sitting upon the tribunal at the auction of the goods of the conquered.
 351. quod fecisset: causal, giving Sulla's reason. in eum: about him.
 352. longiusculis: the only merit of the writing was its verse-form, consisting of alternate lines of five and six feet (elegiac couplets).
 355. huius: Archias.
 358. qui . . . cuperet: especially since he (Metellus) so much desired to have his own deeds written about.
 360. pingue . . . peregrinum: though uttering something dull and provincial.

CHAPTER 11

363. prae nobis ferendum: must be openly acknowledged.

INTERROGATIVE

SINGULAR

M. & F.	N.
N. quis	quid
G. cūius	cūius
D. cui	cui
Ac. quem	quid
Ab. quō	quō

The plural of the interrogative quis is like that of the relative quī. When used as an adjective, the singular also is like that of the relative.

27.

INDEFINITE PRONOUNS

The indefinite pronouns are:—

1. quis (quī), quaē (qua), quid (quod), any (one), anything.
2. aliquis (-quī), aliqua, aliquid (-quod), some (one), some thing.
3. quispiam, quaepiam, quidpiam (quod-), any (one) at all.
4. quisquam, quicquam, any (one) at all (169).
5. quilibet, quaelibet, quidlibet (quod-), any (one) you please.
6. quīvis, quaevīs, quidvīs (quod-), any (one) you wish.
7. quidam, quaedam, quiddam (quod-), a certain (one).

8. quisque, quaeque, quidque (quod-), each (one), every (one).

28. The indefinite quis is declined like the interrogative quis (26), but has quae or qua in the neuter plural, and, when used as an adjective, in the feminine singular. Aliquis has aliqua, not aliquae, in the feminine singular and neuter plural.

a. The feminine singular forms of quis, aliquis, quispiam, and quisque, are not used as pronouns, but as adjectives. In all words the neuter singular form in quid is used as a pronoun, in quod as an adjective.

b. Quīdam has n instead of m before d in quendam, quandam, quōrundam, quārundam. Quisquam has c for d in the neuter quicquam.

PART II. THE FORMATION OF WORDS

53. Root. — A root is a monosyllable which contains the fundamental meaning of a word. Thus duc- implies the idea of leading in the noun dux and in the verb dūcō. A root may vary in quantity or in spelling, as dūc-, dūc- (in dūcō, dux) ; teg-, tog- (in tegō, toga).

54. Stem. — A stem is a fixed part of an inflected word. In some words it is the same as the root, as in dux (duc-s), in which the stem and the root are both duc-. In others the stem is the root with one or more added letters, as in dūc-e-, the stem of dūcō, and in flū-min-, the stem of flūmen.

55. Suffix. — A suffix is one or more letters added to a root or to a stem, to modify the meaning. Thus -tor is the suffix added to the root duc-, to make ductor, a leader; but added to the stem audi-, to make auditor, a hearer.

56. Prefix. — A prefix is one or more letters joined to the beginning of a word to modify its meaning: ab-dūcō, I lead away.

57. Word Formation. — Word formation treats of the derivation of words from roots or stems by the use of suffixes and prefixes.

58. Derivative Words. — A word formed from a root or a verb-stem is called a primary derivative: vic-tor, victor. A word derived from a noun-stem or an adjective-stem is called a secondary derivative: victōr-ia, victory.

NOUNS: PRIMARY DERIVATIVES¹

59. The suffixes -tor, -sor, form nouns denoting the agent or doer: ōrātor, one who speaks (ōrō); dēfēn-sor, one who defends (dēfendō).

(a) gladiā-tor, one who uses the sword, is probably from the stem of an obsolete verb.

(b) Other suffixes denoting agency are seen in scrib-a, col-ōnus pa-ter (one who protects).

60. The suffixes -iō, -siō, -tiō, -sus, -tus (gen. ūs), -tūra, -ina, -ium form nouns denoting action or, concretely, the result of action: leg-iō, a levying, a legion (legō); incēn-siō, a setting fire to (incendō); ōrā-tiō, a speaking (ōrō); vī-sus, a looking, act of seeing (videō); adven-tus, a coming to, approach (adveniō); iac-tūra, a throwing (iaciō); rap-inā, act of robbery (rapiō); gaud-ium, joy (gaudeō).

Note. — In general, nouns denoting action are primarily abstract, but often become concrete, that is, they lose the idea of action and come to denote the result, the means, or the place of action.

61. The suffixes -men, -mentum, -mōnia, -mōnium form nouns denoting action, the means, or the result of action: ag-men, that which is led (agō); flū-men, a flowing (fluō); ōrnā-mentum, that which adorns (ōrnō) ; dētri-mentum, that which is worn away, loss (dēterō) ; queri-mōnia, a complaining (queror) ; testimōnium, evidence (testor).

62. The suffixes -brum, -crum, -trum, -ulum, -bulum, -culum, -bra, -ula, -bula, etc., form nouns denoting the means, the instrument, or the place: dēlū-brum, a place of cleansing, a temple (dēlō) ; simulā-crūm, a likeness (simulō) ; vinc-ulum, a bond (vinciō) ; pā-bulūm, that which nourishes (pā-, nourish) ; gubernā-culūm, a helm (gubernō) ; late-bra, a hiding-place (lateō).

63. The suffix -or forms masculine abstract nouns denoting a mental state: am-or, love (amō) ; tim-or, fear (timeō).

NOUNS: SECONDARY DERIVATIVES

64. The suffixes -lus, -la, -lum, -ulus, -culus, etc., form nouns called diminutives. These words follow the gender of the words from which they are derived: libel-lus, little book (liber) ; tabel-la, small board, tablet (tabula) ; lect-ulus, little couch (lectus).

65. The suffixes -tās, -tūs, -tūdō, -ia, -tia, -ium, -tium form abstract nouns denoting quality or condition: boni-tās, goodness (bonus) ; vir-tūs, manliness (vir) ; audāc-ia, boldness (audāx) ; amīci-tia, friendship (amicus) ; servi-tium, slavery (servus).

66. The suffix -ium is much used in both primary (60) and secondary (65) derivatives. The following secondary derivatives denote action: auspic-ium, augury (auspex) ; remig-ium, rowing (remex).

67. The suffix -ārius added to a noun-stem denotes a dealer or maker; -ārium, the place where things are kept: falc-ārius, scythe-maker (falx) ; tabul-ārium, record-office (tabula).

68. The suffixes -ō, -lis, -nus (gen., -ī) added to a noun-stem may denote the person concerned, frequently an officer: centuri-ō, commander of a century (centuria) ; aedī-lis, commissioner of buildings (aedēs) ; tribū-nus, head of a tribe (tribus).

69. The suffixes -ātus, -ūra, added to the stem of a personal name, denote office; -īna, an art: cōnsul-ātus, office of consul (cōnsul) ; praefect-ūra, office of commander (praefectus) ; medic-īna, the healing art (medicus).

ADJECTIVES: PRIMARY DERIVATIVES

70. The suffixes -āx, -īcus, -idus, -ulus form adjectives, chiefly with the meaning of the present participle: aud-āx, daring

(audeō) ; am-īcus, loving, friendly (amō) ; tim-idus, fearful, timid (timeō) ; crēd-ulus, quick to believe (crēdō).

71. The suffixes -ilis, -bilis, -tivus form adjectives, chiefly with a passive meaning, sometimes denoting capability: fac-ilis, that may be done, easy (faciō) ; crēdi-bilis, that may be believed (crēdō) ; cap-tivus, captured (capiō).

ADJECTIVES: SECONDARY DERIVATIVES

72. Adjectives meaning belonging to, relating to, derived from, are formed with the following suffixes: -cus, -icus, -ticus; -ius, -icius; -nus, -ānus, -ēnus, -īnus; -ālis, -ēlis, -īlis, -ūlis; -āris, -ārius; -īvus, -timus; -ensis; -cer, -cris, -ter, -tris, -ester, -estrīs, -estīs: bell-icus, of war (bellum) ; frāter-nus, of a brother (frāter) ; rēg-ālis, of a king (rēx) ; cōnsul-āris, of a consul (cōnsul) ; mari-timus, of the sea (mare) ; agr-estīs, of the field (ager).

73. The suffixes -ōsus, -lentus, -tus form adjectives meaning full of, provided with: pericul-ōsus, full of danger, dangerous (periculum) ; turbu-lentus, disorderly (turba) ; hones-tus, honorable (honor) ; iūs-tus, just (iūs).

74. The suffix -eus forms adjectives denoting material; idus, denoting state or condition: argent-eus, made of silver (argentum) ; lūc-idus, bright (lūx).

75. The suffixes -ānus, -ēnus, -īnus, -icus, -ius, -ēnsis, form adjectives denoting place of origin: Rōm-ānus, of Rome (Rōma) ; Ital-icus, Italian (Italia) ; Athēn-i-ēnsis, of Athens (Athēnae).

76. The suffixes -ernus, -urnus, -tinus form adjectives from nouns or adverbs denoting time: hodi-ernus, of this day (hodiē) ; noct-urnus, at night (nox) ; crās-tinus, of to-morrow (crās).

DERIVATION OF VERBS

77. Primary Verbs.—Some verbs are derived from roots, either directly or by the addition of a vowel. In this class are most verbs of the third conjugation and irregular verbs: reg-e-re, es-se, i-re, fer-re, vel-le, da-re. Others are formed from nouns, adjectives, or other verbs.

78. Denominative Verbs.—Verbs derived from nouns or adjectives are called denominative: liber-ō, set free (liber) ; nōmin-ō, name (nōmen) ; flōr-eō, bloom (flōs, flower) ; met-uō fear (metus) ; fin-iō, put an end to (finis).

79. Verbs Derived from Verbs. — These include :

(a) Frequentative or intensive verbs, denoting repeated or intense action. They are of the first conjugation, and end in -tō, -sō, -itō, -titō, -sitō : iac-tō, toss (iaciō) ; ag-itō, move violently (agō) ; cur-sō, run about (currō).

(b) Inceptive or inchoative verbs, denoting the beginning of an action. These end in -scō, and are added to present stems : hebē-scō, grow dull (hebeō, be dull).

Note. — Some verbs of this class apparently come from nouns or adjectives : advesperāscit, evening approaches (vesper) ; inveterāscō, grow old (vetus).

(c) Causative verbs, signifying a causing to act : caedō, cause to fall (cadō, fall) ; fugō, put to flight (fugiō, flee) ; sistō, cause to stand (stō, stand).

DERIVATION OF ADVERBS

80. Adverbs are derived chiefly from adjectives, nouns, or pronouns.

81. Adverbs in -ē are formed from adjectives of the second declension : lātē, widely (lātus). In bene and male, -e is short.

82. Adverbs in -ter (-iter) are formed chiefly from adjectives of the third declension : gravi-ter, heavily (gravis).

83. Adverbs in -am, -em, -im, -um, and some in -e are the accusative singular of nouns or adjectives ; those in -a, -ās are the accusative plural : quam, vicem, partim, multum, facile, cētera, alias.

84. Adverbs in -ā, -ō, -ō, and some in -ē, -ě, are the ablative singular of adjectives, nouns, or pronouns : rēctā, prīmō, modo, forte, hodiē.

85. Adverbs in -tus (-itus) are formed from nouns or adjectives and denote source or time : antiquitus, anciently (antiquus) ; dīvinitus, by divine favor (dīvinus).

COMPOUND WORDS

86. Compound words are formed by the union of simple words.

(a) Nouns : agri-cola, tiller of a field, farmer ; artifex, master of an art (ars, faciō) ; bene-volentia, good-will ; inter-rēnum, interval between two reigns ; rēs-pūblica, commonwealth.

(b) Adjectives: omni-potēns, almighty; parti-ceps, partaking, sharing (pars, capiō); venē-ficus, poisoning (venēnum, faciō).

(c) Verbs: ab-eō, go away; anim-ad-vertō, turn attention to, observe; prae-dicō, foretell; satis-faciō, make amends (do enough for); vēn-eō, go to sale, be sold (vēnum, eō).

(d) Adverbs: ad-hūc, hitherto; postrī-diē, the next day.

87. Prefixes. — The prefixes of compound words are the following:

a, ab, abs	away, off, without.	ob, before, against.
ad, to,	toward, near.	per, through, thoroughly.
ambi-	around.	post, after, behind.
ante,	before.	prae, before.
circum,	around, about.	praeter, beside.
com-, con-, co-,	together.	prō, prō, por, forth, before, for.
dē,	away.	re-, red-, back.
dis-, di-,	apart.	sē-, sēd-, apart.
ē, ex,	out, without.	sub, under.
in, in,	into, against; not.	subter, beneath.
inter,	between.	super, suprā, over.
intrō,	within.	trāns, across.

PART III. SYNTAX

88. Questions. — Questions, in Latin, may be introduced by an interrogative pronoun, interrogative adjective, or interrogative adverb, especially -ne, nōnne, num. Nōnne implies the answer yes; num, the answer no: -ne is an enclitic, attached to the first word of the question, and implies nothing about the answer.

1. quis tē salūtāvit? who saluted you? Cat. I. 7.
2. quantā in voluptāte bacchābere? in what pleasure will you revel? Cat. I. 10.
3. quid tacēs? why are you silent? Cat. I. 4.
4. mōsne māiōrum (tē impedit)? does the custom of our ancestors hinder you? Cat. I. 11.
5. nōnne hunc in vincula dūcī imperābis? will you not order him to be put into prison? Cat. I. 11.
6. num negāre audēs? you dare not deny, do you? Cat. I. 4.

a. -ne is sometimes used for nōnne or num, when the answer is understood: potestne tibi haec lūx esse iūcunda? can this light of day be pleasant to you? Cat. I. 6 (answer “ no ”).

b. Tandem or the enclitic -nam are sometimes used to emphasize a question: quō ūsque tandem? how far, pray? Cat. I. 1.

c. Questions are sometimes expressed without an interrogative word: patēre tua cōnsilia nōn sentīs? do you not see that your plots are exposed? Cat. I. 1.

d. For indicative questions see 184; for subjunctive questions see 201; for questions in indirect discourse see 215, d.

89. Alternative or Double Questions. — These inquire which of two or more suppositions is true. The first member begins with utrum, -ne, whether, or without an introductory word; the second member begins with an, or, negative annōn, or not: utrum is clēmēns an inhūmānissimus esse videātur, whether he would appear to be mild or most inhuman; Cat. IV. 6.

a. Necne, or not, may be used instead of an nōn in the second member of a double indirect question (202): quaesivī in conventū fuisset necne, I asked whether he had been at the meeting or not; Cat. II. 6.

b. An may introduce a single question, being equivalent to -ne, nōnne, or num, with added surprise or emphasis upon a preceding statement: an Scīpiō Gracchum interfēcit? did not Scipio kill Gracchus? Cat. I. 1.

90. Rhetorical Question. — A rhetorical question is one whose answer is self-evident, and is put by way of emphasis for a declarative statement: quis dubitat? who doubts?* (= nobody doubts).

91. Answers. — The answer “ yes ” is expressed by repeating the verb or another emphatic word, or by vērō, etiam, ita, certē, etc. The answer “ no ” is expressed by repeating the verb with nōn, or by nōn minimē, etc., without a verb.

NOUNS

92. Agreement. — A noun used as an appositive or predicate of another noun or pronoun agrees with it in case: Opīmius, cōnsul, Opimius the consul; Cat. I. 2; virō fortī, collēgæ meō, to a brave man, my colleague; Cat. III. 6.

Nominative Case

A noun in the nominative case may be used as follows:—

93. Subject of a finite verb: senātus haec intellegit, the Senate knows these things; Cat. I. 1.

94. Subject of an “historical” infinitive (213): Caesar frūmentum flāgitāre, Caesar kept demanding grain.

95. Predicate nominative, after

a. The intransitive verbs be, become, seem, etc.: patria, quae est parēns omnium, our country, which is the parent of all; Cat. I. 7.

b. The passive verbs be made, be called, be chosen, etc.: habeātur vir ēgregius Paulus, let Paulus be regarded as an extraordinary man; Cat. IV. 10.

Vocative Case

96. The name of the person or thing addressed is put in the vocative case. This is spelled like the nominative except in the singular of -us nouns of the second declension, which have the vocative in -e: quō usque abūtēre, Catilīna, patientiā nostrā? how long, Catiline, will you abuse our patience? Cat. I. 1.

a. Filius and proper names in -ius form the vocative singular in -i: filiī, son; Marce Tullī, quid agis? Marcus Tullius, what are you doing? Cat. I. 11.

Genitive Case

The genitive case is used with nouns, adjectives, and verbs.

A. Genitive with Nouns

97. Possessive genitive, denoting the possessor: ex aedibus Cethēgī, from the house of Cethegus; Cat. III. 3.

98. Subjective genitive, denoting the agent or subject of an action or feeling implied by another noun: deōrum ergā vōs amore, with the love of the gods for you; Cat. III. 1.

99. Objective genitive, denoting the object of an action or feeling implied by another noun: invidiae metus, the fear of unpopularity; Cat. I. 11.

100. Descriptive genitive, used to describe another noun. In this use the genitive is modified by an adjective or pronoun: hūius modī cōsultum, a decree of this kind; Cat. I. 2.

101. Genitive of material, denoting the material of which something consists; talentum auri, a talent of gold.

102. Appositional genitive, having the force of an appositive : hōc poētae nōmen, this name of poet; Ar. 8.

103. Genitive of the whole, depending on a word denoting a part. The word denoting the part may be a noun, a pronoun (indefinite or interrogative), an adjective (numeral, comparative, or superlative), or an adverb (denoting quantity or place) : quid cōnsili? what plan? Cat. I. 1; ubinam gentium? where in the world? Cat. I. 4.

a. The ablative with dē or ex may be used instead of the genitive of the whole, especially after cardinal numerals : ūnus ex istīs, the only one of these; Cat. III. 7.

B. Genitive with Adjectives

104. The objective genitive is used with adjectives denoting desire, knowledge, memory, fullness, participation, or their opposite : plēnissimum nāvium, very full of ships; P. 12.

a. For the genitive with proprius, similis, see 119 a, b.

C. Genitive with Verbs

105. With verbs of accusing, acquitting, condemning, a genitive is used to denote the charge : mē inertiae condemnō, I find myself guilty of inactivity; Cat. I. 2.

106. The impersonal verbs of feeling, miseret, paenitet, piget, pudet, and taedet, take an accusative of the person concerned, and a genitive of that which causes the feeling : mē meōrum factōrum paenitēbit, I shall repent of my deeds (lit. it will repent me of); Cat. IV. 10.

107. Interest and rēfert take the genitive of the person or thing concerned, if expressed by a noun, but the ablative feminine singular of the possessive, if expressed by a pronoun. The degree of interest is expressed by the genitive of value or by an adverb : parvī rēfert, it matters little; P. 7. meā quid interest, what is for my interest; Cat. IV. 5.

108. Verbs of memory, memini, oblīscor, reminiscor, take the genitive or accusative. If the object is a person, oblīscor takes the genitive only, and reminiscor the accusative only : oblīscere caedis, forget murder; Cat. I. 3.

109. The genitive is sometimes used with potior (147) ; rērum potīrī, to get control of affairs; Cat. II. 9.

110. With est and verbs of value, the genitive adjectives māgnī, parvī, tantī, quantī, plūris, plūrimī, denote indefinite value: est tantī, it is of such value, it is worth while; Cat. I. 9.

111. Predicate Genitive. — A possessive or descriptive genitive may be used in the predicate: ūnum genus est eōrum, one class consists of those men; Cat. II. 8; est sapientiae, it is the part of (belongs to) wisdom; P. 7.

Dative Case

The uses of the dative case are as follows: —

112. Dative of indirect object,

a. With transitive verbs: (tabellās) ostendimus Cethēgō, we showed the tablets to Cethegus; Cat. III. 5.

b. With intransitive verbs meaning favor, help, please, trust, and their opposites; believe, persuade, command, obey, serve, resist; envy, threaten, pardon, spare: huic urbī minitantem, threatening this city; Cat. II. 1. mihi crēdite, believe me, Cat. II. 7.

Note 1. — Some verbs of these meanings are transitive and govern the accusative, as dēlectō, iubeō, iuvō, laedō.

Note 2. — In the passive these verbs are used only impersonally (172, b): mihi nihil nocēri potest, in no way can harm be done to me; Cat. III. 12.

c. With some verbs compounded with ad, ante, con, dē, in, inter, ob, post, prae, prō, sub, super: cui adulēscētulō facem praetulisti, before what young man have you carried a torch? Cat. I. 6.

d. With verbs compounded with satis, bene, and male: satis facere reī pūblicae, to satisfy (do enough for) the state; Cat. I. 1.

113. Dative of separation, with verbs meaning take away, used of words denoting persons: hunc mihi timōrem ēripe, take away this fear from me; Cat. I. 7.

114. Dative of purpose or tendency, denoting the purpose for which anything is done, or the object toward which anything tends: eōs quī frūctuī sunt, those who are (for) a source of income; P. 6.

a. The dative of purpose is often used in connection with the dative of reference (115): eōs quī vōbīs frūctuī sunt, those who are (for) a source of income to you; P. 6.

115. Dative of reference, denoting the person or thing concerned by the action: tibi ūnī vexātio sociōrum impūnīta fuit (for) in the case of you alone the harassing of our allies has been unpunished; Cat. I. 7.

a. The dative of reference may be equivalent to a possessive genitive or adjective: tibi manibus, from your hands; Cat. I. 6.

b. The dative of personal pronouns, mihi, tibi, etc., is often used with expressions of emotion, interest, surprise, or derision. This is called the ethical dative or dative of feeling. It is in reality a dative of reference: Tongilium mihi ēdūxit, bless me, he did take along Tongilius; Cat. II. 2.

116. Dative of the agent, used with a passive periphrastic form, or with a perfect participle: erit verendum mihi, I shall have to fear; Cat. I. 2. tibi cōnstitūtī fuērunt, they have been designated by you; Cat. I. 7.

117. Dative of the possessor, used with forms of sum: est vōbīs auctor, you have (as) an authority; P. 23.

118. Dative with personal nouns, instead of the genitive: nūllus est portis custōs, there is no guard for the gates; Cat. II. 12.

119. Dative with adjectives meaning near, like, fit, sufficient, acceptable, friendly: proximī Germānīs, next to the Germans; B.G. I. 1.

a. Similis may take the genitive instead of the dative, especially of words denoting persons: tuī similis, like you (the like of you); Cat. I. 2.

b. Proprius may take a possessive genitive instead of the dative: hūius imperī proprium, characteristic of this authority; Cat. I. 5.

Accusative Case

The uses of the accusative case are as follows:—

120. Direct object of a transitive verb: ducem hostium vidēmus, we see the leader of the enemy; Cat. I. 2.

121. Secondary Object. — Some verbs meaning ask, demand, teach, or conceal, may take two objects, one of the person (direct object), the other of the thing (secondary object): hōs sententiam rogō, I ask them their opinion; Cat. I. 4. id quod nōs Mithridātēs docuit, what Mithridates taught us; P. 7. In the passive construction these verbs retain the secondary object in the accusative.

Note. — The verbs so used are ōrō, poscō, rogō, interrogō, flāgitō, postulō, doceō, cēlō. Petō always takes ab with the ablative of the person asked, and quaerō takes ab, dē, or ex. Poscō, flāgitō, and postulō may take ab; interrogō, quaerō, may take dē and the ablative of the thing asked about, instead of the direct accusative.

122. Predicate Accusative. — The verbs make, call, choose, regard, show, etc., may take two accusatives, one of the direct object, the other a predicate accusative: quem Statōrem nōmīnāmus, whom we call protector; Cat. I. 13. In the passive these verbs take a predicate nominative (95), instead of the predicate accusative of the active construction.

a. Certain infinitives like esse, with a subject accusative, may take a predicate accusative in agreement with the subject: quem esse hostem comperistī, whom you have learned to be an enemy; Cat. I. 11.

123. Subject of an Infinitive. — The accusative is used as the subject of any infinitive except an historical infinitive (213): sī tē interfici iusserō, if I shall order you to be put to death; Cat. I. 5.

124. Object of Certain Prepositions. — For these prepositions see 231.

125. An accusative may follow the adjectives propior, proximus, and the adverbs propius, proximē, pridiē: pridiē Kalendās, the day before the Calends; Cat. I. 6.

126. Accusative of place to which, with ad, in, or sub: ut tē ad portās prōsequantur, to follow you to the gates; Cat. I. 8.

a. A preposition is not used with the accusative of the names of towns, small islands, domus, or rūs, but names of towns may take ad when it means towards, or near to: sē Massiliam cōferet, he will go to Massilia; Cat. II. 6.

127. Accusative denoting duration of time or extent of space: domicilium Rōmae multōs annōs habuit, he had a residence at Rome many years; (Ar.) 4.

a. The preposition per is sometimes used with the accusative of duration: per decem diēs; Cat. III. 8.

128. Cognate Accusative. — A verb may take the accusative of a noun having a meaning similar to its own. Such an accusative is called cognate; cum trīdū viam prōcessisset, when he had gone forward a three days' journey; B. G. I. 38.

129. Adverbial Accusative. — An accusative, chiefly of neuter pronouns and adjectives, may be used as an adverb: quid tacēs, why are you silent? Cat. I. 4.

130. Accusative of Exclamation. — The accusative is used in exclamations: O tempora! O the times! Cat. I. 1.

Ablative Case

131. The with-case was originally the instrumental, the in-case was the locative, and the from-case was the ablative. As the instrumental and the locative passed out of use, the ablative absorbed their functions.

The uses of the ablative are as follows: —

132. As the object of certain prepositions. For these prepositions see 231.

133. Ablative of separation, with or without ab, dē, or ex. A preposition is generally used with words denoting persons. A preposition is generally omitted with verbs of figurative separation, free, relieve, deprive:¹ cūrā relevātus, relieved of care; Cat. I. 13; dum modo ā vōbīs periculum dēpellātur, provided the danger be removed from you; Cat. II. 7.

a. This includes the ablative of place from which, generally used with ab, dē, or ex: exīre ex urbe, to go out of the city; Cat. I. 5.

b. With the ablative of the names of towns, small islands, domus, and rūs, the preposition is not used, except in the meaning from the neighborhood of: Rōmā profectus est, he went away from Rome; Cat. II. 7. ā Brundisiō, from (the port of) Brundisium; P. 12.

134. Ablative of source or parentage. Ex or ab is sometimes used, especially with pronouns: summō nātī locō, born of the highest rank; Cat. IV. 8.

a. Ablative of material, with ex or dē: exercitum collēctum ex senibus, an army composed of old men, Cat. II. 3.

135. Ablative of agent, with ab, denoting the person by whom the action of a passive verb is done: dictae sunt ā pīncipib⁹ sententiae, opinions were expressed by the chief men; Cat. III. 6.

136. Ablative of accordance, denoting that in accordance with which something is done. The preposition, if used, is dē or ex: iūdiciō senātūs, according to the decision of the senate, Cat. III. 6.

137. Ablative of comparison, following a comparative adjective or adverb when quam, than, is not used: patria mihi vītā meā cārior, my country, dearer to me than my life; Cat. I. 11.

a. Quam is used when the first of the words compared is in the genitive, dative, or ablative, and may be used when the first is in the nominative or accusative. If quam is used, the two words compared are in the same case.

b. Amplius, longius, plūs, or minus, may be used without affecting the case of the following noun: amplius pedum mille sexcentōrum, more than 1600 feet; B.G. I. 38.

138. Ablative of accompaniment, with cum: occīsus est cum liberis Fulvius, Fulvius was killed together with his children; Cat. I. 2.

a. Cum may be omitted in military phrases, when the noun is modified by any adjective except a numeral: pedestribus cōpiis, with the infantry; B. G. III. 11.

139. Ablative of manner, with or without cum: māgnō cum strepitū ēgressī, having gone out with great uproar; B. G. II. 11; aequō animō moriar, I shall die with a calm mind; Cat. IV. 2.

140. Ablative of attendant circumstance, expressing the situation or circumstance of an action. The preposition, if used, is cum: hīscē ūminibus, with these omens; cum summā salūte, to (with) the highest welfare; Cat. I. 13.

141. Ablative of means or instrument, without a preposition: nox tenebrīs obscūrāre nōn potest, night with its darkness cannot conceal; Cat. I. 3.

142. Ablative of cause or reason, generally without a preposition: cōfessiōnibus suīs, because of his own confessions; Cat. III. 6.

143. Ablative of description, denoting quality or characteristic. This ablative is always modified by an adjective or genitive: litterae eādem ratiōne, letters of the same character, Cat. III. 5.

144. Ablative of specification, denoting that in respect to which anything is or is done: impudentia, quā superābat omnēs, his impudence, in which he surpassed all men; Cat. III. 5.

145. Ablative of degree of difference, used (a) with comparatives and words implying comparison; (b) with absum, cōsidō, etc., to denote the interval of space: multō cārior, much dearer; Cat. I. 11.

146. Ablative of the route taken, denoting the way or route by which, without a preposition: Aurēliā viā profectus est, he has gone by the Aurelian road; Cat. II. 4.

147. The ablative is used with ūtor, fruor, fugor, potior, vēscor, and their compounds: quō ūsque abūtēre patientiā nostrā? how far will you abuse our patience? Cat. I. 1.

a. Potior may take the genitive (109).

148. The ablative is used with opus est and ūsus est, there is need: sī opus factō esset, if there should be need of action; B.G. I. 42.

149. The ablative of plenty or want, used with some adjectives and verbs: ¹ carēre aspectū, to be without the sight; Cat. I. 7.

150. The ablative is used with dīgnus, indīgnus, contentus, and frētus: dīgnum custōdiā, deserving of custody; Cat. I. 8. meā prūdentiā frētus, relying on my own wisdom; Cat. II. 13.

151. Ablative absolute.—An ablative absolute is a phrase consisting of a noun or pronoun in the ablative, and a participle, an adjective, or another noun in agreement with it.

a. An ablative absolute may express time, cause, condition, concession, manner, means, situation. It may be best rendered by a clause beginning with when, because, if, although, etc. vīvis nōbīs, while we are alive; Cat. II. 7. hōc interfectō, if this man were put to death; Cat. I. 12. recitātīs litterīs, by the reading of the letters; Cat. III. 5.

b. The phrase is often to be translated by an active participle with the noun as object, when the agent is the same as the subject of the main verb: eō opere perfectō praesidia dispōnit, having completed this work, he stationed guards; B.G. I. 8.

152. Ablative denoting time when or within which, without a preposition: quid proximā nocte ēgeris, what you did last night; Cat. I. 1.

153. Ablative of place where ("locative ablative"), with in or sub: in Ītaliā, in Italy; Cat. I. 2.

a. The preposition may be omitted with such words as locō, parte, parietibus, and with any noun modified by tōtus, medius, cūnctus, and the like: tōtā Ītaliā, in all Italy; Cat. II. 4.

b. Plural names of towns express place where by the ablative without a preposition: Athēnīs, at Athens.

Locative Case

154. The locative case, denoting place where, is used instead of the ablative in the singular of names of towns and small islands of the first, second, and sometimes the third declension; also in domī, at home; militiae, in military service; rūri, in the country. The ending of the locative is -ae in the first declension, -i in the second and third: qui Rōmae remanent, who stay in Rome; Cat. II. 8.

ADJECTIVES

155. An adjective is attributive when it describes a noun directly; predicate, when it forms part of the predicate with sum, or with a passive verb like be named, be called, be chosen (95).

156. Agreement. — An adjective or participle (220), whether attributive or predicate, agrees with its noun in gender, number, and case: fortēs virī, brave men; rēs pūblica (commonwealth), the state.

a. With two or more nouns connected by et, -que, or atque, the adjective or participle is usually plural, but it may be singular if the nearest noun is singular: sīgnūm et manū suām, his seal and hand; Cat. III. 5.

b. With two or more nouns of different genders an attributive adjective takes the gender of the nearest; a predicate adjective or participle is generally masculine if one or more of the nouns denote living things, neuter if they denote things without life: vītam, bona, fortūnās, coniugēs, liberōsque vestrōs, your lives, property, etc.; Cat. III. 1.

Uses of Adjectives

157. An adjective may be used as a noun, chiefly in the plural: bonī, good citizens; omnia, all things.

158. An adjective may be used with the force of an adverb: invīti, unwillingly; frequēns, in great numbers.

159. Some adjectives may denote a part of an object, as extrēmus, the end of, infimus, the bottom of, summus the top of: extrēmā pueritiā, at the end (close) of his boyhood; P. 10.

160. A superlative adjective or adverb may be best translated by very; a comparative, by too, rather, unusually: sērius, too late; superbius, somewhat arrogantly.

a. A superlative with quam or quam possum is translated as . . . as possible: quam māximīs potest itineribus, by as long marches as possible.

PRONOUNS

161. When pronouns are used as nouns, the rules for the cases of nouns apply; when used as adjectives, they follow the rules for the agreement of adjectives (156).

162. Personal Pronouns. — There is no special pronoun of the third person, but a demonstrative pronoun may be so used: sī eōs plācāre nōn possēs, if you could not pacify them; Cat. I. 7.

a. The nominatives ego, tū, nōs, vōs, are used for emphasis: pestem, quam tū māchināris, the ruin which you plot; Cat. I. 1; nōs cōsulēs dēsumus, we, the consuls, are at fault; Cat. I. 1.

b. The genitives nostrī, vestrī, are objective (99); nostrum and vestrum, as a rule, are genitives of the whole (103): quem nostrum, what man of us? Cat. I. 1. ducem memorem vestrī, a leader mindful of you; Cat. IV. 9.

c. The plural of personal pronouns is sometimes used for the singular: vidēs nōs multa cōnārī, you see that I (we) attempt many things; Orator, 30.

163. Reflexive Pronouns. — The reflexive sē and the possessive suus may refer to the subject of the clause in which they stand (direct reflexive): sē suaque dēdidērunt, they surrendered themselves and their property; B. G. II. 15.

a. Sē or suus in a subordinate clause may refer to the subject of the verb upon which the clause depends, if the clause expresses the thought of that subject (indirect reflexive): his mandāvit ut ad sē referrent, he ordered them to report to him; B. G. I. 47.

b. Sē or suus may refer to a person mentioned in the sentence, not the subject: dēsinant īnsidiāri domī suae cōsuli, let them cease to plot against the consul in his own house; Cat. I. 13.

c. The personal pronouns of the first and second persons may be used in a reflexive sense, that is, they may denote the same person as the subject: mē condēmō, I find myself guilty; Cat. I. 2.

164. Possessive Pronouns. — Possessive pronouns agree in gender, number, and case, with the word with which they are used, not with the word denoting the possessor: quis tē ex tot tuīs amīcis salūtāvit? who of so many friends of yours saluted you? Cat. I. 7.

a. The possessive pronoun suus is used reflexively, that is, it refers to the subject of the sentence (163). When some other person or thing is meant, his, her, its, or their is expressed by the genitive of a demonstrative, ēius, eōrum, etc.: ēius sociōs, his allies; Cat. II. 2. illōrum respōnsīs, according to their answers; Cat. III. 8.

b. The ablative of a possessive pronoun may be used in place of the objective genitive of a personal pronoun: nostrā (= nostri) caede, with the slaughter of us; Cat. I. 3.

165. Demonstrative Pronouns. — Demonstrative pronouns, when not used as adjectives, take the gender and number of the noun to which they refer: quis eum senātor appellāvit? what senator called him by name? Cat. II. 6.

a. Hic, this, refers to what is near the speaker in place, time, or thought; iste, that (of yours), to something near the person spoken to; ille (that) to what is remote: hic tamen vivit, yet this man lives; Cat. I. 1. ista subsellia, the benches near you; Cat. I. 7; aquilam illam argenteam, that silver eagle; Cat. I. 9.

b. Hic . . . ille may mean the latter . . . the former: hic cum auxilium ferret, illum ēripuit, when the latter brought help, he rescued him (the former); B. G. IV. 12.

c. Iste may be used to express contempt, especially when addressing opponents: istius furōrem, the frenzy of that scoundrel; Cat. I. 1. But lest it should appear strange

d. Ille may mean that famous: M. Catōnem, illum senem, Marcus Cato, that (famous) old man; Ar. 7. that in a legal

e. Is, this, that, is frequently used as the antecedent of qui, or in agreement with the antecedent: is qui hanc urbē servāvit, he who saved this city; Cat. III. 1. proceeding, ergo.

166. Intensive Pronoun. — The pronoun ipse emphasizes the word to which it refers: Catilīna ipse profūgit, Catiline himself has fled; Cat. II. 3; erat scriptum ipsius manū, it had been written in his own hand; Cat. III. 5. purple cloak, before

a. Ipse may mean very, exactly, of one's own accord; Catilinam ipsum ēgredientem, Catiline departing of his own accord; Cat. II. 1.

b. Ipse may be used as a reflexive pronoun: sī quid ipsī (= sibi) opus esset: if he needed anything (lit. if any need was to himself); B. G. I. 34. an account of reality, the

167. Relative Pronoun. — The relative pronoun agrees with its antecedent in gender, number, and person; its case depends upon the structure of the clause in which it stands: mē quid pudeat, qui vivō? why should I be ashamed who live? Ar. 6. most

a. With two or more antecedents a relative pronoun may agree with the nearest or follow the rule for a predicate adjective (156): ōtium atque divitiae, quae prīma mortālēs putant, leisure and wealth which men consider of the first importance; Sall. Cat. 36. important, few, &c., and so

b. The relative may not agree with its antecedent, but with an appositive or predicate noun in its own clause: gladiātōrēs, quam manū certissimam fore putāvit, the gladiators, whom he thought would be a most faithful band; Cat. II. 12. crowded

c. The antecedent may stand in the relative clause: ut, quam an assembly, I lay aside the usual styles of trials, and introduce one new defendant from foot of the bar; urbem pulcherrimam esse voluerunt, hanc defendant, that they may defend this city, which they wished to be the fairest; Cat. II. 13.

d. The antecedent may be repeated, standing in both clauses:
 quae religio ~~This~~ eā religiōne; Cat. III. 6. When they, u hee

e. The antecedent may be omitted, especially if it is indefinite:
 sunt quī dīcant, there are those who say; Cat. II. 6. I hope

f. The relative pronoun at the beginning of an independent clause may be equivalent to a demonstrative or a personal pronoun, with or without a preceding conjunction (et, nam, sed):
 quī cum respondissent, and when they had replied; Cat. III. 5. to

168. Interrogative Pronouns. — The masculine singular of the interrogative pronoun, as a rule, is quis, who, and of the corresponding adjective is quī, what? of what sort? But quī may be used as a pronoun and quis as an adjective: quis tē salūtāvit? who greeted you? Cat. I. 7; quis eum senātor appellāvit? what senator addressed him? Cat. II. 6. To be due to the

169. Indefinite Pronouns. — There are eight indefinite pronouns, as given with their meanings in 27. Quis, any one, is used chiefly after sī, nisi, nē, num; quisquam, any one at all, is used chiefly in negative sentences, and in questions implying a negative: sī quid hīs accidat, if anything should happen to them; B. G. III. 22. neque quisquam est tam āversus à Musīs, nor is any one so hostile to the Muses; Ar. 9. I spendant that

a. Nescio quis (lit. I don't know who) is used with the force of aliquis, some (one) or other, and in this sense does not require the subjunctive: nesciō quō pactō, in some way or other; Cat. I. 13.

b. With superlatives quisque denotes a class: optimus quisque, all the best men (lit. each best man). In short I am pleading

170. Alius and alter. Alius and alter may be adjectives or pronouns. In an equal part, and a man, a

a. Alter . . . alter mean the one . . . the other, alius . . . aliis, one ~~that~~ another, aliī . . . aliī, some . . . others: hārum altera occisa, altera captā est, one of these was killed, the other taken prisoner; B. G. I. 53. before so learned an

b. Two different cases of alius may be used in the same clauses with the meaning one (some) . . . one, another (others) . . . another: aliud aliī nātūra iter ostendit, nature points out one road to one man, another to another; Sall. Cat. 2. and whence, suc

VERBS

171. Agreement. — A finite verb agrees with its subject in number and person: haec cōsul videt, the consul sees these things; Cat. I. 1.

Distinguished features of the
a. If there are two or more subjects, connected by et, -que, or atque, the verb may agree with the nearest or be plural: Asia atque Mithridātēs nōs docuit, Asia and Mithridates taught us; P. 7.

b. If singular subjects are connected by words meaning either, neither, the verb is usually singular: neque agrī cultūra nec ratiō atque ūsus belli intermittitur, neither the cultivation of the land nor the theory and practice of war is interrupted; B. G. IV. 1.

c. If two singular subjects form one idea, the verb is singular: Matrona et Sēquana dīvidit, the Marne and Seine separate; B. G. I. 1.

d. A collective noun generally takes a singular verb, but may take a plural: cum tanta multitudō tēla conicerent, when so great a crowd threw spears; B. G. II. 6.

e. If two or more subjects are of different persons, the first person is preferred to the other two, and the second to the third: sī tū et Tullia valētis, ego et Cicerō valēmus, if you and Tullia are well, Cicero and I are well; Cie. Epist.

172. Impersonal Verbs. — Some verbs are used only in the indicative and subjunctive, third person singular, and in the infinitive, without a personal subject. To this class belong: —

a. Verbs meaning it happens, it is permitted, it is necessary, etc. Such verbs take a phrase or a clause as the subject: quae licet recognōscās, and these things you may recall (lit. it is permitted that you recall); Cat. I. 3.

b. Intransitive verbs used in the third person singular of the passive (112, Note 2): quōcumque ventum sit, wherever they came (lit. it was come); P. 13.

c. Verbs of feeling: mē paenitēbit, I shall repent (lit. it will repent me); Cat. IV. 10.

d. The passive periphrastic of deponent verbs: mihi laetandum esse videō, I see that I must rejoice (lit. it must be rejoiced by me); P. 1.

Tenses of the Indicative

173. Present Indicative. — The present indicative represents action as taking place at the time of speaking or writing: urbis

Songes and peoples rules - If in my way I granted me, I shall not only prove tēcta dēfendunt, they are defending the houses of the city; Cat. II. 13.

a. The present is often used instead of a past tense to describe an action more vividly. It is then called the historical present: litterās prōferrī iubet, he orders the letter to be produced; Cat. III. 5.

b. The historical present may be used with dum, while (195, d).

c. With diū, iam, iam diū, iam dūdum, the present is used of an action beginning in the past and continuing in the present: nīmīum diū tē castra dēsiderant, the camp has too long been missing you; Cat. I. 5.

174. Imperfect Indicative. — The imperfect indicative represents action as going on in past time: putābam, I was thinking; Cat. III. 2.

a. The imperfect may be used in descriptions: erant duo itinera, there were two ways; B. G. I. 6.

b. The imperfect may represent an action as customary or attempted: classem hostium vidēbātis, you used to see the enemy's fleet; P. 12. quod faciēbas, which you were preparing to do; Cat. I. 5.

c. The imperfect with iam, iam diū, iam dūdum, iam prīdem, is used instead of a progressive perfect or pluperfect: iam prīdem rapiēbat, has long been hurrying; Cat. I. 10.

175. Future Indicative. — The future indicative represents action as taking place in time to come: mē metū liberābis, you will free me from fear; Cat. I. 5.

176. Perfect Indicative. — The perfect indicative has two uses:

a. The present perfect (translated by have), representing an action as completed in the present time: audīvī, I have heard.

b. The historical perfect (English past), representing the action as an historical fact. This is the tense of narration, as the imperfect is the tense of description: ad praetōrem vēnisti, you went to the praetor; Cat. I. 8.

177. Pluperfect Indicative. — The pluperfect indicative represents action as completed before some other past action: qui convēnerant, who had assembled; Cat. III. 3.

178. Future Perfect. — The future perfect represents action which is to be completed before some other future action: sī tē interfici iusserō, residēbit coniūrātōrum manus, if I order (shall have ordered) you to be killed, there will remain a band of conspirators; Cat. I. 5.

179. In some verbs a perfect, pluperfect, or future perfect have the force of a present, past, or future: meminī, I remember; memineram, I remembered.

180. Epistolary Tenses. — In letters a writer often takes the position of the receiver and uses the imperfect or historical perfect for a present, and a pluperfect for a present perfect: haec ego scribēbam, I am writing this (lit. was writing).

181. Primary and Secondary Tenses. — The present, future, and future perfect indicative, and the present and perfect subjunctive are primary tenses. The imperfect, perfect, and pluperfect indicative, and the imperfect and pluperfect subjunctive are secondary tenses.

Tenses of the Subjunctive

182. The four tenses of the subjunctive may denote the same time as the corresponding tenses of the indicative, or each tense may have a future force.

a. In subordinate clauses future time may be expressed by the present subjunctive after a primary tense ; by the imperfect after a secondary tense: venit ut videat, he comes that he may see; vénit ut vidēret, he came that he might see.

b. In subordinate clauses future perfect time may be expressed by the perfect subjunctive after a primary tense ; by the pluperfect after a secondary tense: he says that if he goes (shall have gone, dicit si ierit; he said that if he should go (should have gone), dixit si isset.

c. In both clauses of conditional sentences the present subjunctive may denote future time, and the imperfect may denote present time (198).

183. Sequence of Tenses. — In subordinate clauses the tense of the subjunctive depends on the following general rule: The present (or perfect) subjunctive is used after a primary tense ; the imperfect (or pluperfect) subjunctive is used after a secondary: venit ut videat, he comes to see; rogābō quid fēceris, I shall ask what you did; vénit ut videret, he came to see.

a. The historical present may be regarded as either primary or secondary, and hence may take either sequence.

b. The present perfect, though properly a primary tense, often takes the secondary sequence: mihi ut satis esset praesidi prōvisum est, I have arranged that there should be ample protection; Cat. II. 12.

Uses of the Indicative

184. In principal clauses the indicative is used to express direct statements of fact and questions of fact. The negative is nōn: dēcrēvit quondam senātus, the Senate once decreed; Cat. I. 2. meministīne mē dīcere, do you remember that I said? Cat. I. 3.

185. The indicative is used in the following subordinate clauses:

a. Noun clauses with quod, that: quid quod tē in custōdiam dedisti? what of the fact that you gave yourself into custody? Cat. I. 8.

b. Parenthetical clauses with ut, as: ut saepe dīxi, as I have often said; Cat. I. 9.

c. Clauses of comparison with ut . . . sīc, as . . . so: ut saepe hominēs . . . sīc hīc morbus . . .; Cat. I. 13.

d. Certain types of relative (191), temporal (195), causal (196), concessive (197), conditional (198) clauses.

The Subjunctive in Principal Clauses

186. The subjunctive expresses action as willed, desired, or possible. Accordingly we distinguish:—

a. The subjunctive of will, or volitive subjunctive.

b. The subjunctive of desire, or optative subjunctive.

c. The subjunctive of possibility, or potential subjunctive.

187. In principal clauses the volitive subjunctive may express:

a. An exhortation, in the first person plural of the present tense (negative, nē): optēmus, let us wish; Cat. II. 7.

b. A command, in the third person of the present tense (negative, nē): sēcēdant improbī, let the ill-disposed begone; Cat. I. 13. nē patientur, let them not allow; Cat. II. 4.

188. In principal clauses the subjunctive of wish or desire (optative subjunctive) takes the present tense to imply that the desire may be realized; the imperfect to imply that the desire is not now realized; the pluperfect to imply that the desire was not realized. Utinam may be used with the present, and generally is used with the other tenses. The negative regularly is nē: utinam dī immortālēs dūint, O that the gods may give; Cat. I. 9; utinam suās cōpiās ēdūxisset, O that he had taken his forces; Cat. II. 2.

189. In principal clauses the subjunctive may express action as possible or conditional (potential subjunctive), and is translated by may, might, can, could, should, would. The negative is nōn: dīcat aliquis, some one may say.

The Subjunctive in Subordinate Clauses

190. The subjunctive is used in the following subordinate clauses :—

- a. Purpose clauses (193).
- b. Result clauses (194).
- c. Clauses of proviso (199).
- d. Indirect questions (202).
- e. Certain types of : relative clauses (192), temporal clauses (195), causal clauses (196), concessive clauses (197), conditional clauses (198), noun clauses (203), direct questions (201).

Relative Clauses

191. The indicative is used in the following relative clauses :—

a. Clauses that state what person or thing the antecedent is (determinative clauses) : hōs, qui exercitum dēseruērunt, those men who have deserted the army; Cat. II. 3.

Note. — Determinative clauses are used as pronouns, and must be distinguished from descriptive clauses which are used as adjectives (192).

b. Clauses that state a fact parenthetically, or that add a fact not necessary to the main statement (parenthetical clauses) : Santonum finēs, qui nōn longē ā Tolōsātiūm finib⁹ absunt, the country of the Santones, which is not far from the country of the Tolosates; B. G. I. 10.

192. Relative clauses that state what kind of person or thing the antecedent is, are called descriptive or characteristic clauses. The subjunctive is used in descriptive clauses, if they are essential to the completeness of the sentence ; otherwise, the indicative is used (191, b). The preceding independent clause often contains a statement of existence like est qui, sunt qui: sunt qui dicant, there are some who say; Cat. II. 6 ; quam diū quisquam erit, qui tē dēfendere audeat, as long as there will be a man who dares to defend you; Cat. I. 2.

a. The subjunctive is used in relative clauses to denote purpose or result (193, 194) : ut praestō esset ille, qui fugientēs exciperet, that he might be on hand to cut off the fugitives; Cat. III. 4 ; nēmō tam improbus, qui nōn fateātur, no one so depraved as not to admit; Cat. I. 2.

b. The subjunctive is used in relative clauses to denote cause, concession, or condition : qui (= cum ego) māgnō in periculō essem, since I was in great peril; Cat. I. 8 ; Cethēgus, quī (= cum is) respondisset, Cethegus who (although he) had replied; Cat. III. 5 ; mihi ferreus, quī (= sī is) nōn suum dolōrem lēnierit, to me (he would seem) hard-hearted, who (if he) did not soothe his grief; Cat. IV. 6.

c. The subjunctive is used in relative clauses to denote obligation, after dignus, indignus, idōneus: dignōs, quōrum salūtem commendētis, worthy to have you entrust their safety (lit. whose safety you should entrust); P. 5.

Purpose Clauses

193. The subjunctive with ut, nē, or a relative may express purpose: ut timērē dēsinam, that I may cease to fear; Cat. I. 7 ; ac nē longum sit, and not to be tedious; Cat. III. 5 ; praetōrem mīsi, quī efferret, I sent a praetor to bring; Cat. III. 3.

a. In clauses containing a comparative, quō (= ut eō) is used instead of ut to express purpose: quō facilius prohibēre possit, that he may be able to prevent more easily; B. G. I. 8.

b. Purpose may be expressed also by a gerund (227), a gerundive (226), or by a supine (229).

Result Clauses

194. The subjunctive with ut, ut nōn, or a relative may express result: mōns impendēbat, ut prohibēre possent, a mountain was overhanging, so that they could prevent; B. G. I. 6.

a. There is often in the principal clause a correlative word meaning so, such, so great, as ita, sīc, tam, tālis, tantus, īs, iste: tam improbus, quī nōn fateātur, so depraved that he does not admit; Cat. I. 2.

Temporal Clauses

195. In temporal clauses:—

a. Ubi, ut (when), postquam, posteāquam, cum prīmum, simul atque, take the indicative, usually the perfect, sometimes the historical present: ubi sē parātōs esse arbitrātī sunt, oppida sua incendunt, when they thought they were ready, they burned their towns; B. G. I. 5.

b. Cum (when) takes the indicative to define the time of the action of the main verb; the imperfect or pluperfect subjunctive to describe the circumstances of the main action: tum, cum ex urbe ēiciēbam, at the time when I drove him from the city; Cat.

III. 2; cum haesitaret, quaesivi, when he hesitated, I asked; Cat. II. 6.

Note. — Cum may denote cause or concession in connection with time.

c. Cum, whenever, introducing repeated action, generally takes the indicative, but may take the subjunctive: cum aliquid mandarat, whenever he had given a commission; Cat. III. 7.

d. Dum, meaning while, generally takes the indicative historical present (173, b): dum moratur, while he delayed (lit. delays); B. G. I. 39.

e. Dum, quoad, or quam diū, meaning as long as, take the indicative: quam diū quisquam erit, as long as there shall be any one; Cat. I. 2.

f. Dum, dōnec, or quoad, meaning until, take the indicative of an actual event, but the subjunctive of an expected event: quoad potuit, restitit, he resisted as long as he could; B. G. IV. 12; dum nāvēs eō convenīrent exspectāvit, he waited until the ships should arrive; B. G. IV. 23.

g. Antequam and priusquam take the indicative to denote an actual event, but the subjunctive to denote an expected event: priusquam pervēnērunt, before they arrived; B. G. I. 53. priusquam quicquam cōnārēt, before he should attempt anything; B. G. I. 19.

Causal Clauses

196. In causal clauses : —

a. Quod, quia, quoniam, and quandō take the indicative when the speaker or writer gives his own reason, but the subjunctive when he gives another's reason, or a reason not surely known by himself: quod stantem urbem reliquit, quantō illum maerore esse adflictum putatis, because he left the city standing, with what sorrow do you think he has been filled? Cat. II. 1; urbs mihi laetari vidētur, quod tantam pestem prōiēcerit, the city seems to me to rejoice, because (as she says) she has cast out so great an evil; Cat. II. 1.

b. Cum, meaning since or because, and qui (= cum is) take the subjunctive: quae cum ita sint, since these things are so; Cat. I. 5.

Concessive Clauses

197. Concessive clauses grant or concede something. They are formed as follows: —

a. Quamquam, although, takes the indicative: quamquam sunt hostēs, although they are enemies; Cat. II. 12.

b. Etsī, etiamsī, tametsī, even if, although, generally take the indicative, but may take the subjunctive like conditional sī (198): etsī prope exācta aestās erat, although summer was almost over; B. G. III. 28.

c. Cum, quamvis, and quī (= cum is), although, take the subjunctive: cum id posset īfītiārī, although he could have denied it; Cat. III. 11; Cethēgus, quī respondisset, Cethegus, who (although he) had replied; Cat. III. 10.

Conditional Sentences

198. Conditional sentences are complex sentences, one clause of which expresses a condition, the other a conclusion. The connective may be sī, sīn, nisi, or a relative. The negative is nōn. The condition may be of the following kinds:—

a. Present condition:—

1. Stated as a fact; present indicative: sī vincit, bene est, if he is conquering, it is well.

2. Contrary to fact; imperfect subjunctive: sī vinceret, bene esset, if he were conquering, it would be well.

b. Past condition:—

1. Stated as a fact; a past indicative: sī vicit, bene fuit, if he conquered, it was well.

2. Contrary to fact; pluperfect subjunctive: sī vīcisset, bene fuisse, if he had conquered, it would have been well.

c. Future condition:—

1. More probable (shall, will); future or future perfect: sī vincet, bene erit, if he conquers (shall conquer), it will be well.

2. Less probable (should, would); present or perfect subjunctive: sī vincat, bene sit, if he should conquer, it would be well.

Note 1. — The verb in the conclusion may differ in form from the verb of the condition, as, for example, when command, wish, or exhortation is to be expressed.

Note 2. — In the conclusion of a condition contrary to fact, the verb may be in the indicative (the past tenses):—

a. In expressions of ability, duty, or necessity.

b. With either of the periphrastic conjugations: (sī tabernae incēnsae essent), quid futūrum fuit? what would have happened?

Cat. IV. 8 ; sī p̄ivātus esset, erat dēligendus, if he were a private citizen, he would deserve to be chosen; P. 17.

Note 3. — For conditional sentences in indirect discourse, see 218.

Clauses of Proviso

199. The subjunctive is used with modo, dum, dummodo, if only, provided, so long as, to express a proviso. The negative is nē: dum modo p̄iculum dēpellātur, if only the danger be removed; Cat. II. 7.

Subjunctive by Attraction

200. In clauses depending on a subjunctive or on an infinitive, the verb may be put in the subjunctive “by attraction,” as scīret in the following: hortātus sum, ut ea, quae scīret, indīcāret, I urged him to tell what he knew; Cat. III. 4.

Subjunctive in Questions

201. The subjunctive is used in direct questions expressing deliberation or perplexity, surprise or indignation, possibility, obligation, propriety. The negative is nōn: quid tē invītem? why should I invite you? Cat. I. 9; quis possit? who would be able? Cat. II. 5; tū agrīs ḍrnātus sīs? can you be rich in lands? Cat. II. 8.

202. The subjunctive is used in indirect questions: videō quis habeat Etrūriam, I see who holds Etruria, Cat. II. 3.

Noun Clauses

203. A clause may be used as the subject or object of a verb, or in some other case relation. It is then called a noun clause or substantive clause. Noun clauses may have the verb in the indicative, subjunctive, or infinitive.

204. Indicative Noun Clauses. — A noun clause beginning with the conjunction quod, that, takes the indicative: rēs quod omnēs sē dēdидērunt, the fact that all surrendered; P. 16.

205. Subjunctive Noun Clauses. — Noun clauses beginning with ut, nē, quīn, quōminus, or an interrogative word take the subjunctive, as follows:

a. Noun clauses with ut or nē are used after verbs meaning advise, command,¹ determine, decree; induce, permit,² persuade, request, urge, desire, wish: ² dēcrēvit senātus ut cōnsul vidēret nē quid rēs pūblica dētrīmentī caperet, the Senate decreed that the consul should see to it that the republic suffered no harm; Cat. I. 2.

Note. — After verbs meaning advise, command, etc., the subjunctive may be used without ut. The subjunctive may then be a quoted imperative (215, c).

b. Noun clauses with ut or nē are used after verbs meaning fear. Here nē means lest or that; ut means that . . . not: verērī ut habeam satis praesidi, to fear, that I may not have enough protection; Cat. IV. 7.

c. Noun clauses with ut are used after verbs meaning accomplish, cause, and the like; also after verbs meaning expect, wait for: vestra admurmurātiō facit ut agnōscere videāminī, your murmuring makes it clear that you recognize; P. 13.

d. Noun clauses with ut are used with verb phrases and impersonal verbs meaning it happens, it remains, it is permitted, it is necessary, customary, advantageous: accidit ut esset lūna plēna, it happened that there was full moon; B. G. IV. 29.

Note. — Sometimes without ut: licet recognōscās, you may recall (lit. it is permitted that you recall); Cat. I. 3.

e. Noun clauses with nē, quīn, or quōminus are used after verbs meaning hinder, prevent, refuse; and with quīn, if a negative is expressed or implied, after words meaning *doubt, be ignorant,*³ and sometimes hesitate: neque mē impediet quōminus dēfendam, nor will it prevent me from defending; P. 19. nēminī dubium est quīn plūrimum imperātor possit, it is doubtful to no one that the general is preēminent; P. 15.

f. Noun clauses beginning with an interrogative word are indirect questions (202).

206. Infinitive Noun Clauses. — An infinitive with subject accusative may be used in a noun clause after verbs meaning say, think, etc. (212).

Use of the Imperative

207. The imperative is used to express command, in the second person of the present tense, and in the second and third persons of the future: proficisci; ēdūc omnēs tuōs, depart; take out all your companions; Cat. I. 5.

² With verbs meaning permit or wish the infinitive may be used (212).

³ Used affirmatively, these verbs take the infinitive (212).

208. Negative command (prohibition) in the second person may be expressed by nōlī (nōlīte) + a present infinitive: nōlīte dubitāre, do not hesitate; P. 23.

Tenses of the Infinitive

209. The present infinitive denotes the same time as that of the principal verb; the perfect, time before; the future, time after that of the principal verb; that is, the time denoted is relative: dicit sē audīre, he says that he hears. dicit sē auditūrum esse, he says that he will hear. dixit sē audīre, he said he was hearing; dixit sē audīvisse, he said that he had heard.

a. Periphrastic Future Infinitive. — As a substitute for a future infinitive, fore or futūrum esse with ut and the subjunctive of the given verb may be used. This construction is necessary when the verb has no future participle: vidēbāmus fore ut nēmō eīs resisteret, we saw that no one would resist them.

b. A past tense of dēbeō, oportet, or possum is often used with a present infinitive to express ought to have, might (could) have: tē dūcī oportēbat, you ought to have been led; Cat. I. 1.

Uses of the Infinitive

210. The infinitive with or without a subject may be used as the subject of a verb, as a predicate nominative, or in apposition: est mihi tantī subīre, it is worth while for me to undergo; Cat. II. 7.

211. The infinitive without a subject may be used as the object of transitive verbs, or the complement of verbs meaning can, dare, begin, ought, seem, hesitate, etc.: qui dēfendere audeat, who dares to defend; Cat. I. 2; vāstāre cupientem, desiring to devastate; Cat. I. 1.

212. The infinitive with subject accusative may be used after verbs meaning say, think, know, perceive, etc.; also with iubeō;¹ vetō, dēcernō, prohibeō, sinō, cōgō (compel), cipiō, patior, volō, licet, oportet: tabellās prōferri iussimus, we ordered the tablets to be produced; Cat. III. 5.

213. Historical Infinitive. — The infinitive may be used with a subject nominative in lively narration. It is then called the historical infinitive, and is equivalent to an imperfect or perfect indicative: Caesar Haeduōs frūmentum flāgitāre, Caesar was demanding grain of the Haeduans; B. G. I. 16.

Indirect Discourse

214. When a sentence is quoted in dependence upon a verb of saying, knowing, or the like, the quotation is said to be an indirect statement or indirect discourse: direct, ibimus, we shall go; indirect, (dixērunt sē) itūrōs esse, they said they would go; B. G. I. 13.

215. Moods in Indirect Discourse. — In indirect discourse, a principal verb is generally in the infinitive, standing for a direct indicative; a subordinate verb is in the subjunctive, standing for a direct indicative or subjunctive. In other words, when direct discourse is made indirect: —

a. A principal declarative verb in the indicative becomes infinitive: direct, meritī sumus, we have deserved; indirect, dixērunt sē meritōs esse, they said they had deserved; B. G. I. 11.

b. A subordinate verb, if indicative, becomes subjunctive; if subjunctive, remains so: direct, id sī fiet, if this happens (shall happen); indirect, intellegēbat id sī fieret, he knew that if this should happen; B. G. I. 10.

c. An imperative verb becomes subjunctive: direct, revertiminī (imperative), return; indirect, (dīxit) reverterentur, he said they should return; B. G. I. 7.

d. Most interrogative verbs become subjunctive, but those in rhetorical questions (90) become infinitive with subject accusative: direct, quid venītis, why do you come? indirect, quid venīrent, why did they come? B. G. I. 47; direct, num memoriam dēpōnere possum? can I forget (lit. blot out memory)? indirect, num . . . posse? could he forget? B. G. I. 14.

216. Tenses in Indirect Discourse. — The tenses of the infinitive are used according to 209; those of the subjunctive, according to the rule for sequence (183).

a. A future tense in a direct subordinate clause becomes present subjunctive in indirect discourse, if it depends on a verb in the present; imperfect, if it depends on a verb in a past tense: direct, sī cōnābimini, if you (shall) attempt; indirect, sī cōnentur, if they attempt, B. G. I. 8; direct, sī pācem populus faciet, if the people (shall) make peace; indirect, sī . . . faceret, if the people should make peace, B. G. I. 13.

b. A future perfect tense in a direct subordinate clause becomes perfect subjunctive, if it depends on a verb in the present; pluperfect, if it depends on a verb in a past tense: intellegō sī iste p̄vēnerit, I know that if he goes (shall have gone, in dir. disc.); Cat. I. 12; eōs, qui restitissent, infirmōs fore putābam, I was thinking that those who should remain (restiterint in dir. disc.), would be powerless; Cat. III. 2.

[217] Pronouns in Indirect Discourse. — In changing from the first to the third, ego becomes sē; meus or noster becomes suus. In changing from the second person to the third, tū becomes ille or is; tuus or vester becomes suus or the genitive of is: mihi minus dubitatiōnis datur, I feel less hesitation, becomes sibi minus dubitatiōnis dārī; B. G. I. 14.

[218] Conditions in Indirect Discourse. — The verb of the conditional clause in indirect discourse is always in the subjunctive (215, b), the tense depending on the rule for sequence (183). The verb of the conclusion, being a principal verb, is generally in the infinitive (215); in the conclusion of a less probable condition (198, c) the future infinitive is used.

In conditions contrary to fact (198) note the following: —

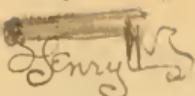

a. The verb of the conditional clause remains unchanged.

b. The conclusion, if active, is expressed by an infinitive consisting of the participle in -ūrus + fuisse: direct, vēnissem, I would have gone; indirect, sēsē ventūrum fuisse, he would have gone; B. G. I. 34.

c. The conclusion, if passive, is expressed by futūrum fuisse ut with an imperfect subjunctive: direct, sī pūgnāvissent, victi essent; indirect, si pūgnāvissent, futūrum fuisse ut vincerentur, if they had fought, they would have conquered.

d. The conclusion, if indicative (198, note 2), is expressed in indir. disc. by the perfect infinitive: direct, sī nōn esset (cīvis), ascīscendus fuit; indirect . . . ascīscendum fuisse, if he were not (a citizen), he ought to have been received (as one); Ar. 2.

219. Informal Indirect Discourse. — When a quotation depends on a verb of saying not expressed but implied in the sentence, the indirect discourse is said to be informal: sī dīcere vellet, fēcī potestātem, if he wished to speak, I gave him permission; Cat. III. 5.

Participles

220. Participles are verbal adjectives, and agree with nouns in gender, number, and case (156). The active participles are the present and the future; the passive are the perfect and the future (or gerundive). The negative is nōn.

a. Deponent and semi-deponent verbs have four participles, all active in meaning, except the gerundive, which is always passive.

221. The present participle denotes the same time as the main verb of the clause or sentence in which it stands: videor vidēre hanc urbem concidentem, I seem to see this city falling.

222. The perfect participle denotes time before that of the main verb. It may be used to modify a noun directly, as an adjective, or to form the compound tenses of the passive voice: hīs rēbus cognitīs discessit, having learned of these things, he departed.

a. The perfect participle of deponent verbs is sometimes used as if present: isdem ducibus ūsus, employing the same men as guides; B. G. II. 7.

223. The present and the perfect participle are sometimes to be translated by a relative clause, or by a clause expressing time, cause, condition, concession: Pompēiō postulantī, to Pompey who demands; P. 19. tē nōn sentientem, though you do not notice (them); Cat. I. 2.

224. The future active participle is used with the verb sum to form the active periphrastic conjugation, and denotes future or intended action: cum sit habitūrus, since he is going to have; Cat. II. 11.

225. The future passive participle is used with sum to form the passive periphrastic conjugation, and denotes necessity or obligation: māgna grātia habenda est, great gratitude (must be felt) is due; Cat. I. 5.

a. The passive periphrastic forms of intransitive verbs are often used impersonally: mihi vivendum esse, that I must live; Cat. II. 12.

226. The Gerundive. — The future passive participle (220) when used in direct (attributive) agreement with a noun, is called the gerundive. It is so used in the following cases, singular and plural:—

a. Genitive: condicōnem cōservandae reī pūblicae, the task of saving the republic; Cat. II. 7.

- b. Dative: rare in Cicero.
- c. Accusative: ad dēponendam audāciam, to lay aside your boldness; Cat. I. 2.
- d. Ablative: suppliciō levandō, by alleviating the penalty; Cat. IV. 5.

Note. — A gerundive in the accusative with ad, or in the genitive with causā, may express purpose: vītandae suspīcīōnis causā, for the purpose of avoiding suspicion; Cat. I. 8.

The Gerund

227. The gerund is a verbal noun, found in the genitive, dative, accusative, and ablative singular. The present infinitive is used for the nominative.

- a. Genitive: dīcendī exercitātiō, skill in (of) speaking; Cat. III. 5.
- b. Dative: rare in classical Latin.
- c. Accusative: tempestivō ad nāvigandum marī, the sea being fit for sailing; P. 12.
- d. Ablative: nōn crēdendō, by not believing; Cat. I. 12.

Note. — A gerund in the accusative with ad, or in the genitive with causā, may express purpose: praedandī causā, for the purpose of plundering; B. G. II. 17.

228. In the genitive or ablative a transitive gerund may take an object, but the gerundive is more common. If the object is a neuter adjective or a neuter pronoun, only the gerund is used: artem vēra ac falsa diiūdicandī, the art of distinguishing the true from the false. After prepositions the gerundive is regularly used (226, c).

The Supine

229. The supine is a verbal noun found in the accusative and ablative cases.

- a. The supine in -um is used with verbs of motion to express purpose: quōs tū ad mē salūtātum mīserās, whom you had sent to greet me; Cat. I. 4.
- b. The supine in -ū is used to denote specification, especially with adjectives meaning easy, good, strange, or the opposite: optimum factū, the best thing to do; Cat. I. 12.

ADVERBS

230. Adverbs modify verbs, adjectives, or other adverbs. They may express time, manner, degree, place, etc.

a. Nē is the negative adverb for commands and expressions of will or desire ; nōn is used in statements and questions of fact, and with infinitives, participles, and gerunds.

b. Two negatives generally make an affirmative : nōn nēminem, some one, more than one; Cat. IV. 5.

PREPOSITIONS

231. A preposition shows a relation between a word in the accusative or ablative case and some other word.

a. The prepositions used with the accusative are ad, adversus, ante, apud, circā, circum, circiter, cis, citrā, contrā, ergā, extrā, in, infrā, inter, intrā, iūxtā, ob, penes, per, post, praeter, prope, propter, secundum, sub, suprā, trāns, ultrā, versus.

b. The prepositions used with the ablative are ā, ab, abs, cum, dē, ē, ex, in, prae, prō, sine, sub.

c. With the accusative, in and sub denote motion to a place, with the ablative, rest in a place.

CONJUNCTIONS

232. Conjunctions connect words, phrases, or clauses of equal rank, or principal with subordinate clauses.

a. Coördinate conjunctions (connecting expressions of equal rank) : et, -que, ac, atque, etiam, quoque ; aut, sive, vel ; nec, neque ; at, autem, enim, nam, sed, tamen.

b. Subordinate conjunctions (connecting subordinate with principal constructions) : (1) Temporal, denoting time : cum, ubi ; dum, dōnec, quoad ; antequam, priusquam ; postquam, posteāquam, simul. (2) Causal, denoting cause : cum ; quod, quia, quoniam, quandō. (3) Conditional, denoting condition : sī, sīn, nisi. (4) Concessive, granting something : cum, etsī, tametsī, quamquam, quamvis. (5) Comparative, denoting comparison : ac, atque, quam, ut. (6) Final, denoting purpose : ut (utī), quō, nē. (7) Consecutive, denoting result : ut.

WORD ORDER

233. There is no fixed rule for the order of words in a Latin sentence. A common order is (1) the subject with its modifiers, (2) the modifiers of the verb, (3) the verb.

a. To produce emphasis, a word may stand out of its normal position: patēre tua cōnsilia nōn sentīs? do you not see the exposure of your plots? Cat. I. 1.

b. Nouns in the genitive usually follow the words they modify, but precede causā, for the sake, gratiā, on account of: ex faucibus fātī; pācis causā.

c. A vocative generally stands after one or more words of the sentence: quae tēcum, Catilina, sīc agit; Cat. I. 7.

d. Demonstrative and intensive pronouns and adjectives of quantity usually precede their nouns; other adjectives precede or follow, according to the emphasis intended: in hāc urbe. The adjective Rōmānus regularly follows its noun: populus Rōmānus.

e. An adjective modifier may be separated from its noun by a preposition: summā cum laude, with the highest praise.

f. Relative pronouns and interrogative words generally stand first in their clauses, unless governed by prepositions.

g. A preposition generally stands before its object, but cum is an enclitic with personal, reflexive, and relative pronouns: tēcum, quibuscum, sēcum.

h. The conjunctions autem, enim, and vērō do not stand first in a sentence, but second or third, igitur usually second. With nē . . . quidem the emphatic word comes between.

i. Inquam and inquit stand after one or more words of a direct quotation: “refer,” inquis, “ad senātum.”

j. Adverbs regularly stand before the words they modify. But ferē, paene, prope, usually follow.

234. Period. — A period is a sentence in which the subordinate phrases or clauses all stand before the main verb, the thought thus being suspended till the end of the sentence. The periodic style is common in Latin; see Cat. III, lines 1–7.

FIGURES OF SPEECH

235. Anaphora is the repetition of a word at the beginning of successive clauses or sentences: intus īnsidiae sunt, intus perīculum est, intus est hostis, within are snares; within, the danger; within, the enemy; Cat. II. 5.

236. Antithesis is the placing of words in contrast or opposition: nōn aliēnis praeceptīs, sed suīs imperiīs, not by the precepts of others, but by his own command; P. 10.

237. Asyndeton is the omission of a connective: frīgus, sitim, famem ferre poterat, he could bear cold, thirst, hunger; Cat. III. 7.

238. Chiasmus. — When two similar phrases have the order of words reversed, the figure is called chiasmus: pācis īrnāmenta, subsidia bellī; P. 2.

239. Climax ("ladder") is a series of phrases or clauses arranged with increasing force: nihil agis, nihil mōliris, nihil cōgitās, you do nothing, plan nothing, think of nothing; Cat. I. 3.

240. Hendiadys ("one through two") is a figure in which two nouns of the same case are connected by a conjunction, when we should expect one noun to modify the other: dēclinātiōne et corpore, by a turning aside of the body; Cat. I. 6.

241. Irony is saying the opposite of what is meant, when the falsity is evident: crēdō, erit verendum mihi, I suppose I shall have to fear; Cat. I. 2.

242. Litotes is a negative statement used instead of the equivalent affirmative: nōn multa, few; Cat. I. 6.

243. Metaphor is an implied resemblance: sentīna reī pūblicae, the dregs of the state; Cat. I. 5.

244. Metonymy is the use of one name for another suggested by it: duodecim secūrēs, for duo praetōrēs; see note P. 1. 402.

245. Polysyndeton is the repetition of a connective, as et, with several words or clauses: turpem et infirmam et abiectam, base and weak and downcast; Cat. IV. 10.

246. Preterition is a figure by which one pretends to omit what he really inserts and emphasizes: nōn dīcam duo bella esse cōflecta, I will not say that two wars were ended; P. 20.

247. Zeugma is a connection of two words with a verb which strictly applies to only one of them: hic locus acervīs corporum et sanguine redundāvit, this place was filled with heaps of bodies, and flowed with blood; Cat. III. 10.

ROMAN CALENDAR

248. The Roman year was designated by the names of the two consuls holding office for that year, as if we should say, "during the presidency of Washington." The names were in the ablative case with cōnsulibus, forming an ablative absolute: Lepidō et Tullō cōnsulibus Cat. I. 6.

a. The Romans did not number the days of the month as we do, but called the first day the Calends (Kalendae), the fifth (seventh of March, May, July, and Oct.), the Nones (Nōnae), and the thirteenth (fifteenth of March, May, July, and October) the Ides (Idūs).

The days between the Calends and the Nones were reckoned as so many days each before the Nones; the days between the Nones and the Ides as so many days each before the Ides; the days after the Ides as so many days each before the Calends of the next month. But they counted both the day from which and the day to which they reckoned. Therefore, to determine a date falling before the Calends, add two to the number of days in the current month before subtracting the given ordinal.

Thus, the phrase ante diem duodecimum Kalendās Novembribus means Oct. 21, for $31 + 2 - 12 = 21$.

b. A phrase like ante diem quīntum Kal. Apr. is idiomatic, for which we should expect diēs quīntus (or diē quīntō) ante Kal. Apr.

ROMAN NAMES OF PERSONS

249. It was customary for Romans to have three names: a praenōmen (individual name), a nōmen (name of the gēns or tribe), and a cognōmen (family name): Mārcus Tullius Cicerō.

a. There were less than twenty praenomina, such as Gāius, Gnaeus, Mārcus, Pūblius, etc. The nomen ended in -ius. The cognomen often originated as a nickname: Cicerō, chickpea.

b. Women had no personal names, but were given the feminine form of the tribe name: Tullia, a daughter of Cicero.

LATIN PROSE COMPOSITION

BASED ON CICERO

Introductory Note.—The following thirty lessons in prose composition are intended to furnish a general review of the principles of syntax, as found in the orations read. Questions, commands, conditions, and the independent uses of the subjunctive, are treated in the first seven lessons, because of their importance and early use in Cicero. Other topics are presented in the usual order of the grammars. The vocabulary, with few exceptions, is confined to the orations read. In the connected passages at the end of each lesson, the pupil should consult the text upon which it is based, rather than the general vocabulary. The references to grammars are explained on p. 181.

LESSON I

Indicative Questions

1. Direct questions: 88;¹ Bur. 363; A. 330; B. 162; G. 450; H. 378; HB. 231.
2. Alternative or double questions: 89; Bur. 372; A. 334; B. 162, 4; G. 458; H. 380, 1; HB. 234.
3. Answers: 91; Bur. 370; A. 336; B. 162, 5; G. 471; H. 379; HB. 232.
4. Word order: 233; Bur. 1055; A. 600; B. 351; G. 684; H. 685; HB. 630.

Note 1. — The connectives in double questions may be : —

- I. utrum . . . an
- II. -ne . . . an
- III. — . . . an

Note 2. — In the second member or not is expressed by annōn, or necne. The latter is used rarely in direct questions, but often in indirect.

Exercise 1 (Cat. I. Chapters 1, 2)

1. Who delivered the orations against Catiline? 2. Where was the first oration delivered? 3. How-many orations were delivered against the same conspirators? 4. Into what strongly-fortified place were the senators called together? 5. Why were all good citizens afraid? 6. Have you not heard the decree of the Senate and the plan of the consul? 7. Will the number of the enemy increase? 8. Does not the consul condemn himself for (of)¹ inactivity? He does (he condemns). 9. Patriots will not plot the ruin of the republic, will they? 10. Do we seem to be doing enough for the republic, or not? 11. By whom was Gaius Gracchus killed? 12. Gaius Gracchus was the son of Cornelia, was he not? 13. Were the Gracchi patriots, or did they desire to devastate Italy with fire and sword (slaughter)? 14. Will Catiline see the eyes of many who are watching him? No (he will not see). 15. To whom shall we intrust [the welfare of]¹ the republic?

Exercise 2 (Cat. I. 1, 2)

Catiline has too long abused the patience of the people. His boldness has been unbridled. But he will not carry out (perficiō) his designs, if the consul does (fut. tense) his duty by (enough for) the republic. For the Senate has intrusted to Cicero [the welfare of] the republic. Once citizens were put to death because of a suspicion of insurrection. And so the consul has ordered (iubeō) Catiline to be arrested, and will do what ought (oportet) to be done.

LESSON II

Commands

1. The imperative: 207; Bur. 931; A. 448; B. 281; G. 266; H. 560; HB. 495.
2. The subjunctive of command: 187, b; Bur. 768; A. 439; B. 275; G. 263; H. 559; HB. 501.
3. Negative command (prohibition): 208; Bur. 934; A. 450; B. 276; G. 271; H. 561; HB. 501.
4. The vocative: 96; Bur. 398; A. 340; B. 171; G. 201; H. 402; HB. 400.

Note 1. — Dic, dūc, and fac are used for dīce, dūce, face.

Note 2. — In commands of the third person, the negative is nē. Compare the following: —

	Positive	Negative
2 pers.	scribe , scrībite , write .	nōlī (nōlīte) scrībere , do not write .
3 pers.	scrībat , let him write .	nē scrībat , let him not write .
	scrībant , let them write .	nē scrībant , let them not write .

Note 3. — Distinguish between let used in translating the subjunctive of command and let meaning allow, which requires a separate Latin word: sine (let, allow) eōs scrībere.

Exercise 1 (Cat. I. 3, 4)

1. Send two Roman knights to the consul before day-break (light).
2. Call all patriots together and encourage them.
3. Fortify and strengthen your homes, citizens, with stronger (greater) guards.
4. Let them not condemn the consul for (of) inactivity.
5. Let Catiline be arrested and put to death.
6. Let all good men say [that] it was done too late.
7. Marcus Tullius, will you allow (patiōr) the enemies of the republic to live?
8. Don't change your mind.

9. Be not lax in [the midst of] these dangers. 10. Lead out all the forces of the state and free us from danger. 11. Fear the guards of the city, Catiline, and lay no plots (plot nothing) in your camp in Etruria. 12. Who will defend you, Catiline? 13. Were you not hemmed-in on-all-sides? 14. Were your plans not clearer to me than day (light)? 15. Was your conspiracy confined within (by) the walls of a private house or the walls of the city?

Exercise 2 (Cat. I. 3, 4)

Were you not at the house (domi) of Laeca, Catiline? The walls of that private house have not contained the voices of your conspirators. My guards have surrounded you, and you will not be able to lift-a-finger (move yourself). You¹ have planned for (dē) the destruction of the city, but I¹ for her safety. Listen-to (hear) the opinions of these senators. Those men whom you have chosen will not set-fire-to the city, but will be patriotic citizens.

LESSON III

Subjunctive in Independent Sentences

1. Hortatory, expressing exhortation: 187, a; Bur. 768; A. 439; B. 273; G. 263; H. 559; HB. 500.
2. Optative, expressing a wish; 188; Bur. 773; A. 441; B. 279; G. 260; H. 558; HB. 510.
3. Potential, expressing possibility: 189; Bur. 777; A. 446; B. 280; G. 257; H. 552; HB. 516.

Note 1.—For the independent subjunctive in commands, see Lesson II; in deliberative questions, see Lesson VII.

Note 2.—The negative for hortatory and optative sentences is regularly nē; for potential sentences, nōn.

Exercise 1 (Cat. I. 5, 6)

1. Let us defend the city with all our forces. 2. May the consul defend the city. 3. O that (would that, utinam) the consul were defending the city. 4. Would that the consul had defended us against (ab) this band of conspirators. 5. Let us not say [that] the consul was too cruel. 6. O that you had gone to the camp of the enemy. 7. Some one (aliquis) may think [that] Jupiter is not the most ancient guardian of the city. 8. You may [possibly] say [that] the gates are open and [that] many leading men have fled. 9. May all good citizens be grateful (have gratitude) to the immortal gods, who have checked these wicked attempts. 10. Let us do what (that which) is most expedient (useful) for the common safety. 11. Did you not stand in the Comitium, ready to kill the consuls and the chief men of the state? 12. Offer to this young man a better gift than a sword and a torch. 13. O that he were offering a better gift. 14. Let them not stand in the Comitium (Lesson II, Note 2). 15. Did they stand in the Comitium or in the Forum?

Exercise 2 (Cat. I. 5, 6)

Let Catiline depart with all his friends and go to the camp of Manlius. He has often attacked (petō) the consul-elect and his rivals. By this time (iam) all know his life and hate him. They are unwilling [to have] him live (him to live) in the city which he dooms (calls) to destruction. They fear the dagger which has been consecrated by sacred [rites]. May the good fortune of the Roman people stand-in-the-way-of his madness (dat.).

LESSON IV

The Infinitive

1. Tenses of the infinitive: 209; Bur. 939; A. 486; B. 270; G. 281; H. 617; HB. 472.
2. The infinitive without subject: 211; Bur. 951; A. 456; B. 328; G. 423; H. 607; HB. 586.
3. The infinitive with subject-accusative: 212; Bur. 954; A. 459; B. 331; G. 527; H. 613; HB. 589.
4. The infinitive with possum, licet, oportet, dēbeō 209, b; Bur. 944; A. 486, a; B. 270; G. 254, R; H. 618; HB. 582, 3.

Note 1. — Can and could are expressed by the forms of possum: I can do this, hōc facere possum; I could (was able to) do this, hōc facere poteram.

Note 2. — May and might, denoting permission (not possibility) are expressed by licet: I may do this, licet mihi (or mē) hōc facere (lit. it is permitted me to do this).

Note 3. — Must may be expressed by oportet or necesse est; ought, by dēbeō or oportet: (1) I must do this, mē hōc facere necesse est (or oportet); (2) I ought to do this, hōc facere dēbeō, or mē hōc facere oportet.

Note 4. — To say could have done, might have done, ought to have done, Latin uses a present (not perfect) complementary infinitive.

1. I could have done this, hōc facere potui.
2. I might have done this, mihi (or mē) hōc facere licuit (permission); hōc facere potuī (possibility).

3. I ought to have done this, hōc facere dēbuī, or mē hōc facere oportuit.

Note 5. — Dēbeō denotes obligation based on duty to one's self; oportet denotes obligation based on duty to others.

Note 6. — With oportet the person affected is expressed by the accusative; with licet, necesse est, by the dative or the accusative.

Exercise 1 (Cat. I. 7, 8)

1. Catiline was ordered (iubeō) to go into exile. 2. He said he would go into exile. 3. He is said to have gone into exile. 4. Catiline ought to have gone into exile. 5. You know, Catiline, that you ought to have gone into exile. 6. Ought the consul to have been moved by hatred or by pity? 7. Why did you attempt to come into the Senate? 8. Did not the senators hesitate to salute him? 9. Cicero desired to do his duty by (do enough for) the republic. 10. Cicero said that he desired to do his duty by the republic. 11. Who was not able (impf.) to hear the voices of those who stood around the Senate? 12. All could have heard them a little while ago. 13. My slaves must (oportet) not fear me. 14. A slave may not (i.e. is not permitted; Note 2) to come into the Senate. 15. Let us compel all the friends of Catiline to go out with him.

Exercise 2 (Cat. I. 7, 8)

No one of (from) that great throng dared (to) salute Catiline in the Senate. For good citizens feared him, and thought he was the common enemy of them all. Did he not discern (perspiciō) their will? Would that he had heard the voice of his country, which silently (silent) spoke to (with) him.

Catiline desired to give himself into custody, but no one received him. Even his friend Metellus rejected him. And so Cicero said that he ought to leave (go out of) the city.

LESSON V

Conditional Sentences

1. Conditions stated as a fact: 198, a, b; Bur. 911; A. 515; B. 302; G. 595; H. 574; HB. 579.
2. Conditions more probable (shall, will): 198, c; Bur. 911; A. 516; B. 302; G. 595; H. 574; HB. 579, a.
3. Conditions less probable (should, would): 198, c; Bur. 915; A. 516; B. 303; G. 596; H. 576; HB. 580.

Note 1. — Latin often requires a future or future perfect where English uses a present tense: if he does (Latin shall do) this, it will be well.

Note 2. — Conditions less probable are sometimes called possible or less vivid conditions.

Note 3. — A negative condition is generally introduced by nisi, unless; if the negative is applied to a single word by sī nōn.

Exercise 1

1. If he was in the Forum, he heard Cicero's speech. 2. If he is in the Forum now, he is listening-to (hears) Cicero's speech. 3. If he goes (Note 1) to the Forum, he will hear Cicero's speech. 4. If he should go to the Forum, he would hear Cicero's speech. 5. If Catiline should go, who would salute him? 6. If you are patriotic citizens, do not let (patiōr) the enemy (to) collect their troops. 7. If we have a decree of the Senate against (in) the conspirators, let them fear its authority. 8. If Catiline did not send ahead his silver eagle, he did not wish to go to his army. 9. If I say this to Marcellus, men will lay violent (violence and) hands on me (dat.). 10. The consul will not order you to leave (go out of) the city, unless you hesitate (Note 1). 11. The consul would not order you to leave the city, unless you should hesitate. 12. If Catiline was rejected by Lepidus, he ought to have gone (Lesson IV, Note 4) to Metellus. 13. Ought we not call all good men together? 14. We ought to call all good men together. 15. How long, Catiline, do you think you can abuse our patience?

Exercise 2 (Cat. I. 9, 10)

All [men] know, Catiline, that you will never reform (correct yourself). And so a storm of unpopularity overhangs you (dat.). If you wish to declare (īferō) war upon your country, your army in Etruria is ready. Go straight to that army, and let hatred be kindled (cōflō) against me (dat.). Go to that band of scoundrels, with whom you may revel (subjv.) in pleasure. O that the gods had given you a better purpose (mēns). But do not think that you will ever distress the republic [as] a consul.

LESSON VI

Conditional Sentences (Continued)

1. Conditions contrary to fact: 198, a, b; Bur. 919; A. 517; B. 304; G. 597; H. 579; HB. 581.
2. Conditions with dēbeō, oportet, possum: 198, Note 2; Bur. 921; A. 517; B. 304; G. 597; H. 582; HB. 581.
3. Proviso: 199; Bur. 929; A. 528; B. 310; G. 573; H. 587; HB. 529.

Note. — Dēbeō, oportet, possum, necesse est often stand in the indicative instead of the subjunctive, in the conclusion of a condition contrary to fact. The imperfect represents present time, the perfect or pluperfect, past time: dēlērī exercitus potuit, sī persēcūtī victōrēs essent, the army might (could) have been destroyed, if the victors had pursued.

Exercise 1

1. They will conquer, if they fight bravely.
2. They would have conquered, if they had fought more bravely.
3. If they had heard the speech, they would have praised the orator.
4. If they were listening-to (hearing) the speech now, they would praise the orator.
5. If they should hear the speech, they would praise the orator.
6. If the consul had not ordered Catiline to leave (go from) the city, he would not have gone.
7. If Cicero had feared unpopularity, he could not have saved the state.
8. We shall reach (perveniō ad) the camp before evening, provided we go by the shortest road.
9. If the friends of the conspirators had gone into the temple, who would have saluted them? 10. If you had spoken with (cum) them, they ought to have feared your authority. 11. If I were in Italy, I should see the cities which the Romans built (aedificō). 12. Would you encourage the soldiers, if you were the commander-in-chief? 13. Let us separate these conspirators from patriotic men. 14. Many thought that Cicero was embarrassed by the customs of the ancestors. 15. Do not fear unpopularity, but show (referō) gratitude to the Roman people, by whom you have been raised to the highest office.

Exercise 2 (Cat. I. 11–13)

I ought not to neglect the safety of my [fellow] citizens. If only Jupiter will aid us, I promise (to) you that I shall bring all things to light. Let all know that I will not give one hour to this gladiator. If I punish him, many will say that I have acted cruelly. But I shall keep him and his allies from the houses of the city and the temples of the gods.

LESSON VII

Subjunctive Questions

1. Indirect questions : 202; Bur. 846; A. 330; B. 300; G. 460; H. 649; HB. 537.
2. Double questions : 89, and a; Bur. 372; A. 334; B. 162, 4; G. 458; H. 380; HB. 234.
3. Questions of deliberation, possibility, propriety : 201; Bur. 771; A. 444; B. 277; G. 465; H. 559, 4; HB. 503.
4. Sequence of tenses : 183; Bur. 781; A. 482; B. 266; G. 509; H. 543; HB. 476.

Note 1.—Whether, in single questions, is expressed by -ne or num (without difference of meaning); in double questions, by utrum or -ne: quaesivit salvusne esset filius, he asked whether his son was safe; quaerit utrum vērum an falsum sit, he asks whether it is true or false.

Note 2.—The future tense in indirect questions is expressed by the subjunctive of the active periphrastic conjugation: rogō quid factūrus sis, I ask what you will do (are about to do); rogāvī quid factūrus essēs, I asked what you would do (were about to do); rogō quid faciās means I ask what you are doing.

Note 3.—The person asked is expressed by the accusative with rogō; by ab, dē, or ex + the ablative with quaerō; by ab + the ablative with petō and postulō.

Exercise 1

1. Why, O Catiline, are you an enemy of your country?
2. I ask you, Catiline, why you are an enemy.
3. I ask you, Catiline, whether you are an enemy or not.
4. The consul asked Catiline why he was an enemy.
5. The consul asked him how long he had been an enemy.
6. I ask you, whether you were an enemy of your country yesterday.
7. I ask you, Catiline, whether you will be an enemy.
8. He asked Catiline whether he would be an enemy.
9. I shall ask Catiline whether he is an enemy or a good citizen.
10. I-am-in-doubt; what shall I say about the punishment of this man?
11. Why should you go (pres. tense) [as] an ambassador to the camp of the enemy?
12. What was I to do? (not inf.; cf. what am I to do? i.e. what shall I do?)
13. I didn't know (nesciō) what I was to do.
14. Let all men declare what they have heard about the perils of the republic.
15. If you know in what peril the republic is, tell the consul (dat.).
16. He ought to have told the consul what he knew about the perils of the republic.

Exercise 2 (Cat. II. 1, 2)

At last, fellow-citizens, we know that Catiline has gone. Those weapons, with which he threatened us (dat.), we shall no longer need (it will be necessary [for] us) to fear. Let us rejoice because there is no foe within the city-walls. Who will blame me, if I do not think that Catiline ought to be put to death now? If I had put him to death, how many would have accused me severely? Even many senators did not believe all (neut. pl.) that I said.

LESSON VIII

Agreement

1. Agreement of nouns : 92; Bur. 381–389; A. 281; B. 169; G. 321; H. 393; HB. 319.
2. Agreement of adjectives : 156, a, b; Bur. 629; A. 285; B. 234; G. 211; H. 394; HB. 320.
3. Agreement of relative pronouns : 161, a, b; Bur. 703; A. 305; B. 250; G. 614; H. 396; HB. 281.
4. Agreement of verbs : 171, a–e; Bur. 735; A. 316; B. 254; G. 211; H. 388; HB. 328.

Note. — In a compound infinitive, depending on a personal verb like dīcuntur, the participle is in the nominative form :—

1. dīcuntur secūtī esse, they are said to have followed.
2. Miles dīcitur secūtus esse, the soldier is said to have followed.
3. dīcitur (impersonal) mīlitem secūtum esse, it is said that the soldier followed.

Exercise 1

1. Cicero [when] consul delivered the orations against Catiline, the senator.
2. These men said they had come [as] ambassadors.
3. All good soldiers desire to be and to seem brave.
4. Cicero said that his son and daughter were safe.
5. Many men and women, who saw the brave soldier, saluted him.
6. Gabinius was the first to be called (was called first) to the consul.
7. You and Metellus came unwillingly (unwilling).
8. Did they not assemble (come together) in-great-numbers?
9. Labor and pleasure are unlike (dissimilar things). 10. Were the swords and daggers, which were in the camp, handed over to the consul? 11. Neither the lieutenant nor the praetor could overtake the men who went out of the city. 12. At last we have warded-off the sword and flame that threatened the city (dat.). 13. There came together a great number of citizens, who had heard that Cicero would deliver an oration. 14. Let all patriots thank the gods (dat.), as (that which) I have often said. 15. The temple of Jupiter was on the top of the hill.

Exercise 2 (Cat. II. 3, 4)

Do you ask from what countries the enemy have gathered their forces? They have come from Italy and Gaul. In the army of Catiline are desperate men of all classes, who would rather (prefer to) fight for (prō) their leader than for their country. If they do not know that this leader has gone out, I will tell (to) them that he has gone by the Aurelian Way. O that these young men had never lived on intimate terms with him!

LESSON IX

Pronouns

1. Personal: 162, a, b; Bur. 661; A. 295; B. 242; G. 304; H. 500; HB. 254.
2. Reflexive: 163, a-c; Bur. 666; A. 299; B. 244; G. 309; H. 502; HB. 260.
3. Possessive: 164, a, b; Bur. 618; A. 302; B. 243; G. 312; H. 501; HB. 254.
4. Relative: 167, a-c; Bur. 693; A. 304; B. 250; G. 610; H. 510; HB. 281.
5. Intensive: 166, a, b; Bur. 671; A. 298; B. 249; G. 311; H. 509; HB. 267.

Note.—Distinguish between the reflexive and the intensive pronoun. Sē is not intensive or emphatic, but gets its meaning from the fact that it refers to the subject; ipse is generally used for emphasis, though it may be reflexive: Rōmānī sē dēfendunt, the Romans defend themselves; Rōmānī ipsi oppidum dēfendunt, the Romans themselves defend the town.

Exercise 1

1. Manlius has pitched his camp against us in the pass of Etruria.
2. Manlius said he would pitch his camp in Etruria.
3. Manlius is said to have attempted to seize the pass.
4. Who will not fight for (prō) his country, which is the parent of us all?
5. Who of us will say that this is not the fairest of all lands?
6. If the praetors overtake the Allobroges, will they arrest them and seize their letters?
7. I (emphatic) gave myself into custody; why did you not receive me?
8. Fellow-citizens, you must (Lesson IV, Note 3) defend yourselves and your property against (ab) the attacks which these men are making.
9. Our ancestors themselves have left (to) us many examples of their virtues.
10. Lentulus and Cethegus, the friends of Catiline, acknowledged their seals and handwriting (hands).
11. Do you know their seals and handwriting, Marcus Tullius?
12. These men say they will escort you to the very gates of the city.
13. Catiline easily endured hunger and cold, which weaken most men.
14. He asked Catiline whether he easily endured hunger and cold.
15. The letter had been written by his own hand to (ad) his son and daughter, who were in Gaul.

Exercise 2 (Cat. II. 5, 6)

If I had known that Catiline was the companion of gladiators and desperate men, I would have compelled him to leave the city, which he wishes to destroy. You all know what slaughter and burning they have planned.

Do you think we need (it is necessary [for] us) to dread foreign nations and kings? Greater dangers are within. Let the Senate be called together, and let the whole matter be laid before the conscript fathers. Then I will ask Catiline whether Manlius, his centurion, has pitched a camp and is now waiting-for him.

LESSON X

Pronouns (Continued)

1. Demonstrative: 165, a-e; Bur. 711; A. 296; B. 246; G. 305; H. 505; HB. 271.
2. Interrogative: 168; Bur. 679; A. 333; B. 90; G. 106; H. 511; HB. 275.
3. Indefinite: 169, a, b; Bur. 682; A. 309; B. 252; G. 313; H. 512; HB. 276.
4. Alius, alter: 170, a, b; Bur. 729; A. 315; B. 253; G. 319; H. 516; HB. 279.

Note 1. — Hic, iste, and ille are demonstratives of the first, second, and third persons, respectively.

Note 2. — Ullus, any, is the adjective in negative expressions, corresponding to the pronoun quisquam: sine ullō periculō, without any danger.

Note 3. — The same as is regularly expressed by idem qui (eadem quae, idem quod): ego idem sentiō quod tū, I think the same as you.

Exercise 1

1. One of the consuls was Catiline's enemy, the other was said to be his friend.
2. Some of the conspirators went out by the Aurelian Way, others remained in the city.
3. Some witnesses said one thing, some another (170, b).
4. Every one of us knows where your friends met last night.
5. If any one should ask why the Allobroges were in the city, Lentulus could (would be able) to tell them.
6. If any one had asked why they were in the city, Lentulus could have told (Lesson VI, Note) him. 7. Who does not know that certain of (ex) the chief men have fled? 8. These soldiers fought most valiantly; those guarded the camp which had been pitched in the middle of the hill. 9. Don't think, Catiline, that those companions of yours will accomplish their undertakings without punishment. 10. That letter was written by the same hand as (by which) this. 11. How can we escape the weapons of that [scoundrel]? 12. Some men may say that the Gauls will not form a conspiracy against the republic. 13. The consul ought to summon to himself all (169, b) the best and noblest. 14. If the consuls do their duty by (to) the state, we shall not need to fear the attacks of any one. 15. Those who heard the oration learned that the republic was in great peril.

Exercise 2 (Cat. II. 7, 8)

If Catiline should change his mind and go out of the city, some would say that Cicero had driven him into exile. And yet if he had put him to death, the same men would have said that he was a tyrant. But Cicero was willing to undergo unpopularity, provided the state was not in peril. He knew there were six classes of men in Catiline's army. The first of these were deeply (in great) debt, but expected that by the aid of Catiline their property would be saved.

LESSON XI

The Genitive with Nouns

1. Possessive Genitive: 97; Bur. 401; A. 343; B. 198; G. 362; H. 440; HB. 339.
2. Subjective Genitive: 98; Bur. 402; A. 343; B. 199; G. 363; H. 440; HB. 344.
3. Objective Genitive: 99; Bur. 425; A. 348; B. 200; G. 363; H. 440; HB. 354.

4. Descriptive Genitive: 100; Bur. 421; A. 345; B. 203; G. 365; H. 440; HB. 355.
5. Appositional Genitive: 102; Bur. 411; A. 343; B. 202; G. 361; H. 440; HB. 341.
6. Genitive of the whole: 103; Bur. 412; A. 346; B. 201; G. 367; H. 441; HB. 346.

Note 1.—The subjective and objective genitives are distinguished by converting the phrase into a sentence: the love of a father (amor patris) may mean the father loves (pater amat), and hence the genitive is subjective; or it may mean one loves his father (amat patrem), in which case the genitive is objective.

Note 2.—Numerals and quidem are generally followed by ex or dē and the ablative rather than by the genitive of the whole: únus ex mīlitibus, one of the soldiers.

Note 3.—The adjective omnis is not followed by the genitive of the whole: all of us, nōs omnēs (not nostrum).

Exercise 1

1. Were Tiberius and Gaius Gracchus the sons of Cornelia?
2. Whose letter is this?
3. Cicero said that Catiline was a man of great boldness.
4. This soldier's knowledge of war is extraordinary.
5. The name of king was always hateful to the Roman people.
6. How much authority was given to the consul?
7. Do you know how much authority was given to the consul?
8. If all the soldiers should fight bravely, we would conquer.
9. Certain of (Note 2) the knights were unfriendly to Cicero.
10. Love of country did not stand-in-the-way-of Catiline's purposes (dat.).
11. Cicero said that the customs of the ancestors and the safety of the republic demanded the severest punishment.
12. Is not this the fairest of all lands?
13. Let the conspirators be disturbed (moved) by the fear of the people.
14. We all know what (of) plan you formed (took).
15. We heard that the Senate decreed a thanksgiving of twenty days.

Exercise 2 (Cat. II. 9–10)

Cicero said that the second class of the conspirators' army were burdened with debt but did not despair of honors (acc.). But they could not become consuls or kings in the ashes of the city. In (in) the third class were Sulla's soldiers, who were impelled by the hope of plunder. They would not have fallen into such debt, if Sulla had been alive. With this army of criminals of all classes, what did the leader expect he could do?

LESSON XIIThe Genitive with Adjectives and Verbs

1. Genitive with adjectives: 104; Bur. 425; A. 349; B. 204; G. 374; H. 450; HB. 354.
2. Genitive with verbs of accusing: 105; Bur. 431; A. 352; B. 208; G. 378; H. 456; HB. 342.
3. Genitive with verbs of feeling and interest: 106, 107; Bur. 434; A. 354; B. 209; G. 377; H. 457; HB. 352.
4. Genitive with verbs of memory: 108; Bur. 438; A. 350; B. 206; G. 376; H. 454; HB. 350.
5. Genitive of indefinite value (with est): 110; Bur. 424; A. 417; B. 203; G. 380; H. 448; HB. 356.
6. Predicate Genitive: 111; Bur. 408, 421; A. 343; B. 203; G. 366; H. 447; HB. 340.

Exercise 1

1. The Romans were always desirous of victory and mindful of their allies.
2. Are your friends mindful of you (pl., 162, b)?
3. It will be worth-while (tantī) for us (dat.) to do this, provided our friends are willing.
4. It is [the duty] of the consul to defend the city and the temples of the gods.
5. He says that the sixth class consists (is) of the friends of Catiline.
6. The consul will not repent of his acts. 7. He says that he does not repent (it does not repent him) of his acts. 8. Do not forget me, and that I am your consul. 9. It concerned the consul greatly (110) that his colleague should be (inf. clause) a friend. 10. It concerns you (107) also that your colleague be a friend. 11. The orator accused Catiline of many things which the senators had not heard before. 12. Remember your former victories, soldiers, if you fear the enemy. 13. The lieutenant was a man most-experienced in (of) war. 14. It will concern us (107) little whether the enemy are in our camp or not. 15. He thinks that four thousand men are in camp.

Exercise 2 (Cat. II. 11–13)

If these are Catiline's forces, citizens, do you dread war? Can that wounded gladiator conquer in a contest of this kind? I have been informed that all the colonists will easily defend their towns. Metellus, who is experienced in warfare, will check all attempts outside of the city. If any friends of Catiline remain in the city, they will see that I am a watchful consul. If the gods will be our leaders, I promise that every loyal man will be safe.

LESSON XIII

The Dative Case

1. Indirect object with transitive verbs: 112, a; Bur. 450; A. 362; B. 187; G. 345; H. 424; HB. 365.
2. Indirect object with intransitive verbs: 112, b; Bur. 456; A. 367; B. 187.; G. 346; H. 426; HB. 362.
3. Indirect object with compound verbs: 112, c, d; Bur. 464; A. 370; B. 187; G. 347; H. 429; HB. 376.

Note 1.—Some intransitive verbs are used in the passive voice impersonally: persuādētur mihi, I am persuaded (it is persuaded to me); persuādētur tibi, you are persuaded.

Note 2. — Mittō and scribō take either the dative of indirect object, or the accusative with ad. The accusative is used if the idea of motion predominates: tibi, or ad tē, scribam, I shall write to you.

Exercise 1

1. Who will envy his friend's glory? 2. It is [the duty] of every man to resist the leaders of that conspiracy.
3. To you, Cicero, our country has intrusted the lives (life) and property (goods) of her citizens. 4. He ought to obey the decree of the Senate and go into exile. 5. He is persuaded. I have been persuaded.
6. Can you not persuade him? 7. Can he not be persuaded? 8. Let not these desperate men threaten us with sword and flame.
9. Cicero said that foreign nations preferred to serve the Roman people [rather] than rule over others. 10. The Allobroges said that Lentulus had written a letter to Catiline (Note 2).
11. Did the Senate give most liberal rewards to the ambassadors of the Allobroges? 12. Cicero promised (to) the citizens that every loyal man would be safe.
13. We ought, conscript fathers, to consult for [the interest of] these men and women who are in peril. 14. If we lay hands on Catiline and his friends, we shall do our duty by (enough for) the republic. 15. When was Manlius placed-in-command-of the army?

Exercise 2 (Cat. III. 1-3)

By Cicero's plans and labors the state was saved. Fire had almost been placed under the temples, but it had been extinguished. Then in the Forum, the consul told (to) the people how great their peril had been. He had heard that certain Gauls would cross the Mulvian Bridge and that they had letters for (ad) Catiline. He arrested them and some of the conspirators, and then laid the whole matter before the Senate, which he had quickly assembled.

LESSON XIV

The Dative (Continued)

1. Dative of purpose: 114; Bur. 483; A. 382; B. 191; G. 356; H. 433; HB. 365.
2. Dative of reference: 115; Bur. 470; A. 376; B. 188; G. 356; H. 433; HB. 366.
3. Dative with adjectives: 119; Bur. 487; A. 384; B. 192; G. 359; H. 434; HB. 362.
4. Dative of the possessor: 117; Bur. 479; A. 373; B. 190; G. 349; H. 430; HB. 374.
5. Dative of the agent: 116; Bur. 480; A. 374; B. 189; G. 354; H. 431; HB. 373.
6. The passive periphrastic conjugation: 225; Bur. 1000; A. 500; B. 337; G. 251; H. 621; HB. 600.

Note 1. — In expressions of possession the genitive emphasizes the possessor; the dative, the fact of possession: bonus servus est cōnsulis, the good slave is the consul's; bonus servus est cōnsulī, the consul has a good slave.

Note 2. — To avoid confusion with another dative connected with the passive periphrastic, the agent may be expressed by the ablative with ā, ab: hostibus ā nōbīs parcendum est, we must spare our enemies.

Exercise 1

1. Can this day be pleasant to wicked men?
2. Your safety will be (for) the greatest concern (care) to all your friends.
3. The men who saved the state are (for) an honor to themselves.
4. We must defend our wives and children.
5. They say that they must defend their wives and children.
6. You have many brave generals and thousands of soldiers.
7. Cicero said that he would provide for the safety of the Roman people.
8. Our country ought (Lesson IV, Note 3) to be very dear to us.
9. Is this boy like his father or his grandfather? 10. We must praise the consul and give thanks to the immortal gods. 11. I learned that the ambassadors had a letter, and that it was Catiline's (see Note 1). 12. Give a signal to those guards who are nearest to the gates. 13. Catiline asked whether those gladiators would be faithful to him. 14. I ought to be pardoned (it is fitting to be pardoned to me, 112, Note 2). 15. If your voice has been [a means of] (for) safety to any one, you ought to be pardoned.

Exercise 2 (Cat. III. 4-6)

Volturcius and the Gauls said that some of the conspirators were ready to burn the city and that Cethegus wished to do this before the Saturnalia. We know that the house of Cethegus was full of good weapons. In the Senate the tablets of the conspirators were read. I asked them whether they recognized the seals of the tablets. All confessed. Then the Senate thanked me and the praetors who had commanded the troops of the state.

LESSON XV

The Accusative

1. Direct object: 120; Bur. 493; A. 387; B. 172; G. 330; H. 404; HB. 390.
2. Secondary object: 121; Bur. 507; A. 396; B. 178; G. 339; H. 411; HB. 393.
3. Predicate accusative: 122; Bur. 506; A. 393; B. 177; G. 340; H. 410; HB. 392.
4. Subject of infinitive: 123; Bur. 526; A. 397; B. 184; G. 343; H. 415; HB. 398.
5. Prepositions with the accusative: 231; Bur. 1019; A. 220; B. 141; G. 416; H. 420; HB. 455.

Note. — Moneō, advise, warn, may be followed by two accusatives, one of the person, and the other a neuter pronoun or adjective, expressing the thing: eōs hōc moneō, I gave them this warning (warn them this).

Exercise 1

1. Have you read the letter that Cicero wrote to (ad) his son? 2. Many citizens asked Caesar his opinion about the conspiracy. 3. Caesar, having been asked his opinion, spoke as follows (said words of this kind). 4. The Roman people did not elect Catiline consul. 5. He says that the Roman people could have elected (Lesson IV, Note 4) Catiline consul. 6. Let us inform the consul that (inf. clause) the gates are open. 7. It is said that the leaders sought (petō) aid even of (121, a) the slaves. 8. Jupiter was rightly called the stay of the city. 9. Didn't the Haedui call their magistrate " vergobretus " ? 10. The consul has given the enemy this warning (Note). 11. Every senator called Catiline a dangerous citizen. 12. Caesar wrote that he had led his army into the farthest part of the province. 13. Tell me who was-in-command-of the tenth legion. 14. Let the boys remember their friend and his words (108). 15. The leaders think that they will not lack infantry (infantry will not be lacking to them).

Exercise 2 (Cat. III. 7-9)

Now, fellow-citizens, you need (oportet) not fear the forces of Catiline. The leader himself was very shrewd and watchful, a man of great endurance. If we had not driven him from the city, we should have had to watch (plup. ind.; 211, Note 2) day and night (acc. pl.). It was not [in the power] of the consuls, but of the gods to withstand his attempts. They have surely aided (brought aid to) us, all these days, and especially Jupiter, whose new statue has been set up in the temple.

LESSON XVI

The Accusative (Continued)

1. Place to which : 126, a; Bur. 513; A. 426; B. 182; G. 337; H. 418; HB. 365.
2. Duration and extent : 127; Bur. 518; A. 423; B. 181; G. 335; H. 417; HB. 387.
3. Cognate accusative : 128; Bur. 502; A. 390; B. 176; G. 333; H. 409; HB. 396.
4. Adverbial accusative : 129; Bur. 524; A. 397; B. 185; G. 333; H. 416; HB. 387.
5. The accusative in exclamations : 130; Bur. 501; A. 397; B. 183; G. 343; H. 421; HB. 399.

Note. — Years of age may be expressed by annōs nātus with a numeral : trīgintā annōs nātus, thirty years old, at the age of thirty.

Exercise 1

1. A certain Gaul came to Rome to the Senate.
2. An attack was made on (in) the Allobroges (acc.), who had come to Italy.
3. Cicero and Antonius were consuls one year.
4. Rome, the most famous of all cities, was fifteen miles away from (ā) the sea.
5. Why do these citizens stand-about the Senate in-great-numbers?
6. We know that this army has marched many miles to-day.
7. Cicero delivered these orations [when he was] forty-three years old (Note).
8. Did you see the Roman knights who went to Cicero's house?
9. Let us ask (quaerō, Lesson VII, Note 3) the lieutenant whether he went home or to Geneva.
10. Cicero allowed (pator) the friends of Catiline to return to their homes.
11. Cicero made this reply (replied these things) to the ambassadors.
12. What reply would he make (what things would he reply) to the ambassadors if they should consult him?
13. If he had consulted us, we should have made the same reply as (should have replied the same which) he. 14. Do you remember that the Helvetians were very powerful (were able most)?

 15. O fortunate city, if all its citizens are patriotic!

Exercise 2 (Cat. III. 10-12)

If a thanksgiving has been appointed (decreed), let us celebrate these days of safety. You have been saved without bloodshed (blood), which has not happened since (post) the memory of man (men). Let no reward be given to me, provided you remember that in my consulship the state was saved. But it will be your [duty] to defend me against (ā) the attacks of these most daring men, and to worship Jupiter, the divine guardian of this city and of us all.

LESSON XVII

The Ablative

1. Prepositions with the ablative: 231; Bur. 1020; A. 220; B. 142; G. 417; H. 490; HB. 456.
2. Ablative of Separation: 133; Bur. 528; A. 400; B. 214; G. 390; H. 461; HB. 408.
3. Ablative of Source: 134; Bur. 532; A. 403; B. 215; G. 395; H. 467; HB. 413.
4. Ablative of Agent: 135; Bur. 535; A. 405; B. 216; G. 401; H. 468; HB. 406.
5. Ablative of Comparison: 137; Bur. 541; A. 406; B. 217; G. 296; H. 471; HB. 416.
6. Ablative of degree of difference: 145; Bur. 582; A. 414; B. 223; G. 403; H. 479; HB. 424.

Note 1.—To resign an office is expressed by sē abdicāre ā: sē ā praetūrā abdicāvit, he resigned the praetorship.

Note 2.—When an agent is looked upon rather as a means through which something is done, per with the accusative is used instead of ab with the ablative.

Exercise 1

1. We must wrest that dagger from (dē) his hands.
2. Could any other [man] have freed (Lesson IV, Note 4) Rome from her perils? 3. Which conspirator was compelled to resign his office? 4. If Cicero had resigned the consulship, Catiline would not have gone out of the city.
5. For many years our country has been without (careō, 149) provinces and harbors. 6. Let the enemy fear the assembly of patriotic men more than the swords of the soldiers. 7. Cicero asked the Senate who was milder than himself (166, b). 8. Do you think that Cicero was a much greater consul than Caesar? 9. He asked whether Catiline had more (amplius) than two thousand soldiers.
10. All the colonists have been informed by the consul with-regard-to (dē) the attempts of the enemy. 11. Caesar was said to have descended (orior) from (ab) Trojan blood.
12. Cicero was born of an equestrian family (134). 13. It was learned through (Note 2) scouts that the enemy had marched in (into) another direction. 14. In-comparison-with the forces of the enemy, we ought not to despise our legions. 15. In-return-for all his labors, Cicero demanded nothing except (nisi) the memory of his consulship.

Exercise 2 (Cat. IV. 1-3)

The eyes of all Romans were turned toward the consul who had rescued them and their children from all perils, forgetful of his own safety. They thought not only about themselves, but about the family of the consul. They knew that he was deeply moved by the grief of his wife and daughter. They saw the accused who had confessed, and Lentulus who had resigned his praetorship. So they hoped that the Senate would punish the criminals without delay.

LESSON XVIII

The Ablative (Continued)

1. Ablative of means: 141; Bur. 570; A. 409; B. 218; G. 401; H. 476; HB. 423.
2. Ablative of cause: 142; Bur. 546; A. 404; B. 219; G. 408; H. 475; HB. 444.
3. Ablative of manner: 139; Bur. 554; A. 412; B. 220; G. 399; H. 473; HB. 445.
4. Ablative of accompaniment: 138; Bur. 550; A. 413; B. 222; G. 392; H. 473; HB. 418.
5. Ablative of description: 143; Bur. 557; A. 415; B. 224; G. 400; H. 473; HB. 443.
6. Ablative of specification: 144; Bur. 586; A. 418; B. 226; G. 397; H. 480; HB. 441.
7. Ablative with deponent verbs: 147; Bur. 572; A. 410; B. 218; G. 407; H. 477; HB. 429.
8. Ablative with certain adjectives: 150; Bur. 587; A. 418; B. 226; G. 397; H. 481; HB. 442.

Note.—Cause is sometimes expressed by the accusative with ob or propter: ob eam rem, for this reason; propter timōrem, on account of fear.

Exercise 1

1. The soldiers will not be content with such (of this kind) booty.
2. How is the city defended? Is it not (defended) by garrison and watches?
3. You will never repent (it will never repent you) of having fought (to have fought) with so great bravery.
4. They will not be satisfied with the punishment of you (not gen.; see 164, b) who have remained in the city.
5. You have heard that Catiline was a man of great endurance of hunger and thirst.
6. This general is worthy of the highest praise because he has conquered without bloodshed (blood).
7. Cicero wrote that nothing could be better than friendship. 8. Caesar went to a town of the Allobroges, Geneva by name. 9. Sulla's soldiers hoped (themselves) to be able to secure greater booty on this account (because of this). 10. Cicero says that he did this relying on the aid of the gods. 11. The men whom Catiline left in the city are much more powerful than those whom he took with him. 12. If you wish to enjoy (ūtor) peace, to-day, surrender yourselves and all your [property] to the Roman people.¹ 13. Catiline, a man of the greatest boldness, came into the temple with the other senators. 14. Why did Catiline use that silver eagle, of (dē) which we have heard so much (many things)? 15. Don't flee from the city because of fear; these soldiers will bravely defend you from (ab) the enemy.

Exercise 2 (Cat. IV. 4-6)

Silanus, the consul-elect, who was asked his opinion (121) in the Senate, thought the conspirators were deserving of death. Caesar said that imprisonment for life (chains everlasting) was a more (magis) suitable punishment for them. Cicero saw what was for his interest (what concerned him, 107); for he knew that Caesar was a friend of the people. But he preferred to follow the opinion of Silanus, and did not fear the charge of cruelty in (the case of) these most bitter enemies.

LESSON XIX

The Ablative (Concluded)

1. Ablative absolute: 151; Bur. 558. A. 419; B. 227; G. 409; H. 489; HB. 421.
2. Ablative of time: 152; Bur. 599. A. 423; B. 230; G. 393; H. 486; HB. 439.

3. Ablative of place where and whence: 153; 133, a, b; Bur. 588, 530; A. 426; B. 228, 229; G. 385, 390; H. 483, 491; HB. 433, 409.

4. Locative Case: 154; Bur. 606; A. 427; B. 232; G. 411; H. 483; HB. 449.

5. Dates: 248; Bur. 603; A. 631; B. 371; G. App.; H. 754; HB. 660.

Note.—An adjective or pronoun limiting a noun in the locative case is put in the genitive: suae domī, at his house.

Exercise 1

(Use the ablative absolute when possible)

1. Cicero said that in Catiline's camp there was not any (169) good man.
2. If these men alone are punished, the danger will not be removed.
3. At my command (me commanding) the gates will be open.
4. Tell us where you were last summer and what you saw.
5. These orations which we are reading were delivered in the consulship of Cicero and Antonius.
6. My friends were at Brundisium two years; they will go to Geneva within ten days.
7. I-wish-that (utinam) you had been at my house last night.
8. Having delivered this speech, the senator returned to his house.
9. I know that this letter was written on the first (248) of October.
10. It ought to have been written (Lesson IV, Note 4) on the thirteenth of September.
11. I shall write you (Lesson XIII, Note 2) another letter on the fifth of November.
12. Do you know whether the ambassador has come from Rome or not?
13. Do you prefer to live in the city or in the country?
14. Because these scoundrels have been driven out, do not think we have been freed from all peril.
15. The third oration against Catiline was delivered on the third of December; the fourth, on the fifth of December.

Exercise 2 (Cat. IV. 7-8)

Do you think, senators, that I do not have enough protection? The whole city is full of loyal citizens of all classes. Why should I fear (deliberative subjv.) the attacks of others? Even the freedmen and slaves contribute as much as they can to (ad) the common safety. The shopkeepers (those who are in shops) also know that their profits are maintained by peace. And so if this harmony is pleasing to all men, we shall preserve our common country and the temples of the gods.

LESSON XXReview of the Indicative

1. Uses of the indicative: 184, 185; Bur. 743; A. 437; B. 271; G. 254; H. 523; HB. 545.
2. Tenses of the indicative: 173-179; Bur. 745; A. 465; B. 259; G. 227; H. 532; HB. 468.
3. Tenses with iam, iam diū, iam dūdum, iam prīdem: 173 c; 174 c; Bur. 749; A. 466; B. 259, 4; G. 230; H. 533; HB. 485.
4. Order of words: 233; Bur. 1055; A. 600; B. 351; G. 684; H. 685; HB. 630.

Note 1.—With expressions of duration, like iam diū, iam dūdum, the present tense is translated by have and the imperfect by had: tē iam dūdum hortor (hortābar), for a long time I have (had) been urging you.

Note 2.—Remember that iam with a negative means no longer.

Exercise 1

1. The Senate used-to-consult (174, b) for the safety of the allies.
2. The Gauls kept-making sallies from the town and attacks on (in) the Romans (acc.).
3. My brother has been living now a long time in that city.

4. Catiline has long been plotting the destruction of the city and the slaughter of the citizens. 5. The general had not known for a long time in what direction the enemy were marching. 6. The Allobroges had now for a long time been complaining of the unjust rule of the Roman people. 7. If Catiline goes to Marseilles, certain of (Lesson XI, Note 2) his friends will follow him. 8. Did you remember that I said he would go to Geneva? 9. Why did all good citizens hate you, Lentulus? 10. They will hate all these desperate men, the enemies of their country. 11. Do you think that Cicero will refer this question (thing) to the Senate to-day? 12. If Catiline goes into exile, we shall no longer need (oportet) to fear. 13. Such men will never repent (106) of their purposes, as I have often said. 14. They may (Lesson IV, Note 2) go to Marseilles, provided they do not levy an army on the Gauls (112, b). 15. It concerns us (107) greatly that the temples of the gods be defended (inf.) by guards as strong as possible.

Exercise 2 (Cat. IV. 9–11)

You see, conscript fathers, that all ranks of citizens are-of-one-opinion (think one and the same). They know that our country is beset by the weapons of impious conspirators. Therefore it is for-us (ours) to decide to-day whether (Lesson VII, Note 1) these temples and shrines shall remain or be destroyed.

Many illustrious generals have opened new provinces for us, but no one must be praised more than that consul who has saved the state. In-return-for this service (thing) I know that the Roman people will remember (memoriā teneō) my consulship, and will provide for the safety (dat.) of my son.

LESSON XXI

Relative Clauses

1. Relative clauses with the indicative: 191, a, b; Bur. 797; A. 535; B. 311; G. 610; H. 589; HB. 499.
2. Relative clauses with the subjunctive: 192, a-c; Bur. 798; A. 535; B. 283; G. 631; H. 591; HB. 521.

Note 1.—In the sentence, “the soldier, who reported the victory, is named Galba,” the clause merely designates (points out) the particular soldier and is called determinative, having its verb in the indicative: miles, qui victoriā nūntiat, appellātur Galba. If we say “Galba is a soldier who fights bravely,” the clause describes the soldier and requires a subjunctive verb: Galba est miles qui fortiter pūgnet.

Note 2.—Descriptive clauses often follow such expressions as sunt qui, there are those (some) who; nēmō est qui, there is no one who; sōlus (ūnus) est qui, he is the only one who; quis est qui, who is there who?

Note 3.—Descriptive clauses also follow dignus, indīgnus, idōneus: nōn erit idōneus qui mittātur, he will not be a suitable man to send (to be sent); hic liber dignus est qui legātūr, this book is worth reading (worthy to be read; worthy that it should be read).

Note 4.—Relative clauses expressing purpose, result, cause, and concession are treated in later lessons.

Exercise 1

1. This is the oration which Cicero delivered in the temple of Jupiter.
2. Catiline was not worthy to be elected consul.
3. The Gauls are the only nation that can make war on us (dat.).
4. There are gladiators who are better disposed (of better spirit) than certain of the senators.
5. These brave soldiers are worthy to be praised by the lieutenant.
6. There is no one who does not know how many dangers we have escaped.
7. There were some who did not hear the things he said.
8. There were two consuls in Rome, one of whom was said to be a friend of Caesar. 9. Who is there in all this empire who does not think that Pompey ought to be chosen commander-in-chief? 10. There are no other legions which we can send to (ad) this war if these are defeated (abl. abs.). 11. Let us choose a commander, fellow-citizens, who is able to protect our allies from these powerful kings. 12. Don't you think that he is a suitable [man] to be chosen as commander-in-chief? 13. Those whom Catiline has left at Rome must be informed [that] the consuls are watchful. 14. He is the only man whom we must fear. 15. Fortune favors the brave: if our commanders rely-upon themselves, their soldiers will rely on them.

Exercise 2 (Pomp. 1-3)

During the praetorship of Cicero, two powerful kings of Asia were making war on the allies of the Roman people. It was necessary to put a general in-command-of the army. The praetor who had not delivered an oration to the people before, spoke concerning the virtues of Gnaeus Pompey. He said that the tributaries of the republic were in danger and that the commander was about to return to Rome. Pompey, a man of remarkable wisdom, had carried on many wars on land and sea. No one else could (impf.) wipe out the disgrace incurred in the former war.

LESSON XXII

Purpose Clauses. Noun Clauses

1. Purpose clauses with ut, nē, or a relative: 193; Bur. 812; A. 531; B. 282; G. 545; H. 568; HB. 502.
2. Noun clauses after verbs of fearing: 205, b; Bur. 838; A. 564; B. 296, 2; G. 550; H. 567; HB. 502, 4.
3. Sequence of tenses: 183; Bur. 781; A. 482; B. 266; G. 509; H. 543; HB. 476.

Note 1.—A relative pronoun, relative adjective, or relative adverb introduces a purpose clause when there is a close connection with the antecedent.

Note 2.—In the earlier form of expression, nē accidat, timeō, as two sentences, meant let it not happen, I am afraid, i.e. I am afraid that it may happen. This came to be the meaning of the complex sentence timeō nē accidat, in which nē means that. Similarly accidat, timeō meant let it happen, I am afraid, i.e. I am afraid that it may not happen. Accidat becoming subordinate to timeō, ut came to be the connective as the opposite of nē.

Note 3.—Only the present and imperfect subjunctive are used in purpose clauses, except in the case of defective verbs like memini, or verbs like cognoscō, whose meaning differs in the present and perfect systems.

Exercise 1

1. Let the consuls be vigilant that the enemy may not be able to move (himself) against the republic.
2. Send soldiers to the camp to bring the rest of the weapons.
3. I am not afraid that men will say that I did this too cruelly.
4. Are you not afraid that you will not have enough (of) protection?
5. It is greatly to be feared that we may be too mild toward (in) these most bitter enemies.
6. Caesar will go to Geneva to find out what tribes are conspiring against the Roman people.
7. Refer the matter to the senate, so that no danger (not any of danger) may threaten the city.
8. Caesar used-to-send-ahead his cavalry to terrify the enemy.
9. If Catiline's forces are like these, we need not fear that our army will not be able to withstand them.
10. The lieutenant's friends will come by the Aurelian Way, that they may more easily (193, a) arrive at (ad) the camp.
11. If they had gone by another way, they would have found a place suitable for a camp.
12. What was there which could please a man like Catiline (104, a)?
13. May that weapon be wrested from (dē) his hands.
14. There is no one who does not know that they have attempted to kill the consul. 15. I inquired of the boy (Lesson VII, Note 3) whether he lived at Brundisium or at his home.

Exercise 2 (Pomp. 4-6)

Mithridates is now making-ready his fleets and armies to bring war upon us by land and sea. Even in Spain we are compelled to fight with his allies. Our ancestors punished those who had arrogantly addressed our ambassadors. Ought we to disregard the loss of revenues and the massacre of Roman citizens? Unless you defend your tributaries in Asia from even the fear of calamity, you will lose the income of a whole year.

LESSON XXIII

Result Clauses. Noun Clauses

1. Result clauses with ut, ut nōn, or a relative: 194, 194, a; Bur. 818; A. 537; B. 284; G. 552; H. 570; HB. 521, 2.
2. Noun clauses with verbs meaning to accomplish: 194, c; Bur. 842; A. 568; B. 297; G. 553; H. 566; HB. 521, 3.
3. Noun clauses with verbs meaning it happens: 194, d; Bur. 843; A. 569, 2; B. 297, 2; G. 553, 3; H. 571; HB. 521, 3.
4. Sequence of tenses: 183, Bur. 781; A. 482; B. 266; G. 509; H. 543; HB. 476.

Note 1.—A relative clause of result is also a clause of description (192, a), as in sī quis est tālis quī mē accūset, if any one is of such a mind as to blame me.

Note 2.—With tantum abest two ut-clauses are used, one the subject of abest, the other a clause of result: tantum abest ut laudētur, ut etiam accūsētur, so far is it from the truth that he is praised, that he is even blamed.

Exercise 1

1. The city was so fortified that the people did not fear. 2. Cicero speaks in-such-a-manner that he seems to be moved by pity. 3. You are such [a man], Lentulus, that the memory of your grandfather has not recalled you from crime. 4. Who can be so hard-hearted as-not-to-be (who is not) moved by the grief of his friends? 5. Such a storm suddenly arose that it (rel.) drove (dēferō) our ships, some in one direction, and some in another (170). 6. The orator will let (make) the people know what the Senate has decreed. 7 It happened that the envoys of the Allobroges were at Rome that day. 8. It remains for-us-to (that we) consider what we must do. 9. We shall not make them hear. 10. We fear that we shall not make them hear. 11. I am so far from denying that this is true, that I now confess [it]. 12. Do not despair; we shall defeat them easily, if only (199) you are brave. 13. We have written letters to the Roman¹ knights to inform them about their property. 14. The result was that the Roman knights were informed about their property. 15. The general was informed that his cavalry could not overtake the enemy.

Exercise 2 (Pomp. 7-9)

I shall speak of your tax-collectors whose fortunes are-at-stake. These men are the support of the state, and their welfare ought to receive your careful attention (be for a care to you). Lucullus has conquered and sunk the king's fleet, and on this account (quā dē causā) he must be praised. But the king has fled as a suppliant to other kings. If Lucullus had captured him, the war would no longer be dangerous.

LESSON XXIV

Noun Clauses (Continued)

1. Clauses with ut or nē after verbs of commanding, persuading, requesting, etc.: 205 a; Bur. 826; A. 563; B. 295; G. 546; H. 565; HB. 502, 3.

2. Clauses with nē, quīn, or quōminus, after verbs of hindering, preventing, refusing: 205 e; Bur. 829; A. 558; B. 284; G. 549; H. 594; HB. 302.

3. Clauses with quīn after verbs or phrases of doubting: 205 e; Bur. 833; A. 558; B. 298; G. 555, 2; H. 595; HB. 519, 4, b.

Note 1.—Nē is used after a positive verb of hindering or refusing; quīn (= qui + nē, by which not), after a negative; quōminus (by which less), after either a positive or a negative: eum impedit nē (or quōminus) hōc faciat, they will hinder him from doing this; eum nōn impedit quīn (or quōminus) hōc faciat, they will not hinder him from doing this.

Note 2.—Prohibeō, prevent, is oftener followed by the infinitive than by the subjunctive (212).

Exercise 1

1. Cicero often advised Catiline to go into exile.
2. Let us urge all good citizens to hear the consul's speech.
3. The Senate will decree that our allies shall not suffer (capiō) any (of) injury.
4. It is much better to persuade than to command men to do this.
5. Do you think you can persuade your friends (112, b) to go with you?
6. Who can doubt that the immortal gods will defend this city?
7. There is no doubt that even the Gauls knew the plans of the conspirators.
8. The consul said that he was not yet induced to do this.
9. Let no one prevent the ambassadors from speaking with the general.
10. These soldiers will not refuse to fight bravely, if you encourage them.
11. The general urged his soldiers to hinder the enemy from crossing the river. 12. There are many who did not doubt that Pompey would quickly bring this war to an end. 13. The ambassador could not be persuaded (112, Note 2) to remain in Rome many days. 14. We ought to have prevented (Lesson IV, Note 4) the conspirators from meeting-at (coming-together-to) the house (126) of Laeca. 15. If they had asked that they might (Lesson IV, Note 2) do this, they would have obtained their-request.

Exercise 2 (Pomp. 10-12)

It seems to me to be necessary to put in command of this war a man in whom the four qualities (things) of a great commander exist. That Pompey is [a man] of great knowledge of military matters, many tribes and nations declare. There is no kind of warfare in which he has not been trained. The sea was so full of pirates that no Roman fleet could sail in safety. But has not Pompey driven them all from the sea within three months?

LESSON XXV

Noun Clauses (Concluded)

1. Clauses with quod and the indicative: 204; Bur. 822; A. 572; B. 299; G. 524; H. 588; HB. 552.
2. Review of constructions with licet, oportet, necessere: 205, d; 209, b; 212; Bur. 828, 948; A. 565; B. 295, 6; G. 535; H. 564, 618; HB. 513, 585.
3. Constructions with volō, patior, cōgō: 205, a, and 212; Bur. 837; A. 563 b; B. 331, 296; G. 553, 2; H. 565, 2; HB. 502, 3, 586.

Note 1.—After accēdit, it is added, or accidit, it happens, either an indicative quod-clause or a subjunctive ut-clause may be used, though accidit usually takes an ut-clause (Lesson XXIII) accēdēbat hūc quod Dumnorīx dixerat, furthermore (it was added to this that) Dumnorix had said.

Note 2. — With licet, oportet, necesse est a subjunctive clause may be used (usually without ut) though the infinitive is more common, as explained in Lesson IV, Notes 2, 3: licet hōc faciās, you may do this; oportet hōc faciās, you ought to do this; necesse est hōc faciās, you must do this.

Note 3. — After volō, patior, cōgō, the infinitive is generally used instead of the subjunctive: vērum audīre nōn vult, he does not wish to hear the truth; mihi crēdās velim, I wish you to believe me.

Exercise 1

1. What [shall I say of the fact] that all our allies are demanding Pompey as commander for this war?
2. Furthermore (it is added that) there is no one else who is able to prevent the enemy from conspiring against us.
3. You may do this if it seems [best] to you.
4. We must ward-off the danger not only in Asia, but also in Spain.
5. Our ambassadors ought not to have been unjustly treated at Corinth.
6. The Gauls will compel the traders to tell what they have learned about the country.
7. We are allowing the enemy to treat our commanders unjustly.
8. There is no doubt that he might (Lesson IV, Note 4) have done this.
9. Who doubts that he could have done this?
10. He knows that he ought to have informed the consul about the plans of these men.
11. Cicero wished his friends to know that he would employ (use) their assistance in the protection of the republic.
12. The traders, who were crossing the sea, were afraid that their fortunes would not be safe.
13. There was the additional circumstance (it was added) that our armies crossed the sea in the dead-of winter to escape the pirates.
14. O that we had troops worthy of such a leader!
15. Do not prevent him from telling us what must be done.

Exercise 2 (Pomp. 13–15)

If we compare Pompey with other generals, we shall see how many and how great are his virtues. Not only does he restrain himself, but he prevents his legions from harming conquered nations. And so he has caused (made) these nations to believe that he is like the old Romans, a man of great self-restraint. And indeed it greatly concerns the state what our allies think of a general to whom we have entrusted (Lesson XXI, Note 1) their welfare.

LESSON XXVITemporal Clauses

1. With postquam, ubi, etc.: 195, a; Bur. 870; A. 543; B. 287; G. 561; H. 602; HB. 550.
2. With cum: 195, b; Bur. 856; A. 545; B. 288; G. 578; H. 600; HB. 524.
3. With dum, etc.: 195, d, e, f; Bur. 876; A. 553; B. 293; G. 571; H. 603; HB. 507.
4. With antequam and priusquam: 195, g; Bur. 863; A. 551; B. 291; G. 574; H. 605; HB. 507.

Note 1. — In direct discourse, as a rule, the indicative is used in all temporal clauses with these chief exceptions: (a) cum usually takes the subjunctive (imperfect or pluperfect) to describe the circumstances of the main action; (b) dum, antequam, and priusquam, before, take the subjunctive to express an act as anticipated or expected, from a past point of view; from a present point of view, the present subjunctive or the present or future perfect indicative.

Note 2. When a subordinate clause merely defines or dates the time of the main action, cum or ubi is used with the indicative; cum, with any past tense; ubi, generally with the perfect or historical present.

Exercise 1

1. After the consul had reported the question to the senate, Caesar and Silanus expressed their opinions. 2. When I saw the letter,¹ I recognized the hand of my friend. 3. At the time when I was reading my friend's letter, I had already been informed of his safety. 4. While these things were going on at Rome, we were many miles away from the city. 5. Before you consider what must be done, listen to the witnesses who have been called together. 6. As soon as the Roman² knights learned what was going on in Asia, they reported the situation to Cicero. 7. Our armies will be victorious as long as we have commanders of such ability. 8. It was the plan of the general to fortify the camp before the enemy should know where his army was. 9. When this oration was delivered, the Forum was full of patriotic citizens who had come to hear the new praetor. 10. When this oration had been delivered,¹ all felt that Pompey was worthy to be chosen (Lesson XXI, Note 3) commander. 11. Lucullus was not recalled until he had been defeated by Mithridates with the loss of many men (many having been killed). 12. Do not give up (cease from) the battle, soldiers, until you put the king's forces to flight. 13. Catiline was driven from the city before he should be killed. 14. Catiline was driven from the city before his army was defeated. 15. Unless you send a large army to Asia to defend your allies, you will be unable to hold them in allegiance.

Exercise 2 (Pomp. 16–18)

Finally Pompey seems to excel all our great soldiers in good-fortune, which is a gift of the gods themselves.

¹ Write in two ways: (1) with a clause; (2) with an ablative absolute.

And so I ask you, citizens, whether I have shown that he is the only man who should be sent to Asia as commander. Hortensius thinks that everything ought not to be put in the hands of one man. But if you had followed his opinion heretofore, the pirates would still hold the sea.

LESSON XXVII

Causal and Concessive Clauses

1. Causal clauses with quod, quia, quoniam: 196, a; Bur. 886; A. 540; B. 285; G. 539; H. 588; HB. 555.
2. Causal clauses with cum or qui: 196, b; Bur. 892; A. 540; B. 286; G. 586; H. 594; HB. 523.
3. Concessive clauses with quamquam, etsi: 197, a, b; Bur. 894; A. 527; B. 309; G. 603; H. 585; HB. 556.
4. Concessive clauses with cum or qui: 197, c; Bur. 807; A. 549; B. 309; G. 580, 634; H. 597, 593; HB. 525, 523.

Note 1. — Quod and quia, because, give a reason based on fact, taking the indicative, if the reason is known, the subjunctive if it is quoted. Quoniam, since, introduces a self-evident or admitted fact, and hence takes the indicative: quoniam iam nox est, since it is already night. Cum, since, is used to express the circumstances that cause an action: Haedui cum sē dēfendere nōn possent, since (and when) the Haedui could not defend themselves.

Note 2. — In concessive clauses, quamquam means this is so, but; licet, let this be so, yet; etsi, even if this is so, yet. Cum states the circumstances in spite of which the action occurs: nam cum id posset infitiāri, for although (in spite of the fact that) he could have denied it.

Note 3. — Quamquam often introduces an independent sentence, meaning and yet.

Exercise 1

1. Let us rejoice because we have escaped this peril.
2. Since this is so, senators, do you hesitate to do-your-duty-by the state? 3. Return, O citizens, to your homes, since there is no longer anything to fear (which must be feared). 4. Since they are not permitted (licet) to do this, they ask that you do not refuse to send them aid. 5. Although there are men who say that Catiline ought not to have been cast into exile, yet I do not fear them. 6. Although Cicero had heard many orations from the Rostra, yet he had never spoken from that place. 7. However-much this war is to be feared, our forces will conquer under the leadership of Pompey (abl. abs.). 8. Even if the river is very wide and deep, we must try to cross it. 9. And yet it is not so wide that we cannot cross it. 10. A nation is fortunate indeed to have (which has) commanders of such ability and virtue. 11. These praetors, who (because they) were most patriotic, undertook (took upon themselves) the task. 12. The lieutenant, who (although he) had kept the soldiers in camp many days, on the seventh day sent cohorts to get grain. 13. The town could not have been captured, though there were few defenders.¹ 14. We ought to thank the consul, because he has freed us from fear. 15. Who is there who does not think that we ought to thank the consul?

Exercise 2 (Pomp. 19–21)

Pompey wishes to take Gabinius with him as lieutenant, but objection is made because Gabinius was tribune last year. Nothing will prevent me from laying this matter before the Senate.

But Catulus says that we must do nothing contrary to the customs of our ancestors. He is a man of great influence. And yet he seems to have forgotten the new and important (great) precedents that have already been established in [the case of] this man.

LESSON XXVIII

Participles

1. Present and perfect participles: 221; Bur. 986; A. 490; B. 336; G. 282; H. 640; HB. 600.
2. Participles used for clauses: 223; Bur. 991; A. 496; B. 337; G. 664; H. 637; HB. 604.
3. The active periphrastic conjugation: 224; Bur. 327; A. 498; B. 337; G. 247; H. 531; HB. 600.
4. The periphrastic future infinitive: 209, a; Bur. 946; A. 569, a; B. 270, 3; G. 248; H. 571; HB. 472, c.

Note 1.—With polliceor and spērō, the future infinitive or posse, with subject-accusative, is commonly used: sē obsidēs polliciti sunt, they promised to give hostages.

Note 2.—Notice the difference between audiō eum loquī and audiō eum loquentem.

Exercise 1

1. And so he [though] conquered, was able to accomplish much.
2. We have read that the magistrates put to death men [who were] eager for a revolution.
3. Do you not see all orders of citizens holding the same opinion (thinking the same)?
4. Cicero learned all the plans of the conspirators almost before their meeting was broken up (the meeting having been scarcely yet dismissed).
5. Following the Allobroges by the same road, the praetors arrested them near the Mulvian bridge.
6. I am about to speak of the great virtues of a man who has often conquered our enemies.
7. I do not doubt that he is about to go to Marseilles.
8. Having made all things ready, the consul was able to carry out the measures (those things) which the Senate decided [upon].
9. Never since the founding of the city (after the city founded) has such gratitude been due (to) the immortal gods.
10. He promised to remain at his brother's house to-day. 11. Two Roman knights are said to have promised to go to Cicero's house. 12. This young man hopes to live (that he will live) a-long-time. 13. The Gauls saw that it would happen (be, fore) that no one would be able (impf. subj.) to resist Caesar's army. 14. Cicero tried to persuade the Senate to pardon Brutus and his friends. 15. No one can be found so desperate as-not-to-believe (Lesson XXIII, Note 1) that Catiline is an enemy of the state.

Exercise 2 (Pomp. 22–24)

Even if these eminent men object, yet they see that the Roman people have never acted unwisely in [the case of] Pompey. They ought, therefore, to approve your judgment at this time. No other commander could live in Asia with such self-control. His very coming into their cities brings joy to our allies. I urge you, citizens, for these reasons, to approve this bill of Manlius and to appoint a man who will bring honor to our common country.

LESSON XXIX

Gerund. Gerundive. Supine

1. Uses of the Gerund: 227; Bur. 1003; A. 501; B. 338; G. 425; H. 624; HB. 611.
2. Uses of the Gerundive: 226; Bur. 1003; A. 503; B. 339; G. 425; H. 621; HB. 609.
3. Uses of the Supine: 229; Bur. 1015; A. 509; B. 340; G. 434; H. 632; HB. 618.
4. Expressions of purpose: 193, b; Bur. 1007; A. 533; B. 282; G. 544, Rem. 2; H. 622, 626; HB. 612.

Note 1.—With the genitives meī, tuī, suī, nostrī, vestrī, the gerundive ends in -ī, without regard to gender or number.

Note 2.—The expression of purpose may be illustrated as follows: envoys came to seek peace, lēgātī vēnērunt, (1) ut pācem peterent; (2) qui pācem peterent; (3) ad pācem petendam; (4) pācis petendae causā; (5) pācem petitum.

Exercise 1

1. Let us take time for reflection (reflecting) before we decide upon this matter (thing). 2. The envoys came from the Allobroges to complain¹ of (dē) their injuries. 3. Mithridates had (came into) great hope of seizing the neighboring kingdom. 4. Even the freedmen have been aroused to defend¹ the republic. 5. I urged you to do this for the purpose¹ of freeing yourselves. 6. My friend was not less prompt in (in) doing things, than in planning [them]. 7. Cicero said that Catiline was living to strengthen¹ his audacity. 8. Caesar selected certain men to-be-sent (gerundive) to Gaul as centurions. 9. Citizens, we must not only feel grateful, but express our gratitude to the immortal gods, because we have conquered the enemy. 10. It is not easy to say whether this is the best thing to do. 11. It is not easy to say whether he is a suitable man to carry (Lesson XXI, Note 3) on the war with the Germans. 12. Many citizens went to the Forum to hear¹ the orator. 13. There were some who rejoiced that an opportunity of fighting was afforded them. 14. Who would aid (pres. subj.) the conspiracy (acc.) by keeping silent? 15. Who will prevent us from attempting to aid the consul?

Exercise 2 (Archias, 1-2)

Cicero thought that he ought to use his ability in behalf of the poet Archias because he had derived much from him, even [as] a boy. He feared that it might seem strange to the judges that he should speak of the study of literature before them, but he urged them to remember that all arts are bound together by a-kind-of (a certain) relationship.

LESSON XXX

Indirect Discourse

1. Moods in indirect discourse: 215; Bur. 965; A. 580; B. 314; G. 650; H. 642; HB. 644.
2. Tenses in indirect discourse: 216; Bur. 966; A. 584; B. 317; G. 653; H. 644; HB. 593.
3. Conditional sentences in indirect discourse: 218; Bur. 979; A. 589; B. 319; G. 656; H. 646; HB. 536.

Examples of Conditional Sentences

1. Direct: sī vincit, bene est, if he is conquering, it is well.
2. Indirect: (a) dīcō sī vincat, bene esse, I say that if he is conquering, it is well. (b) dixī sī vinceret, bene esse, I said that if he was conquering, it was well.
3. Direct: sī vincet, bene erit, if he conquers (i.e. shall conquer) it will be well.
4. Indirect: (a) dīcō sī vincat, bene futūrum esse, I say that if he conquers, it will be well. (b) dixī sī vinceret, bene futūrum esse, I said that if he should conquer, it would be well.
5. Direct: sī vicerit, bene erit, if he shall have conquered, it will be well.
6. Indirect: (a) dīcō sī vicerit (perf. subjv.) bene futūrum esse, I say that if he shall have conquered, it will be well. (b) dixī sī vīcisset, bene futūrum esse, I said that if he should have conquered, it would be well.
7. Direct: sī vincat, bene sit, if he should conquer, it would be well.
8. Indirect: (a) dīcō sī vincat, bene futūrum esse, I say that if he should conquer, it would be well. (b) dixi si vinceret, bene futūrum esse, I said that if he should conquer, it would be well.

9. Direct: si vinceret, bene esset, if he were conquering, it would be well.

Exercise 1

1. The consul said that the citizens would defend their homes.
2. The consul had told (to) the citizens to defend their homes (dir., defend your homes).
3. He writes to his lieutenant to come with his legion (dir., come with your legion) to the territory of the Allobroges.
4. He knew that the grain, which the Haedui promised, had not been given.
5. Let us honor the poet Archias. What did he say? He said that we should honor the poet Archias.
6. Shall (201) we read these books of the old writers?
7. He asks whether we shall read these books of the old writers.
8. The Senate thanked Cicero because he had freed the citizens from fear (the Senate's reason).
9. The knights reported to Cicero that their property (things) in Asia would be in great peril, unless aid should be sent by the Romans. 10. Do you know in what (how great) peril their property will be (Lesson VII, Note 2), if we do (shall) not send aid to them? 11. He said he would have assaulted the town, if he had thought there were so few soldiers within. 12. Do you think their property would have been lost if we had sent aid? 13. Cicero said that the plans of the conspirators could (198, Note 2) never have been brought to light, if he had not been guided by the gods. 14. If you had (were having) a residence at Rome, would you desire to be enrolled as a Roman citizen? 15. It ought to concern us (107) greatly, what the poets and philosophers have written.

Exercise 2 (Archias, 3–5)

Archias [when] a boy lived in An ioch, where (in which city) his fame was so great that he was thought worthy of hospitality by many men in Greece and Italy. When he came to Rome, he was received by the Luculli. Afterwards by the Law of Silvanus and Carbo he obtained the right of a Roman citizen. Since he was enrolled by Metellus, who was a most careful and conscientious man, no one ought to doubt that he was a citizen.

Exercise 3 (Archias, 6–8)

Do you ask why Cicero was so delighted with Archias? He said that by the studies of the poet his mind was refreshed when it was wearied with daily strife, and his power of speaking was increased (act. inf.). He believed that the greatest men have added training to natural ability. A poet is a gift of the gods to us, and is worthy of special honor.

Exercise 4 (Archias, 9-12)

Certainly we must receive as a citizen a man who by his verses has celebrated not only our generals, but the whole Roman people. Soldiers know that if there are no heralds of their valor, body and fame will be buried (fore ut) in the same tomb. Indeed, all of us (we all) are eager for glory, even the philosophers who pretend to despise it. For the hope of immortal fame makes us undergo all perils and labors of life.

all acts, including poetry, have a common bond - The nature of ~~my~~ ^{the} case is my excuse for employ any a new kind of pleading - I shall prove that he is a citizen and a man who ought in any case be made a citizen -

Archas has been welcomed in many cases: Asia, Magna Graecia, Rome the ~~man~~ was on familiar terms with the Luculli, Drusus, Octavius, and Cato. Heraclea besotted citizens upon him. By this and in the laws of Silianus and Carbo, he became a Roman citizen - The records are burned - nevertheless placed his name in with the records.
